MRS. KINSEY AT MEETING.

Charity day at the Woman's club, which met on Saturday afternoon, was one of unusual interest from several points of view. First, those who took part in the program did unusually well. Second, a treat provided by the capable chairman of the committee, Mrs. J. M. Turner, was the presentation of Mrs. O. P. Kinsey, of Valparaiso, ex-president of the Federation of Women's club of Indiana, who gave a delightfully interesting and informal talk upon the value of woman's clubs to every member, broadening their mental vision. Mrs. Kinsey's plea was for high thinking, with a casting off of little things which hamper and hinder and which are really trivial viewed in the light of later experience, but which we allow to take on such huge proportions at the time. Mrs. Kinsey made many humorous allusions to the every-day troubles of the homemaker with the judicious advice to not harass the family with domestic annoyances. She urged every woman to belong to a club no matter what the object might be in joining, for the uplifting of the moral tone is one of the benefits, "making better homekeepers, better wives, better mothers."

Mrs. Kinsey also gave a witty but strong appeal for the proper training of children, for in her opinion the seal of true motherhood is to be a mother to every other child bringing us thus to the teaching of Christ, "In as much as ye do it unto the least of these," Mrs. Kinsey ended with another pertinent exhortation to "make your club large, hold your club life high, gather in the teachers, the children, the working women, make it pleasant for the new comer, take up questions of general benefit."

The program was as follows: Mr. Dale and Miss Maud Shea pleased the audience with a cello and piano duet entitled "A Serenade" by Bodine, followed by "Evening Star" from Tanhauser as an encore. "Roses" sung by Master Ben James, showed a good voice unusually well handled in one so young. Jacob Hartlerode gave a humorous recitation "Hooking Up Sister's Back," followed by "Mamma" as an encore. Esther Kohr, of Robertsdale, accompanied by the piano, sweetly sang a solo "Looking For Papa."

This interesting and instructive program was followed by a social cup of tea and wafers, served by the committee with Meadames Wolf and Rothschild doing the honors of the table, creating such an atmosphere of cheerful sociability making the ladies loath to leave and added another red letter day to the credit of the Hammond Woman's club. The report of the meeting of the Federation of Women's clubs to be given by Mrs. Kline was postponed to the next meeting.

THE TIMES COOK BOOK

OLIVE OIL PICKLES.

Slice without peeling enough medium sized cucumbers to fill a gallon jar. Pack in layers with two-thirds cup salt and let stand three hours. Drain carefully, then put in layers again, with two ounces white mustard seed, one ounce celery seed and two large onions chopped fine distributed through the layers. Add one cup olive oil. When all the cucumbers are used cover with good cold vinegar. These are ready for immediate use, but improve with standing.

to say that it made a decided hit is but putting it mildly. This season we are told the company is composed of most of the original New York cast, where the play had a run for over 200 nights. The scenery is said to be all new and up-to-date, while the electrical effects are promised to be of an extraordinary scale. What was one of the most realistic scenes of the play last season was the flying leap made by Mr. Daglen, on his famous Morgan mare, Dolly Varden. This beautiful animal is again with the company, and Mr. Daglen has taken a greater part of the summer to teach her some new and interesting tricks. The wonderful and exciting knife duel in the last act will be most vividly recalled. As a play of dramatic worth "Montana" has been classed as one of the really great dramatic treats of the past few years. George Daglen is again seen in the leading role of Jim Graham, while the charming and beautiful emotional actress, Miss Bessie Lee, is seen in the role of Flo Harper.

The "Christian," adapted from the well-known story of Hall Cain's, is one of the plays to be presented by the Imperial Stock company at the Towle Opera House on Thursday night of next week, and it is probable that no theater patron will allow this opportunity to pass by unheeded. The scenic investiture is equal to that carried by the original company, and if indications can be depended upon a capacity house will be the evidence. Other plays to be presented are "The Lamb and the Brute," "How Hearts Are Broken," "Dealers in White Women," "Her Husband's Sin," "Thelma," "Wormwood," etc. The ever popular matinee will be given Saturday, and popular prices will prevail all week.

