

This woman says she was saved from an operation by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Lena V. Henry, of Norristown, Ga., writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I suffered untold misery from female troubles. My doctor said an operation was the only chance I had, and I dreaded it almost as much as death."

"One day I read how other women had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I decided to try it. Before I had taken the first bottle I was better, and now I am entirely cured."

"Every woman suffering with any female trouble should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."

FACTS FOR SICK WOMEN.

For thirty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has been the standard remedy for female ills, and has positively cured thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, fibroid tumors, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing-down feeling, flatulence, indigestion, dizziness or nervous prostration. Why don't you try it?

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

DOWN MISSOURI WAY.

Canada's Respect for Law and Order the Subject for Favorable Comment.

Those who have visited Canada are always impressed with the strict observance that is given to the laws of the country, and the order that is preserved everywhere. The editor of the Gazette of Fulton, Nev., recently paid a visit to western Canada. He was so impressed with the conditions that he saw everywhere that on his return home he was inspired to write as follows:

"Reverence and respect for law is a dominant characteristic of the Canadian people. Wherever one goes in Canada, whether east or west, the law is supreme. The law is obeyed because it is law, seemingly, and not because violation carries a penalty. Canada enforces the law and makes every law effective. No country is more free than Canada. In name Canada is a dependency of the British crown. In fact, it is almost a third Republic. All its taxes are voted, collected and expended by the Dominion and the provinces. The nominal head of the government is the governor general, appointed by the English crown. Practically his only authority is to veto the acts of parliament, which he scarcely ever exercises. Canada gives nothing to the support of the English government or the English king. She gives England the advantage in trade regulations and tariff laws, and in return receives the protection of the British army and navy. Canada enjoys the protection without sharing in the expense."

The sale of liquor is strictly regulated. None but hotelkeepers may obtain license to vend the stuff, and before a license can be secured an applicant must prove good character and provide 20 rooms in his tavern for the accommodation of guests. The bar rooms close at 7 o'clock Saturday evening and remain closed until Monday morning. The schools and churches in western Canada excite admiration. Though new, western Canada is not Godless. The finest buildings in every town are the churches. Next come the school houses."

Turning to the wheat fields of western Canada, the editor of the Laurel (Neb.) Advocate of Sept. 17, says: "I have often thought that the reason that the characters of Charles Dickens are so impressed upon the minds of his readers is because he dwells upon them so long and describes them so minutely that by the time one has waded through his long drawn out stories they are so burned into his brain that he can never forget them. It was this way with the Canadian wheat fields. Had we only seen a few the memory of them might have worn away in time, but a long drawn out experience such as we had is sure to leave an ineffaceable impression. Never while we live shall we forget the Canadian wheat fields. They call it the granary of the British Empire and we don't blame 'em. Nobody who has seen their wheat fields can wonder at their enthusiasm."

It is worth while to record that these fields have now been harvested, and in many cases yields as high as forty and fifty bushels per acre have been marketed, while the general average has been away above twenty bushels per acre. Oats and barley have also done well, and the profits, the prices of grains being high, have paid the entire cost of the farms of many farmers. There is now 160 acres of land given away, in addition to the 100 acres that the homesteader may purchase at $3.00 an acre. Particulars of this as well as the lowest railway rates will be given by the Canadian government agent.

"I suppose he had made a freak election bet," answered the student with the bulging brow.—Kansas City Journal.

BED-BOUND FOR MONTHS.

Hope Abandoned After Physician's Consultation.

Mrs. Enos Shearer, Yew and Washington Sts., Centralia, Wash., says: "For years I was weak and run down, could not sleep, my limbs swelled and the secretions were troublesome; pains were intense. I was fast in bed for four months. Three doctors said there was no cure for me and I was given up to die. Being urged, I used Doan's Kidney Pills. Soon I was better and in a few weeks was about the house, well and strong again."

SUNFLOWER PHILOSOPHY.

Home is the place where we show our sore spots.

How very soon a young doctor acquires a wise look.

Everyone should like his kin, but everyone does not.

A fool soon finds out that he can make a big noise.

A man who has fished much can readily detect a lie in a fish story.

There is no more expensive luxury in the world than getting even.

There is entirely too much remedy in this country that is not applied.

There is only one thing people like that is good for them—a good night's sleep.

A woman ought to be pretty to console her for being a woman at all.

The weeping at a wedding is never as real as that which sometimes comes afterward.

An Atchison bride has her husband so well trained that the first one gets supper.

When a man finds a nice, old fashioned well he also finds that not long ago a cat fell in it.

A man and woman can argue pleasantly until they marry each other, and then they can't.

When a barber steps out of his shop a moment a customer always comes in.

The notion that it is only possible to sin or act foolish in a saloon is a serious mistake.

