

A DAY IN GARY LAND

CARTER AND BROWN WIND UP CAMPAIGN IN GARY

Democratic Candidate for Sheriff Makes House to House Campaign. Republican Candidate for Commissioner Running Strong.

Fred Carter, democratic candidate for sheriff, was in Gary yesterday putting in a strenuous day of campaigning. Carter almost made a house to house canvass in the steel city, and aside from meeting his friends he spent some time in putting his cards up in nearly every window in town. Mr. Carter is popular in the south end of the city, and will probably run ahead of the balance of the democratic ticket.

In addition to Carter, Matt J. Brown of Eagle Creek township, candidate for county commissioner, spent the afternoon in Gary yesterday and met a number of the republican leaders. Brown has proved popular in the steel city, and he has a number of staunch friends who are working here for his election. Mr. Brown has been spending several days in the north end of the county, but the trip to Gary yesterday will be his last during the present campaign.
