CRUMPACKER AND BEVERIDGE.

IT IS EARLY TO MAKE predictions or prophecies as to what will transpire out of the election in Indiana, but certain facts present themselves that wise politicians in Indiana are already figuring on.

It was a disastrous election for some of Indiana's hitherto powerful republican leaders. Among those who fell outside the breastworks are Senator Hemenway, Congressman Watson, Landis, Foster, Overstreet, former Attorney General Miller and candidates for congress, Good, Maxwell and Gilhams. The defeat of these men is significant from many a point of view. The most important question is, who are the republican leaders in Indiana today? Who are the leaders whose path upwards is undimmed by defeat? Two names shine out with lustre. They are Crumpacker and Beveridge. In spite of the bitter fight made against Congressman Crumpacker by democrats and disgruntled members in his own party who were disappointed patronage seekers, Judge Crumpacker was returned to congress by over six thousand two hundred majority, larger in fact than all its predecessors. It was not only republicans, however, it was the vote of hundreds of democrats who respected his devotion to duty and his spotless name in congress. An analysis of the returns showed that he lost only Benton county, his opponent's home county, by 154 and White county by 3. His majority in Jasper was 255; in Lake, 3,036; in LaPorte, 10; in Newton, 179, in Porter, 1,104; in Tippecanoe, 689 and in Warren, 940. In view of the fearful slump in republican votes all over the state, the figures are tremendously significant. Congressman Crumpacker's name in Indiana politics has been growing in prestige and fame these many years. His career for the next two years will be watched with intense interest, and his friends declare that the senate is but a stepping stone for him to still higher honors. The approach of the census taking, of whose committee Mr. Crumpacker is chairman, and the important duties of tariff revision of the ways and means committee where he now gains added seniority, makes him a national figure. Together with Senator Beveridge, these will be two names to conjure within state republican politics henceforth. The brilliant campaign made by Senator Beveridge from one end of the country to the other and his great trip up and down Indiana in the closing week of the campaign, give him added prestige with the administration which will begin March 4. With the defeat of Senator Hemenway, the swan song of Hanly, whose star has set, Senator Beveridge occupies a commanding position in Indiana republican politics. He will have a battle on his hands two years hence in view of the fact that the democrats will be in a position to fight hard for his seat, but in two years from now with a new republican state organization and the elimination of the county option question, Indiana republicans will be ready to bring the state back in the fold. But there is no question now that the names of Beveridge and Crumpacker will henceforth be representative of larger spheres than ever before.

SOME FOOD FOR THOUGHT HERE.

THERE IS A GOOD DEAL of food for thought for the republicans in an analysis of the election returns in this state. It is quite plain now after all the excitement is over that the people in Indiana didn't want county local option. It is quite probable that the church people in Indiana did not vote as they prayed, for it has been conclusively shown that if staunch church people had voted in their polling booths as they talked in public they would have elected Watson as governor. What makes Mr. Watson's friends so sore and bitter is the fact that he was the champion of the temperance crusaders and that they failed him at the finish. A glance at the prohibition vote shows that if the temperance people had been consistent they would have supported Watson. That they did not do so, especially outside of Lake county, shows that their policy will never get the support of the republican party in the future. The liberal element in both the republican and democratic parties supported Marshall and the country vote which, it was predicted, was for county option, repudiated it and lost the state legislature and United States senator for the republican party. The republican party henceforth owes nothing to the Anti-Saloon league of Indiana and the church people who declared emphatically that they would bring about the election of Mr. Watson. The Anti-Saloon league of Indiana will, of course, bob up again with remonstrances and crusades. Seventy-five thousand democrats have signed remonstrances in Indiana during the past two years against the saloons. They were appealed to for support. Did they give it? The returns show whether they did or not.

The average republican in Indiana feels today that he is under no obligation to the Anti-Saloon league. Right here in Lake county the names of democrats who have signed remonstrances in the past and still voted for Marshall last Tuesday are known.

And in the meantime the republican party in Indiana needs a new state organization. Two years hence the party will have to be controlled by men who DO things. It is high time for a house-cleaning.

INDIANA WAS NOT ALONE.

THE EDITORS OF SOME metropolitan republican papers are inclined to be very facetious at the expense of the republicans of Indiana because Judge Taft received Indiana's electoral vote and yet the state elected a democratic governor. We see nothing out of the way if Indiana did. The reasons are easy to find. It was, of course, because of the split voting, and yet Indiana is not alone. If the great republican editors will look around them a little they will see that Ohio, Minnesota, West Virginia and North Dakota went for Taft and yet elected democratic governors. Split voting elected a republican governor by a round plurality and yet Taft got the state by a narrow margin. In New York, New Hampshire, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Illinois and Michigan there was a great divergence between the presidential and gubernatorial votes. It is estimated that ten per cent of the country's voting population declined to vote straight tickets this year. The significance of differentiation between state and national politics is something that must henceforth be counted with. The day of the blind partisan is gone. The party that misbehaves itself in the coming two years is going to get stung at the polls. This independent voting is bound to stimulate far better government, and again—Indiana was not alone.

