There are cobwebs on the windows, There are cobwebs on the door, There are cobwebs swinging, swaying From the rafters to the floor. Now the place is Cobweb Kingdom, Though it used to be a store.

"JESSIE B" AN ACTRESS.

Few theatergoers who will patronize the Towle opera house Saturday matinee and night, October 24, will realize that a very important race horse is called upon to make one of the daring rescues of the play. The horse is "Jessie B", sired by "Lindula", out of "Sadie S". All three horses are owned by Proprietor H. Sullivan, who also has a number of other horses racing under his colors which are corse with green cap and sleeves. "Jessie B" was quite a good two-year-old in her time, but Mr. Sullivan has found better use for her as an actor. Last summer she had a rather break in her animal into leaping into a large tank filled with water, with two boys on her back. After a number of months of trials, tribulations and a good deal of patience, they succeeded and now the gliding billboards announce "Jessie B", famous trained horse, jumps into a tank of water with three people on her back. This occurs at the end of the third act of "The Outlaw's Christmas", and is said to be one of the most sensational of up to date melodramas.

ALL BASED ON FACT.

In the writing of all of his successful melodramas, the popular dramatic author, S. F. Judson, builds upon fact. Nearly all of his scenes have been actual happenings and therefore carry conviction with them. His biggest success, from all accounts, is the play, "Sold Into Slavery", which is the big melodramatic hit of the year. In this play he has discarded all mechanical effects and has woven into a powerful and interesting dramatic story a series of real incidents, allowing himself but little latitude, and the result is a play which not only tugs at the heart strings and is full of human interest, but one in which there is also plenty of comedy and which appeals to all classes of theatergoers without a single dull moment from the time the first curtain goes up until the last one falls. A. J. Spencer has given the play a very handsome production, each one of the eight scenes representing a New York city locale. The company is said to be exceptionally well balanced. "Sold Into Slavery" is scheduled for presentation at the Towle opera house Sunday matinee and night, October 25.
