ANOTHER HARD LEMON FOR J. FRANK.

ONE HANLY, J. FRANK HANLY, is still coming in for his share of the fiercest political lambasting that has ever been handed out to any politician. The Vincennes Commercial is the latest republican paper to consider the chautauquan governor. It says that "the thing that hurts is that the republican leaders let that howling political hypocrite, J. Frank Hanly, dictate the policy of the party. Every man in the republican caucuses knew that county option would kill the republican party, but not a man among them had the courage to express his convictions. They further knew the prohibitionists would stick to their own ticket, and the very day the republican convention adjourned in April they knew they stared sure defeat in the face."

But of all the sore spots on the republican body is J. Frank Hanly, a political fraud, an ingrate, an incompetent monstrosity who is hated by nearly all mankind, and if the presidential campaign had not been on this year, Indiana would have gone democratic by 200,000. All on account of Hanly.

Hanlyism cleaned out the governor's office; Hanlyism cleaned out the congressional delegation and Hanlyism wiped up the republican legislature and ushered the enemy into power.

Have the republicans gotten enough of this howling political dervish? Has he not "done up" the whole pie counter, crust and crumb?

He never fooled us with his hypocritical cant! Never in the world, but the wise men at Indianapolis practiced a kind of self-hypnotism on the selves and some of them believed that all the democrats were going to vote the republican ticket.

But they do not do anything of the kind, do they? They vote their own ticket and are not swayed by any such issues as county local option matters.

Jim Watson had to take the trimming he got because of the fool policies of certain republican fakirs and Hanly is the biggest fakir of the bunch.

We were "wounded in the house of our friends" and all the boys had to go because of the colossal mistakes of those who cared more for self than party.

The congressional delegation, Senator Hemenway and Jim Watson are all splendid men and deserve a better fate and should have been elected."

GET YOUNG BLOOD IN ACTION.

With the announcement of the resignation of James P. Goodrich from the republican state chairmanship comes the news that Colonel W. S. Durbin is to be selected as his successor. With all due respect to Mr. Durbin, who is a veteran in politics, it will do well for the republicans to look about them a little and consider other men who will fill the bill. There is great need of young men who belong to the present generation, men who can do things. Plenty of these have been in evidence during the late campaign. Lake county furnished one example in F. R. Schaaf. It will be a good thing for the party were it to cut loose from the veterans in politics and get some new blood and sinews into the political arena. Old men are good for council but it takes the young men to carry on the battle. An example of the young man in politics is Frank Hitchcock. The wise ones scouted him and shook their locks, but he "made good." Results are what count in politics. The man who "is there" with the results is the man to tie to.

MR. KERN'S WEAK PLEA.

John W. Kern of Indianapolis is trying to get the senatorship from Indiana on the plea that he knew "he had no chance of success" in the late campaign.

Surely Mr. Kern cannot be correctly quoted. Yet papers all over the state give the same version and many of them are democratic. During the campaign Mr. Kern expressed the fullest confidence in his election and said so on the stump time and again, of course other candidates have said the same thing but if Mr. Kern says that he had no confidence in his success it will be an eye-opener for many of his supporters and men who voted for him when they knew that he didn't believe his own words. He certainly induced a lot of people to think he was confident of election and many of them risked their money on Mr. Bryan's and his confidence.

WATCH OUT FOR BURGLARS.

This is the time of the year when the hungry and starving crook who is driven from the highway and byway into the haunts of man and the bigger cities, starts out to rob and slay for loot. He must have food to eat and clothes to wear and in his desperation tries the easiest way to get it—by stealing. Northern Indiana is now overrun with burglars. The daring South Bend affair and the many crimes and hold-ups in various parts of the Calumet region should be a warning to people to leave their houses carefully guarded when they go out at night. There is only one remedy for house-breakers and that is the revolver. The daring thief who fired twice at a Hammond police officer last night shows how desperate they are. Meet lead with lead and be prepared for the visits of the desperate midnight marauders.

EDUCATION FOR SERVICE.

In the matter of education for service, that distinguished educator, President Eliot of Harvard, says:

"The bread and butter motive should not prevail in a university's professional school to any greater extent than it should prevail in a college. In both departments it is reasonable for the individual student to keep in view the means of earning a livelihood; but in both alike the dominant motive should be the desire to be serviceable, and to be well equipped to give, and to enjoy giving, effective service."