YOU CAN'T SHUT UP Elbert Hubbard and prevent him from saying good things. His latest is "the civilization of Babylon and Nineveh were destroyed by too much food. As a rule we consume twenty-five per cent too much food. We over-eat and under breathe and go to the hospital to have our pocket-book cut out."

THE DEVIL.

The stage has a new devil. He is popular and bows and leers to standing room only.

Nobody knows how the real Satan looks. He appeared on that day when the sons of God gathered, "and Satan came also," but there is no description of his shape. When he was given power to afflict poor old Job and when he appeared to tempt the Son of God he did not disclose himself physically, so far as we know.

There is the suspicion that the "real for sure" devil is too smart to manifest himself bodily.

Many have tried to picture Satan. Each picture is the artist's point of view. Milton gives him form and shape. But his is a very human devil. He suffers like a man. "Which way I turn is a hell—MYSELF AM HELL," wails this poor Satan.

Goethe's creature, Mephistopheles, is a man of the world, genial enough and never so repulsive as to defeat his fell purposes. Though he keeps horns and tail well hidden, he is just as cruel as Milton's Satan.

Oh, there is a devil, all right!

And worse than that!

THERE IS A MYRIAD OF DEVILS.

The spirit of evil is in the world along with the spirit of good. These spirits manifest themselves in human flesh, men and women. (Can you fancy a feminine devil?) There are a plenty of both sexes—little devils, incarnated evil—who go about, not like a roaring lion, seeking whom they may devour. Indeed, to tell the whole truth about it, THERE IS A LITTLE DEVIL IN YOU! He—or she—may be a wee, tiny devil, but he is there just the same. And in me. And in all of us.

When the spirit of evil works through you and me and all of us, that is the big devil of all, using you and me and all of us as ministers of his evil design.

Mask this big Satan as you may, no stage presentation can ever idealize him as anything but vile nor conceal his wicked and awful character.

The Bible says he is now chained.

BUT THE CHAIN IS A LONG ONE!

Keep away from him or—he'll git ye!

If you

Charles F. Thwing.

Dr. Charles F. Thwing, president of Western Reserve university and Adelbert college, was born in New Sharon, Me., Nov. 9, 1853. He received his preparatory schooling at Phillips academy and in 1876 he graduated from Harvard university. The next three years were spent at the Andover theological seminary. After he entered the ministry he was for some years pastor of a church in Cambridge, Mass. In 1886 he accepted a call from Plymouth church in Minneapolis and he remained there until 1890. In that year he accepted the presidency of Western Reserve university at Cleveland, Ohio. Dr. Thwing has been a next-door neighbor and has written and lectured a great deal, particularly on religious and educational topics.

LABOR NEWS

A new law passed by the state of Oklahoma orders that all school books issued to the children of that state must bear the union label.

On Dec. 7, at New Orleans, La., the International Brotherhood of Maintenance of Way Employees, and at Brooklyn, N. Y., the National Alliance of Bill Posters and Billers of America will meet in convention.

There is a movement in the east on the part of a number of labor unions to eliminate from their respective constitutions the clause which bears the discussion of politics at meetings of the organizations. The leaders in this direction assert that they are moved to this action by the changed conditions in the country, and demand that such step must be taken for the better protection of organized labor.

The Cigar-makers' International union of America will not hold a convention this year. An amendment to the constitution designed to make a convention possible has been defeated in the referendum by the narrow majority of 206. A school for wives is the latest undertaking of Chicago club women. Courses will be given in the making of clothes, cooking, household economics and general housekeeping. The idea is to make good housewives and to make them through organized and unified effort.

The appellate division of the New York supreme court, second department, has decided that a contract made by a corporation with a labor union, whereby only union men shall be employed should be upheld as valid and binding.

TO TEST OPTION LAW.

Arrangements are being made in St. Joseph county to test the local option law, the movement having its inception in Mishawaka, a prosperous manufacturing city of 10,000, four miles from South Bend. The Indiana Anti-Saloon League, which affiliated with the Ministerial association of South Bend and Mishawaka, has circulated remonstrances throughout the county.

WOULD KILL FAIRBANKS.

The police of Terre Haute report that Councilman Allen started out the other morning to kill Crawford Fairbanks. Police headquarters got a "tip" on the matter, and two detectives overhauled Allen and searched him for a weapon. He had put his revolver away by the time the detectives found him.

TEACHER WANTS DAMAGES.

