

RUSSIAN POINTS OUT NEW DANGER

Expects An Alliance Between Japs, Ruman. Bolsheviks and Germans.

BY ROBERT J. PREW.
STAFF CORRESPONDENT I. N. SERVICE.
PARIS, August 1.—M. Tchakovsky, head of the anti-Bolshevik government in northern Russia, left for London today to attempt to persuade the British government not to withdraw its troops from Archangel front.

M. Tchakovsky's departure followed a conference with Sergius Sazonoff, former Russian foreign minister, and Prince George Lvoff, representative of the Omak government, as well as other agents of anti-Bolshevik agencies in Russia.

Occupation of Petrograd by allied forces is being urged by M. Tchakovsky. He branded the announcement by Col. Winston Churchill, British war secretary, that British forces would be withdrawn from Northern Russia in a few months as a calamity.

"The most energetic fight would be made in London to induce the British not to haul their colors down in northern Russia," M. Tchakovsky said. He expressed fears that such action would deprive the allies of all their prestige in Russia.

"It is an inconceivable breach of faith to withdraw after the allies had committed themselves to a policy of protecting anti-Bolsheviks," asserted M. Tchakovsky. "The only honorable expedient is for the allies to occupy Petrograd."

"The world's greatest danger today is an alliance between the Russian Bolsheviks, the Japanese and the Germans. The league of nations would be powerless against such a combination."

"If the entente abandons their friends in Russia Bolshevikism will spread unchecked and make such an alliance an imminent possibility."

"The entente must break off the shackles of Lenin's enslaved hordes, otherwise the world and civilization will be plunged into utter darkness."

Whole Family Follow Sons to War With "Jazz" Cure for Homesickness

Mother and Three Daughters—After Boys Had Gone to France—Decide They'll Go, Too

Form Rag-Time Orchestra and Are Driving Away the Blues of Thousands of Boys Overseas

When the two sons of Mrs. Elise Bolander, a musician, of Berkeley, Cal., went to war, the mother decided that the remainder of the family should go, too. The remainder of the family consisted of Mrs. Bolander and three daughters, Alice, Mabel and Pearl. They are all concert artists, and when the first call went out from the Y.M.C.A. for entertainers they enlisted as a unit.

Mrs. Bolander played the guitar and ukulele in this private quartet. Pearl played the cornet, Alice the drums, oboe, piano and accordion and Mabel the piano and clarinet. The quartet was the "jazziest" orchestra, so the boys said, that ever visited a cantonment.

For more than a year this group played the Y.M.C.A. circuit, visiting practically every camp in the country and playing to hundreds of thousands of men. They were not allowed to go across because of the two boys on the other side, but when the armistice was signed the request for overseas service, which they had had in for more than a year, was granted. They have been in France for several months, playing rag-time in camps and at the leave areas. They made their first appearance at the Pavilion, in Paris, and were an instantaneous success.

While the dough is exacting, and wants his opera good when he does hear it, he more often wants rag-time, and this is the music that has helped the Y.M.C.A. drive away the A.E.F. malady of homesickness.

The regular weekly meeting of Dorcas Rebekah lodge will be held Saturday evening at the L. O. O. F. hall in State street.

Several relatives and friends of Mrs. Kate Stevens surprised her at her home in East Sibley street last evening in celebration of her seventieth birthday anniversary. The evening was spent in an enjoyable social way and refreshments were served. She was the recipient of many gifts. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Skellinger and daughters Vivian and Thelma, Mr. and Mrs. Adrien Jackson and daughter Frances, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Towle and son Gail, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Sess and daughter Laura, Mrs. C. E. BE SURE TO BRING YOUR BATHING SUIT

Almost every invitation at this time of the year is sure to include that demand to "be sure to bring the bathing suit along." And invariably the young person who has lived too far from the seashore for nine months of the year is not prepared. The stores, however, are full of such attractive suits as this one of black surf satin and she may choose from large assortments one which will suit her beauty and purse at the same time.
