

FROM NEIGHBORING TOWN AND CITY

NEWS OF THE COUNTY SEAT

CROWN POINT VERY CONFIDENT.

High School Coming Up With Big Bunch of Rooters Tomorrow.

The Crown Point high school team is all cocked and primed for their game with the Hammond high school eleven at Harrison park in that city Saturday afternoon, and now it's the best team win. Hammond won by a narrow margin at Crown Point two weeks ago, but the local team is confident they cannot repeat their victory. It is hoped that the game will be played in a clean and sportsmanlike manner, giving each side a fighting chance, thus raising the athletic standard of Lake county schools in the estimation of true lovers of clean sportsmanship. Here's success to the best team.

Indianapolis Officials Up.

Two examining veterinarians from Indianapolis are busy in Center township this week examining cattle for traces of tuberculosis. The young men are well versed in their duties. They work about three herds of cattle each side, examining and taking the temperature of each cow, eight different times reporting each afflicted animal to the farmer and headquarters. It is said their pay for examination is 25 cents per head. About three weeks in Lake county will complete their labors.

Reported He Will Contest.

It is reported that Representative Ed Simon, of Hammond, filed an application for contest, on the vote recently cast in Lake county, in which he was defeated by Ed Wickley of East Chicago, the matter to be taken up at the next legislature. Just how the democrats are going to ascertain and prove that it was the "Hunkies" that defeated them is a mystery, and mayhap the republicans will show that the shoe is on the wrong foot.

He Is Probably a "Nit."

THE TIMES reporter at this place is in receipt of a letter evidently coming from some worthy democrat which contains a sheet of paper on which is posted clipping from THE TIMES of different dates, dealing with the past political struggle. The purpose of the mislabeled is a mystery, as the only writing is the word, "nit." In looking over the subscription list we fail to find anyone answering that name, so we have concluded that the sender is one of the kind that "loves his neighbor as himself," and accordingly borrows his Times to read. The word "nit" was a happy thought of the sender and explains the weight of the whole proceeding.

Many Crown Pointers will accompany the town football eleven to Lowell on Sunday, where they meet the Lowell eleven at Oakland Park in the afternoon. Both teams have done considerable practicing and both are also confident of winning. Crown Point's men are mostly old-time stars on the football field, while Lowell also will have some good athletes in line, and a good game is expected.

The Crown Point line-up will be as follows:

The ladies in charge of the bazaar for the public library benefit on Dec. 11 met at the library assembly room and made arrangements to carry the affair to a successful conclusion. A thorough canvass will be made throughout the town for donations of anything that will bring remuneration and add to the fund the ladies hope to raise for the library's benefit. Therefore, get ready to hand over anything from an acre of ground down to a spoon of thread, all of which will be thankfully received and will be used in a good cause.

No trace has been found at this writing of the missing Cedar Lake man, and the inhabitants around there have settled down to let nature do its work, which ought to be in about nine days providing the body isn't weighted down. It is the general conclusion that the missing man came to his death by drowning, either accidental or intentional.

The Fortnightly Musicals will meet at 7 o'clock on Monday, Dec. 4. A. Root next Monday evening. Out-of-town talents will be present to assist the local members in the evening's program.

There are still two or three deputyships to be awarded by the court.

LETTER FROM A FORTY-NINER.

Here is a simple, interesting and sincere letter from a rugged pioneer of '49, who braved the dangers and hardships of the overland trail to California. It should appeal to all catarrh victims.

Santa Rosa, Cal., May 5, 1908.

Booth's Hyomei Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Dear Sirs:—I was afflicted with catarrh, and tried a number of remedies, but received no relief. I purchased an outfit of Hyomei, and before I had used the bottle I noted a marked relief. I used it for a month or so, and thought I was cured, and stopped using it for a year or so. Thought I was getting carried again, and started using it again. I use it every morning and keep myself clear of catarrh. I consider it the best catarrh medicine that is used. I have often recommended it to my friends. I am 81 years old. I came to California in 1849, and of course am not as vigorous as I was 58 years ago. My address is 841 4th street. Yours truly, W. Mock.

Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) is guaranteed by Summers pharmacy not only for catarrh, but for grip, coughs, colds, bronchitis and croup. A complete outfit, including inhaler, costs only $1.00; extra bottles of Hyomei, if afterwards needed, cost but 50 cents.

Just before the lunch hour there had been great excitement around the casino at Santa Cruz. Jeannette Washburn had been last of the bathers to leave the surf and in her usual reckless manner had started to swim to the raft after she was tired enough to leave the water. She made the raft all right, but halfway back she went under.

Patricia, on the pleasure pier, had given the alarm, and two men put out in a boat. Before they bore their dripping burden up the pier steps a crowd had gathered from all directions. The beach policeman had come running to press them back and allow the men to hurry through with the half drowned girl.

Then the crowd dispersed, except Patricia, who had given the alarm. When one walks always with a crutch it is better not to walk in a crowd. So she waited till the pier was deserted and she had found that Jeannette would recover. Then she went home.

Usually Patricia's slow steps were not wearisome to her, for the beauty of the hills kept her company, the flowers along the way were her friends, and the voice of the ocean said to her many things, but today she saw neither hills nor flowers, and she heard nothing but her own heart's cry, "Ernest Wentworth loves Jeannette!"

She had heard it yesterday, and a glimpse of his white face in the crowd today confirmed the rumor that he was going to marry Jeannette Washburn. She had said it over and over in the night watches, wagging war with her own eager heart and telling it to be ashamed for giving its love unasked.

When she saw Jeannette near to drowning she was wild to plunge in and swim out to her and save her, and not for Jeannette's own sake.

Even in her impulse she recognized her motive—not for Jeannette's sake, but for his. She would make the supreme sacrifice of her unrequited love, and she would do a heroic deed because of it. But even this was denied her.

"Everything is denied a cripple," she thought with unwonted bitterness as she reached her father's gate. "If I were like other girls he might have chosen me!"

Late in the afternoon, in the brief hours between dinner and the gay life of the evening, when she knew the casino would be almost deserted, she went back to sit on the steps and look silently seaward.

Away to the horizon were fishing boats and a pleasure yacht, its white sails gleaming silver in the sun. Near the shore showed the dark bulk of the buoy, and nearer still the sea birds diving and dipping.

All this was on the sea. On the sand was a lone figure, a woman in a faded green dress, its skirts held ungracefully up from the kelp as she walked the damp sands gathering seashells.

Patricia, watching her dreamily, saw her pick up one, look at it carefully, then put it in her jacket pocket. The next she threw away, perhaps because of flaw or break or lack of luster.

"Dreaming?" said a voice very pleasant to Patricia's ears, and Wentworth sat down beside her.

"It only made it the harder to have him look at her. Did a crumb ever do a particle of good when one was starving for the whole loaf? Poor Patricia! Still, as he was there, and as he was not saying anything more, she must make talk. Any kind of talk was better than silence, so she spoke of what she had
