

OVER THE TEA CUPS

The second regular meeting of the Hammond Women's club for 1907 and 1908, was held at the new Methodist church Saturday afternoon, Oct. 5. It was children's day and a goodly number of little ones as well as members of the club were present to enjoy the program. The committee under the leadership of Mrs. Ross Sutton, secured the services of Miss Faulkner, a kindergarten teacher of Chicago, who entertained the children as well as the older ones with numerous fairy tales and kindergarten stories. She was ably assisted by Miss Jacobson of Chicago, and also by excellent home talent, Mrs. Caille Faber, with a vocal solo entitled "Won't You Come Over to My House" by Valentine. Mrs. Faber's singing was marked by extreme sweetness of tone, and she was heartily cheered. Miss Faulkner followed with the story, "The Ginger Bread Boy," and proved herself a most agreeable story teller to old as well as young. Miss Faulkner responded to an encore called "The Little Half Chick." Miss Ethel Hirsch gave a reading entitled "Daisy's Practice Hour," which was very much enjoyed by all present. Miss Faulkner again appeared on the program with a fairy story for the girls, which was well chosen and delighted the children. The boys also had a part in the program. Masters Grill and Clara Burge gave a pleasing piano and violin duet. Miss Faulkner gave as her third number on the program, "The Elephant Child," which proved as interesting as her former selections. Miss Jacobson gave a reading and charmed the audience with her easy, graceful manner and showed great ability as a reader. The closing number on the program was a fairy tale "About Boys" by Miss Faulkner. This was the concluding number.

SEEK TO PROVE MURDER

Frances Gray Before Grand Jury on Charge of Killing Frank Brown.

(Special to Lake County Times.)

LaPorte, Ind., Oct. 7.—State's Attorney Miller today began the legal probing of the sensational killing of Frank Brown of Three Oaks, Mich., by Frances Gray of Michigan City. Witnesses have been summoned and the state will demand the returning of an indictment charging the woman with murder in the first degree. The tragedy took place in Michigan City, where the Gray woman had lived for a number of years. Frank Brown was desperately in love with her. The day of the killing the couple quarreled. Brown had been at the house and following the disagreement he was ordered to leave. He left but returned within a few minutes. The Gray woman stood at the head of the stairs. Brown started up the stairs, but had only proceeded a short way when a pistol shot rang out, and he fell mortally wounded. The woman was immediately taken into custody. Her story of the tragedy is that she was obliged to take the life of her lover in self defense, and this will be the pleading of her attorneys. It developed after the prisoner had been received at the county jail that her name was an alias, that she is a member of a respected family, who are believed to be in ignorance of the murder. The trial will occupy several days and it promises to have its dramatic climaxes.
