"PAID IN FULL."
The subject of dramatic criticism is an interesting one, to theatrical managers and playwright alike. The critic, as a general proposition, is an unusual, learned person and there are thousands who would no more go to a play until their favorite critic had endorsed it than they would willingly pluck their own eyes. It is no exaggeration to state that hundreds of plays have gone upon the rocks of defeat simply because the critics did not care for it, and there may have been much of worth in it. To find the critics of New York and Chicago all in a universal mood is a rare thing, but that is what "Paid in Full" found when Wagenhals and Kemper presented this play of contemporary life in America, by Eugene Walter, at the Astor theatre, New York, and the grand opera house, Chicago. By every individual critic the play was hailed as a startling success and their criticisms were as a unit in declaring that it was "the play of the hour," and not only did they eulogize it the day after production, but even today they are directing unusual attention to it as the play with the direct appeal to every class of citizen. The success of "Paid in Full" was unequivocal. Mr. Walter has performed a masterful piece of work in the photographic drawing of all his characters, there is not a weak figure among them, and for virility, forcefulness and real life the play has no equal on the American stage today. A specially organized company and a production of unusual excellence will be offered here by the Wagenhals and Kemper company at the Towle opera house, Sunday matinee and night, Dec. 27. "Paid in Full" has to its credit a run of five months in Chicago, and its reception there was the same as in New York, where it is now in its second year. The same care and discretion which marked the selection of the cast and the building of the production at the Astor theatre, New York, will be exhibited in the cast and production to be seen in this city.

HIGH SCHOOL TIDINGS.

The freshmen are confident that they will win the eighth grade boys, and the eighth graders are telling how the freshmen will stand at the bottom of the list. The game will be played as a curtain raiser to the big game on Wednesday night. Walter Kennedy is coaching the freshmen and Julius Meyer the eighth graders. A good contest is looked for.

Hammond will play the first basketball game of the season next Wednesday evening in the Central building auditorium. They will line up against Hobart. No reports could be obtained from the visitors' camp, but the local boys will be on their guard and start in with a vim to try and ascend the first round of the ladder leading to the championship. A small admission of 15 cents will be charged. Come one, come all and cheer the boys on to victory.

Mr. Learning is beginning to think of the contest at chorus work. Last Friday he stated that he would pick out about thirty people to sing in this chorus. Practice will begin at 8:30 in the morning as Mr. Learning said the best results were brought about when he had the chorus practicing at this time. Although Hammond was beaten at the contest last year they expect to make up for it in the coming contest.

Manager McElroy is arranging the schedule of games for the basketball season. Several good contests have been booked, but the schedule as yet is not ready for publication.

The word reserves its greatest prizes for but one thing, and that is initiative. Initiative is doing the right thing without being told. The next best thing to doing the right thing without being told, is to do that which told once. It is this initiative the pupils seek in high school. In doing the right work he is confronted by problems which must be answered by himself, and this develops initiative.

Professor Spohn is arranging the Christmas program to be given on next Wednesday afternoon. It will consist of recitations, speeches and select readings and will be very appropriate to the occasion.

Mr. McElroy stated that if the names come in as fast as they have been for students to remain the ninth period, a tenth period might have to be instituted. This would be from 4:30 to 5 p. m., but this would not make as great a hit as the one from 4 to 4:30.

All the persons taking books from the school library are requested to see the librarian, Margery Sutton. Several confusions have arisen about the books and all this can be avoided if all will follow the right plan.

BOWLING CONTEST A SUCCESS

Dr. B. W. Chidlaw Finds Himself the Kingpin in Masonic Match Games at Temple Last Saturday Night.

The bowling contest which was held in the basement of the Masonic temple, on the occasion of the opening of the new alleys there last Saturday night, was a great success and was attended by about 150 Masons and their friends.

The games were started off by A. M. Turner and William H. Gostlin, who proved to be one of the cards of the evening. When Mr. Turner started his scudum-like arms to swinging, the kingpin trembled with fear of impending disaster to himself and his family yet alive.

The postmaster, however, did not seem to be able to frighten the pins a bit, and as the ball seemed to interfere with the calves of his legs the total number of pins bowled over was not considerable. It became apparent early in the game the charge that Gostlin had been going to Chicago to practice was unfounded. The final score was 130 for Mr. Turner and 83 for Mr. Gostlin. Charges were freely made that the pin setters had been bribed, but Postmaster Gostlin had to pay for the game and the supper just the same.

Danny Dreamer on Deck.
One of the most interesting games was between Dan Moran and Peter J. Lyons. Danny Dreamer Moran had been practicing for days for this contest. He knew that Peter Lyons was a good bowler in the old days, but he thought he might have retrograded and decided to put one over on the city engineer.

Just before the contest he was seen in the Bradford alleys with his coat off, his trousers rolled up and all in a sweat in an effort to get into practice.

Danny Dreamer saw himself appear in the alleys before the crowd of his brother Masons. He saw himself making the little tantalizing bow to the long line of spectators and then, as the ball shot out from his firm grasp, he saw the pins go scattering into the pit at the end of the alley.

How did it really happen? Well, Dan Dreamer Moran got up and all he seemed able to do was to pick off the pins on the edges. Somehow they seemed glued to the spots, and there was nothing doing for Danny. The upshot of the thing was that Lyons beat Moran by the score of 139 to 99.

Red-Fitzgerald Match Laughable.
One of the most laughable games was that bowled by John E. Fitzgerald and F. S. Betz. These men may be somebody in the business world, but they don't amount to shucks in the eyes of the pin-setters. They were successful in this, that they bowled the smallest number of points during the evening. Mr. Fitzgerald beat Mr. Fitzgerald by the score of 70 to 36 and the aggregate number of their points was only 106. At one time during the game Betz and Fitzgerald sent their balls into the alley for seven consecutive times, which is going some.

W. J. McAleer and Fred Newell, who were expected to display some fancy bowling, could not get used to the new alleys, and McAleer beat Newell by one point, bowling 128 to Fred's 127. The highest score of the evening was that bowled by Dr. B. W. Chidlaw, who reached the high mark of 173. He bowled against Dr. T. W. Oberlin, who bowled 147. As neither of these men are in practice, that is considered good.

One of Funny Incidents.
One of the funniest incidents of the evening occurred in the contest between Morris Dobson and Jack Northland. After the game had been finished and Dobson had been beaten by a nose, he stepped over to J. T. Hutton and offered him a dime in payment for the games.

"One dollar and a half, please," said Mr. Hutton.

"Vat," said the astonished Hammond merchant, and then he mumbled something about, "If I had known that," while the boys gave him the laugh. He proved to be a good sport, however, and paid for the game.

The following is the scores of the various contests which were pulled off Saturday evening:
