ST. JOHN.

Bert Steele left this morning on a business trip to Delphi, Ind.

William and N. Thiele transacted business in Cedar Lake today.

Henry Buhs of Bemis, Ill., was a visitor today.

The Crown Point correspondent of THE TIMES in his write-up of "Marshall Talks at the County Seat," closed with the following remarks: "The St. John wagon to the Marshall speech yesterday did not arrive until after Marshall had shaken the dust of the town off his feet. They started with the intention of taking in the Bryan meeting at Lowell, but as the peerless one did not stop there they were disappointed and came to Crown Point to receive their second disappointment."

Now in fairness to all concerned it must be stated that there is not a grain of truth in the foregoing remarks, and the reporter must have had bad information. In the first place there was no suggestion made by anybody, not even thought of, to go to Lowell to hear the Peerless One. Think of the idea to start with a wagon to meet a special train fifteen miles away and the same train went four hours previous through St. John, how in the world could they meet that train? The facts are the St. John people started at 12 o'clock with several wagons and one automobile to Crown Point, had their front of the speaker's stand, when the wedding ceremony was performed, of which the article makes mention, and consequently the St. John people were there at the beginning of Mr. Marshall's speech, which followed the wedding, and so there was no first nor second disappointment for the St. John democrats that day. St. John was there with the goods and with no malice to any one and justice to all, we put this little campaign fake to sleep and let it go at that.
