WALKING HAT IN FELT.
This smart little felt shape, with the narrow brim and the upward rolling on the left side, is trimmed with a soft shade of gray satin. Like the majority of the fall hats this model is trimmed on the left side. There is a design in braid shown on the ribbon trimming. This is an ideal hat for windy days, as a veil is easily adjusted over it, and when a strong wind blows one does not feel as if one's collar were going with it.

musical program was rendered during the early evening after which Mr. E. R. Cross of the First Christian church gave a temperance talk which was listened to with a great deal of interest by those present. He drew a very vivid picture in the minds of his hearers of the horror of a drunkard and the liquor traffic. After this he talked of temperance work in Indiana. A dainty luncheon followed the program. The meetings will be given every month and the public is cordially invited to attend. Instructive programs will be arranged for all of these evening meetings.
