

BRITISH TO PULL OUT OF RUSSIA

NEVER THOUGHT
SON DEAD
Gary Father Has Been Expecting to Hear From Him all the Time

"While I have not heard from my boy in some time, neither I nor my wife have given a thought that he was dead," said Peter Larson, caretaker of the Reynolds' building in Gary this morning contrary to the story carried by Chicago and a Gary paper yesterday.

Yesterday morning the Herald Examiner printed a picture of Mr. Larson's son, Lieut. C. L. Larson, catching him in the act of examining papers of a German barge on the Rhine near Coblenz. Of course it was the story of his son he was supposed to have almost fainted because he was believed to have been killed in action. The story also stated that Mr. Larson had been scanning the casualty lists and had written to the government departments for information. He denied all but the picture of his son.

"This is my son," said Mr. Larson, "and while I am glad to see his picture, I do not like all that tommyrot in the papers though."

No British troops are involved in the Baltic states," said the official statement.

"So far as this country is concerned, the only part taken has been to supply materials to the Poles and the Baltic peoples whom the allies are supporting under the peace treaty."

The materials supplied by the British mission are going merely to the army of the new government of Northwest Russia to the Esthonians and the Poles. The operations in this part of Russia (north and southwest of Petrograd) are under the control of Gen. Judenitch, who, in turn, is under Admiral Kolchak, head of the Omsk government.

The suggestion that these forces are moving upon Petrograd is unfounded so far as the British authorities are concerned."

MEX. PRESS CHANGES ITS ATTITUDE

Growing Irritation Over the Hunt for Bandits Seen
In Its Comments

(BULLETIN)

INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE
WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—The attitude of the Mexico City press with reference to the presence of American troops on soil of the southern republic is undergoing a change.

A note of irritation was evident in translation of press comments reaching Washington today. During the first few days following the dispatch of the Eighth cavalry in pursuit of the bandits who held two American aviators for ransom, Mexican editors referred in mild and conciliatory terms to the situation. It was evident from advices reaching Washington today that they have resort to a different view of the situation.

MARFA, Tex., Aug. 22.—Reinforcements of American troops and machine-guns have been brought up and stationed at strategic points along the Mexican border. All the American army posts in the Big Bend section have been strengthened. This move was explained today by army officers as merely a precautionary measure and in the nature of a practice maneuver for the men.

No apprehension is felt for an attack at any point in this district either by the bandits of Carranzista troops. Nor have the officers any fear of a clash between the Carranzista and the troops of the Eighth cavalry now pursuing the Mexican outlaws. American cavalrymen rode hard all day Friday through the mountains without again coming into contact with any groups of the outlaw gang of Jesus Renteria that held two American airmen for ransom, according to reports reaching headquarters.

The Carranzista troops in the region now being combed by the Americans are not in great numbers. Such Carranzista units as have come into contact with the American cavalrymen have shown no disposition to interfere.

One of the most painful cases ever called to the attention of the Gary police was unearthing in a report made by Dr. Reyer last night.

Angry because she had visited a neighbor's house, to play with another little girl, Andrews, 21, took a shovel in his intent to chastise her and beat out little body with it, causing severe bruises.

Because the mother objected to his form of punishment he kicked and beat her.

Effort to locate the boy last night proved without avail. But the police were still on the trail this morning and found by officer Ernest asleep in bed at home with his shoe and clothing still on. When he was brought to the police station officers were surprised and it is lucky that the young boy was not manhandled.

The police recognize him as the same lad that was brought to the station last winter, when it was learned that there was no food or fuel in the house and he refused to go to work. The case will come up before Judge Dunn today.