Miss Elizabeth Baxter of Anderson, a school teacher of Alexandria, has filed in the Madison circuit court suit for $10,000 damages against the Union Traction company. With two other young women she was in a buggy which was struck by a traction car in the streets of Alexandria on July 4. She alleges she received permanent injuries on account of the accident.

OIL BUSINESS GROWS.

The volume of business transacted in petroleum, in Montpelier, during the week shows a slight increase over the week preceding. There was a steady movement of refined oil and products for home consumption. There has also been a good demand for refined oil in bulk, while oil in cases shows a falling off in sales.

INFATUATION CAUSES MURDER.

Telling the story which will send him to the gallows or imprisonment for life, Albert Roubiek today graphically told a jury in the Starks county circuit court of the murder of Emil Kvanicka, a Chicago jeweler, by whom he had been employed, in May last when the assassin's bullet killed the husband of the woman with whom the self-confessed murderer was infatuated.

IN POLITICS

The talk of Charles H. Fredericks as a candidate for chief of police of Hammond during the Marshall administration, received a set-back on Saturday when Mr. Fredericks declared that he would in no wise accept the plum, or business reasons. Sheriff F. S. Carter says now to have the bulge on the office and his friends have determined that it shall be his.

There will be no lack of spirit in the fight for the speakership of the next house of representatives. Two of the avowed candidates for the place were in Indianapolis today, and they declared they were in to remain until the finish. James Garrard of Vincennes, representative from Knox county, was at the Denison hotel mingling with his democratic friends. Mr. Garrard was talking with some of the Marion county democrats. Marion county will have eight votes to cast for a candidate for speakership.

Representative Tom Honan of Seymour came into the city early yesterday and assured his friends that the announcement that he was a candidate for speaker was absolutely correct. Mr. Honan seemed to think that one of the greatest things in his favor was that he had been severely lambasted by Governor Hanly at different times in the recent campaign. Honan's friends say that the record he has made as floor leader of the minority in the house will help him.

New York, Nov. 7.—The splitting of Maryland's electoral vote, whereby Bryan gets six and Taft two, as indicated by the result of the official count in that state, will make the electoral college stand as follows: Taft, 321; Bryan, 162.

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 8.—The possible tender of the chairmanship of the University of Nebraska to W. J. Bryan was one of the most interesting rumors circulated today in connection with the vacancy which will be created Jan. 1 by the resignation Friday night of Dr. E. Benjamin Andrews. Mr. Bryan said he had not heard the report and would not discuss it; in fact, he knew nothing about it. So far as could be learned in university circles, the mention of Mr. Bryan's name in connection with the coming vacancy was more the suggestion of the student body than any serious thought of him by the regents or those in authority. The board of regents is solidly republican, and politics, it is thought, might play a part if Mr. Bryan cared for the place and an effort was made to appoint him.

Another matter that the politicians are considering is the redistricting of the state, and some of them have declared that they will see to it that there is a gerrymander that will keep the state democratic in congress and the legislature. But these gentlemen forget that there are many reasons why this cannot be done. The first is because there is a republican senate to defeat the bill—the other reasons are not necessary to mention. The sober, level-headed men in both parties say the best thing to do is for a commission to draw up a bill that will be acceptable to both branches of the legislature. Otherwise a redistricting bill cannot be passed.

West Baden, Ind., Nov. 7.—A jubilant procession of democrats paraded the streets of both French Lick and West Baden last night, carrying two banners. One exhibited Marshall's picture, the other showed a whisky barrel and bottle with these words, "What the G. O. P. of French Lick used November 3 for Watson." They met the train on which Taggart came to French Lick at the West Baden depot.

Many of Representative Jesse Overstreet's friends in official life would like to see him made postmaster general under President Taft. His peculiar fitness for the place, they point out, ought to be a fine recommendation to the president-elect. As chairman of

Chicago Woman Says $30,000 A Year Insures Comfort Without Economy

Mrs. FRANKLIN MACVEAGH

Mr. Howard Gould's testimony in a New York court to the effect that she had been unable to live as befitting her station in life on alimony of $75,000 a year, has caused surprise among Chicago women accustomed to luxurious surroundings. Mrs. Franklin MacVeagh said yesterday that with an allowance of $30,000 any woman could enjoy all the pleasures of social life without rigid economy.

The Ginger Jar

The frameup for the mayoralty campaign in Hammond looks something like this:

Democratic.	Republican.
Dr. W. F. Howat.	F. R. Schaaf.
Jacob Schloer.	Tom Swanton.
J. K. Stinson.	Eric Lund.
W. W. McMahon.	Robert Kidney.
Ed Simon.	Wm. Newman.
John L. Rohde.	Ben Bell.
	Richard Siebert.

The list will be extended from time to time as the crop advances.