Mrs. M. V. Leland of Minneapolis, Minn., is here today the guest of her sister, Mrs. John W. Dyer, for the coming Dyer-Rockwell nuptials. A large art exhibit will be held in the halls of the West Hammond schools Friday and Saturday of this week, Nov. 20 and 21, 1908. Two hundred of the most famous pictures in the world will be on exhibition, many in the exact colors of the originals. The public is cordially invited to attend either day during the following hours: Friday from 7 to 10 p. m., Saturday from 2 to 5 and 7 to 10 p. m. A program will also be given some time during each of these periods and will consist chiefly of music, and there will be a talk on some of the famous paintings. The children of the school will give the program as given below. A small admission will be charged and will be used to purchase pictures for the school.

HIGH SCHOOL TIDINGS. The usual chorus work took place last Friday.

The team now has Mr. McElroy and Mr. Allee's "treats coming to them." The boys well deserved them.

So far from reports quite a number of tickets were sold for the game. As the association is about $50 in debt and as this was the last home game of the season a good number had to be sold to clear expenses.

ATTENDANCE GROWS AT ST. PAUL'S

Christian, because of human frailty often errs, and needs to be converted or turned around again into the path of obedience to God's commands. Our denominational brethren treat conversion as one, single, peculiar event instead of the daily need of those who are earnestly striving after the perfection of the Christian life."

"How does a mission differ from the revivals of various denominational churches?"

"A mission," said the speaker, "is an appeal to one's reason and heart and mind while a revival, so-called, is emotional in character and its effects are very largely evanescent."

"Why do you have candles on the altar?"

"The candles upon the altar are typical of Christ himself, who is the light of the world."

The subject of the sermon was "The Godless Sinner," taken from the text found in St. Luke's gospel, fifteenth chapter, twenty-ninth and thirtieth verses.

The Prodigal Son's Brother. "In the parable of the prodigal son," said Father Howard, "the elder son is a type of the moral man, the good and respectable man who is without the love of God in his heart. Although he had never transgressed his father's commands at any time, still he was self-centered and had no love for his brother."

On Sunday morning there was a celebration of the holy communion at 8 o'clock, Father Howard being the celebrant.

At the morning service at 10:45 a. m. the following queries were answered by the missioner.

"What is the church's view on temperance?" "Moderation in all things," said the speaker, "is what the Scriptures enjoin upon us and abstinence becomes a duty or a privilege, if as St. Paul says, 'We maketh our brother to offend.'"

"How shall a Christian meet modern business conditions?" "A Christian's part, first duty is to God and faithfully performing that he will know how best to meet all the demands of modern business and social life."

"How should we observe Friday?" "Keep it sacred to the memory of the Savior and avoid all social gaiety on that day."

"Are our social conditions hurtful to the church?"

"Too many people allow their lodge and societies interfere with their paramount duty to God's church."

The subject of the sermon was "Keeping Sunday holy," and the text was taken from the eighth, ninth and tenth verses of the twentieth chapter of Exodus.

The speaker urged the proper observance of Sunday as a day of rest and recreation to be devoted first to the worship of the Almighty God and the building up and refreshment of our physical selves for the better performance of our daily duties.

A large congregation gathered in the evening to hear the fifth sermon in the series given by Father Howard, who responded as follows to queries propounded:

"Do you honor the Bible as others do?" "More than all others," said the speaker, "because it was the Anglican bishops and scholars of the Church of England who gave us the Bible and which is used by our protestant brethren as well."

"Secondly because it is read regularly both from the Old and New Testaments at every service of morning and evening prayer."

"Thirdly because the church of God only to whom they were committed, can rightly interpret the Scriptures for our understanding."

THE SUNDAY SERMON. The sermon was a particularly im-
