

FROM NEIGHBORING TOWN AND CITY

CROWN POINT NEWS

It Was Convincing Argument.

If ever a convincing and telling blow was struck at Bryan and the democratic cause it came out yesterday in the Chicago Record-Herald, the great independent paper of the west, when it voiced the sentiments of Chicago's leading business men regardless of party standing on the outlook of business in the event of Bryan or Taft's election. When men of high business reputation, with the sound business judgment that goes with it, came out in an independent paper unalterably opposed to Bryan's election, deeming him unsafe, and when men like Farwell, or many others, most prominent in Chicago's commercial centers, tell of big orders placed upon and in the event of Taft's election, to be countermanded in the event of Bryan's, surely there is something radically wrong with the policies of the latter, that will bear the most careful investigation and consideration of a voter, be he democrat or republican, who has the country's welfare at heart. Had the article been printed in a republican paper and the men who voiced their sentiments belonged to some powerful trust or combination the democrats could easily overlook the matter and regard it as political "claptrap," but coming out in the paper it did and voicing the sentiments of Chicago's most powerful merchants it is an argument that cannot be willfully overlooked by either democrat or republican, and the voter that does not take it into consideration is either particularly biased or he has no desire to see the business of the country placed on a basis that will mean much to his own welfare, for no matter how rich or how poor the business and prospects of one man are, they are visibly affected by the business and prospects of his neighbors.