GOV-ELECT MARSHALL is trying to discourage the hungry fellows who are crowding up to the pie counter. He says: "I suppose those who voted for me did it for the sake of their party." There is a good deal of ingenuousness about that statement but we are afraid the worthy executive-to-be will have to out with something stronger before he can discourage the pack of place-hunters.

AND INCIDENTALLY the democratic governors-elect who are to speak at one banquet might explain to what extent they owe their election to the rum-vote of their respective states. It is generally admitted by all parties that its assistance was something formidable.

Heart to Heart Talks.

LOVE IS DEVOTION.

Should you chance to read the story of the devotion of General David K. Wardwell in the pages of Balzac you would declare the tale is overdrawn.

Truth is not only stranger than fiction; it is oftentimes more beautiful. General Wardwell was a veteran of two wars, a retired United States army officer. Some time ago Mrs. Wardwell contracted leprosy. As the disease developed she felt she must leave her husband. Secretly and with much suffering she got to Los Angeles and gave herself up to the authorities. They held her for deportation to a leper colony.

But the old warrior would not give up his wife. He pleaded for permission to take her to Mexico. He was refused.

Then one morning the window of his wife's room in the hospital was found open.

The old soldier had taken his wife out by a ladder.

They left a note. It read:

"We've gone to die together."

Fleeing toward Mexico, they stopped at Tombstone, Ariz. The health authorities said the couple must be separated, and the wife returned to Los Angeles.

The grizzled veteran appealed to the federal government but had served so long. There was much correspondence. Finally it was agreed the county authorities should have charge.

Meantime the general and his leper wife went up the side of the mountain and camped in a tent. There they held the fort for several weeks.

General Wardwell courted death.

He said: "I have only a few years to live. I cannot bear to leave my wife to the care of strangers. If I become a leper they will not take her away from me."

But one day the old general caught cold and died shortly afterward. They buried him with military honors and sent the old wife back to Los Angeles.

She is living in a "dog tent" in daily hopes of joining her husband in the land where is no leprosy.

Can you match this story of devotion?

Love is more than sentiment and kisses. It is expressed in a single word—DEVOTION.

Much that masquerades in the guise of love is froth of sentiment, the passing whim of passion.

The love of this old soldier for his leper wife, victim of a loathsome disease, is real love—love void of self, long suffering—love that abides.

LOVE IS DEVOTION.

THIS DATE IN HISTORY.

THIS IS MY 74TH BIRTHDAY.

Henry Lee Higginson.

Henry Lee Higginson, financier, founder of the Harvard Union, and organizer of the Boston Symphony orchestra, was born in New York, Nov. 18, 1834. He entered Harvard college in 1851, but left before his graduation to become a clerk in a Boston banking house. He went to Vienna to study music but returned to his native country at the outbreak of the civil war.

He entered the volunteer service as a private and soon had risen to the grade of major. He was severely wounded in the battle at Aldie, Va. and was retired for disability. After the war he again entered the banking business in Boston and before long he attained prominence as a financier. Major Higginson is widely known for his philanthropic deeds. In addition to the money he generously bestowed upon the famous Boston orchestra he presented a music hall costing $400,000 to the city of Boston. He also has been a generous friend of Harvard. He presented the present athletic field to the university and another of his notable gifts was the famous Harvard Union, the first students' meeting place of its kind in the country.

RANDOM THINGS AND FLINGS

This is the day that news of the proposed Elkins-Abruzzi marriage should be out. Tomorrow the news will be that they are not to be married, and so on ad lib and ad nauseam.

When a woman's friends begin to tell her that she looks young it is time for her to be looking in the glass for gray hair and other horrible signs.

Politics is fast slipping away into the past. For two days now the Indianapolis News hasn't had anything in its columns about "Lake county's Hunky vote."

It doesn't appear to show when

UP AND DOWN IN INDIANA

CARRIES OVER VETO.

After several weeks of discussion and a veto by the mayor of Richmond, Schilling, the city council tonight voted the annual appropriation of $4,000 to the Reid memorial hospital. The mayor's veto was based on the ground that the hospital is not in the proper sense a public institution and that the appropriation is illegal.

