DINNER GOWN ON CLASSIC LINES.

Deep blue crepe de chine is the material of which this graceful gown is built—a dark, cool blue like the sky on a summer night. Embroidery in self tone is placed on the wide band which encircles the figure above the waistline, and this band continues down the front in two long tabs or stoles. The little bodice is of silver net embroidered in the blue shade, the sleeves being laced with silver cord.

SIXTY NEW BOOKS ARE PLACED IN HAMMOND LIBRARY

Book lovers and patrons of the Hammond public library will be pleased to learn that sixty additional volumes have been placed on the shelves.

The works are of a general nature, there being books for the scientist, the student of religion, history and the arts. Probably one of the most interesting of these new works is that "The World I Live In," by Helen Keller, the deaf, dumb and blind girl. Some of the works are of a practical nature, as, for instance, those on celery, tomato and bean culture and a book entitled "Practical Dairy Bacteriology." There is food for thought for the suffragettes in the book entitled "Sex Equality." For the student of religion there is a generous field of fourteen volumes dealing largely with Oriental faiths.

Mrs. Jennie Sawyer, the librarian, has already catalogued the books which may now be had. The list is appended:

List of Sixty New Books.
Through the Gates of the Netherlands—Wallace.
The World I Live In—Helen Keller.

A WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENT.

The announcement of the marriage of Miss Aleta Werner, formerly of Hammond, but now of Chicago, to Mr. Davis, also of Chicago, will be of interest to many Hammond people, friends of Miss Werner. The ceremony occurred today at the home of the bride's parents and the young couple left immediately for Detroit, Mich., to be the guests of Mr. Davis' relatives for a few weeks. The bride was a very popular young society girl in Hammond and made her home with her parents in South Hohman street. She attended the Hammond high school during her residence here and was very prominent in musical circles. Since moving to Chicago she completed her course in a Chicago conservatory and has been playing at a north side theatre in Chicago. The many friends of Mrs. Davis will extend to her congratulations and their heartfelt wishes for a happy future.

Washington Society Girls.

Is an extravaganza company that will make its appearance here for the first time in an entirely new departure in theatricals. There will be three distinct styles of entertainment, and it is said, the above is the only organization of its kind traveling. Rarely, if ever, has it been the good fortune of our theatergoers to witness a company of this kind, and they should not fail to grasp the opportunity. There are a number of novel acts who will make their first appearance in this country. A new burlesque from the pen of a popular author will be one of the main features, introducing ten clever comedians and twenty handsome and talented young maidens. An olio of polite vaudeville will also be introduced. The costumes that will be worn in the various production are said to be marvels of elegance and beauty. Appropriate scenery is also carried to properly present each production. The musical portion of the program, it is claimed, has been written especially for this company, and some very classical and catchy melodies are introduced. It is safe to say that the management have spared neither time nor expense to thoroughly equip the show with all the necessary requirements. The Washington Society Girls will be seen at the Towle Opera House next Saturday.