Some girls gash so much that they get homesick when they have to stay at home.

No man likes the idea that when his wife prays for greater patience she is thinking of him.

You can't please everybody, and if you work on a newspaper it is still worse. You can't please anybody.

We sometimes think the poor need to be taught gratitude more than the rich need to be taught generosity.

If a woman wants a welcome when she gets home, she should leave her husband with the baby when she goes.

Look yourself over candidly and honestly and you will be surprised at the great amount of time you devote to foolishness.

It is every mother's opinion that her husband, in a desire to correct their son's bad habits should first correct his own.

When a farmer comes to town with a young colt following an old mare he is as proud of it as a woman is of a baby.

A widower with seven children stands a better show matrimonially than a spin with beauty, family, character and money.

Nearly every man imagines, when he comes into possession of an old and battered coin, that he has a gold mine.

A mother's idea of as good luck as any one can ask for is to occasionally find a pair of stockings in the pile that doesn't need darning.

Every bride and groom should have their picture taken together; it will afford such sport for their grandchildren.

Paste this on the lid of your trunk: Your friends are not as anxious to have you come and see them as you think they are.

The harder the times the greater the number of schemers, and the more they lie about the opportunities they offer to make you rich.

When man is running for office every one in the town gets in on a treat but his wife. And when he is defeated she is the one who hears all the grumbling about it.

The friends of every married couple are divided in two lots: Those who wonder how he ever happened to marry her and those who can't understand why she ever married him.

For a few weeks after his wife's death a widower looks at women with the indifference and lack of interest that characterizes a sick man. But how soon he gets over it!

The women are learning more about business matters every day, but the men are not taking any more interest in cooking. It seems that in the course of a few years the women will have everything to do.

Whenever a woman says something reflecting upon the men the other women laugh, but when a man says something discreditable to a woman the other men resent it.

If one man starts to pay his debts it puts a row of men half a mile long in motion, each one starting to pay his. It may be that you are the man in the row that has stopped the motion; if you owe any one, pay him.—Atchison (Kan.) Globe.

Two Clergymen.

Two clergymen in a Southern State were once discussing the process of sermon writing, when one of them remarked that the only real hard propositions for him were the introduction and the conclusion. "You remember," he said, "the sermon I preached at the installation of Brother Morely not long ago? Well, I flattered myself that the exordium and the peroration of that sermon were pretty well done." "Yes," responded the other divine, with a faint smile, "but, as I remember, they were awfully far apart."

The Pudding.

Norah, the "green" cook says a writer in the Philadelphia Ledger, poked her head in at the dining room door and asked, "Plaze, ma'am, an' how will I be knowin' whin the puddin' is cooked?"

"Stick a knife into it," answered the skilled housewife, "and if the knife comes out clean you might stick all the rest of the knives into the pudding is ready to serve."

"Yis, ma'am."

"And, oh, Norah," continued her mistress, "if the knife does come out clean you might stick all the rest of the knives into the pudding."

Impossible.

Bronson—I understand he painted cobwebs on the ceiling so perfectly that the maid wore herself out trying to sweep them down.

Johnson—There may have been such an artist, but there never was such a housemaid.

Coffee Beans.

How many who purchase the family coffee know that there are male and female beans and that if one wants the best brand he must insist upon having the former?

LIVED ON TEN CENTS A WEEK.

BILL Doolittle's System a Good One, But Not Attractive.

"D'yu find smoking hurts y'u?" asks Hi Biddle, a Yankee lawyer, in Willie Brook's story, "The Solar Machine," in Harper's.

"It probably doesn't do me any good," I said; "but I'd have trouble quitting it."

"No, y'u wouldn't. Smoke this," He took from his vest pocket the following a story he had written on Sunday, an' he hopped it across the table to me. "Ever hear how Bill Doolittle lived on ten cents a week?"

I confessed that Bill's economics had never been brought to my attention.

"Wal," said Biddle, "he took dinner with a friend on Sunday, an' ate enough to last 'im till Wednesday. Then he bought ten cents' worth of tripe, an' he hated tripe so like thunder that it lasted 'im the rest of the week. These segars work a good deal like that tripe. You take to smokin' 'em, an' y'u won't want more'n one or two a day."

Two Pictures.

Miss Mary Garden, the prima donna, prised on the eve of her departure for Europe the new school of opera at the school of "Thais," "Salome" and "Herodiade."

"In these works," said she, "the characters live. They are not mere singing puppets. And these works must be acted as well as sung."

"In fact," she concluded, "the modern opera excels the old as the modern trained nurse excels the old fashioned one."

"My physician told me the other day he had called in the morning at a house where the nurse, young and modern, gave him every detail of her patient's night—temperature and pulse rate, etc."

"If a woman wants a welcome when she gets home, she should leave her husband with the baby when she goes.