WANTS A RECOUNT.

Patrick J. Kelleher, of Columbus, the democratic nominee for state statistician, who was defeated by J. L. Peets, filed a petition in the circuit court this morning asking a recount of the vote in the fifth precinct of Bartholomew county.

CUPID FOOLS TRUANT OFFICER.
Rose Shatto of Columbus, the 14 year old daughter of Thomas Shatto, in preference to going back to school, as she was ordered by the truant officer Friday, attempted to get married Monday morning and in company with her mother and William Heltz applied for a marriage license.

OUTING ENDS IN MARRIAGE.
At the close of the Lakeside house party, held at the Fairview hotel, Lake Manitowish, the last three days, two weddings took place tonight at the Rochester court-house. Miss Anna Plank, the daughter of Charles K. Plank, and Frank Ensign of Montpelier, Ind., and Miss Charlotte Killen and Floyd Nattie of this city were married.

DIES ON WEDDING HOUR.
On the very hour of his forty-sixth wedding anniversary, William H. Laundor of Wabash, 72 years old, merchant and manufacturer for years, died. Forty-six years to the minute before he died he was standing ready to start the march to the marriage altar with Miss Catherine Fierbend in Peru.

PSYCHOLOGY OF CONSUMPTION.
Sadie American of the National Council of Jewish Women delivered a thoughtful and enlightening address this afternoon on "Imagination a Factor in Tuberculosis" at the annual meeting of the National Woman's Council in session at Union City.

A man refuses to stay
Out late at night
That he loves
His wife.

No;
It may prove
That he is just afraid of her.

If you want to have the name of being wise, get in the game and advertise.

Life smiles rather indulgently on some of our half-baked little platitudes no doubt, for when we quit talking wisdom comes.

A man has been found who lived for two years with a broken back. We fail to see anything very remarkable about that, seeing what Col. Bryan has gone through.

A pleasant surprise for our wife is to get home from a bargain sale and find out that she has really bought something that she needed.

We have never felt that there is quite so appropriate a name for a South Hohman street car about 6 p. m., as a human sardine box.

A MAN FEELS THAT HE WAS NEVER SO MUCH OF A MAN AS
WHEN HE IS TELLING SOME LITTLE
BLUE-EYED KITTEN OF A GIRL
WHAT A SAD OLD DOG HE USED TO BE.

It quite interesting to note that a lawyer's nerves could be shocked in a street car accident. We always thought they were bomb-proof, but Mr. Gould of Indiana Harbor says not.

TRUST A WOMAN TO FORGET THAT THE MAN WHO STANDS PAT
IS ONLY BLUFFING—IN BOTH CARDS
AND LIFE IT WORKS OUT THE SAME WAY.

Voice of the People

HOPES HE WILL DIE.

Highlands, Ind., Nov. 17, 1908.
To the Editor of THE TIMES: I, the undersigned, regret the experience which I had some time ago when stopping at one of the public business places at Highlands, Ind., and thought it best to warn the people at large to be careful in leaving parcels, packages or barrels after dark in their vehicles, as they might disappear, their contents are liable to be consumed or confiscated, which depends wholly on the contents. But I certainly do hope that party who had the pleasure of stealing a poor man's barrel of apples will die in the attempt at eating them.

Assailant Of Prosecutor Heney A Suicide In San Francisco Jail.

Morris Haas

San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 18.—The inquest over the body of Morris Haas, who shot Francis J. Heney, will be held Thursday or Friday. At the inquest an effort will be made to ascertain how Haas secured the derringer with which he killed himself.

Superior Judge Lawler brushed aside dilatory motions made by attorneys of Abraham Ruef yesterday and the trial for bribery of the former political boss, which was interrupted by the attempt to assassinate Prosecutor Francis J. Heney, will proceed today. Testimony for the state will be offered unless the defense delays the hearing in some unexpected way.

Judge Lawler yesterday denied the motion of Ruef for a change of venue, continuance of thirty days, and dismissal of the jury.

Prosecutor Heney is recovering with surprising rapidity and it is predicted that in a few weeks he will be able to resume his prosecution of the graft case.
