NOTICE TO SUBSCRIBERS.

If you fail to receive your copy of THE TIMES as promptly as you have in the past, please do not think it has been lost or was not sent on time. Remember that the mail service is not what it used to be and that complaints are received from many sources about the train and mail service. The Times has increased its mailing equipment and is striving earnestly to reach its patrons on time. Be prompt in advising us when you do not get your paper and we will act promptly.

OUR SPLENDID MAIL SERVICE.

Another of the multitudinous examples of the fine mail service this country is cursed with has come to the attention of Harvey's Weekly wherein a letter mailed in New York took six days to get to Brooklyn across the river.

If the letter in question had gone direct to Brooklyn it may be admitted that six days for a mail transit of two or three miles appears excessive. But this letter did not go direct from Manhattan to the neighboring borough. It went by way of Chicago. Mr. Burleson's geographical and mail-routing experts decided that the short cut from Manhattan to Brooklyn was around through the states of New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and back again, possibly through Canada. Under that ruling Chicago was as naturally the proper distribution point for Brooklyn mail as any other place. Now, six days in transit for a New York local delivery letter so routed is not excessive. It is, on the contrary, briskly expeditious.

We had occasion not long ago to call attention to an analogous instance. In that case a letter mailed in Buffalo took something like two months in getting across the state to an address in Westchester county. But when the facts were disclosed it appeared that the letter had gone around by Great Britain, Liverpool being its last British postmark. Would any fair-minded person say that two months or so was too long for a letter, started from Buffalo, to make a European tour and get around to Westchester county?

For argument's sake, it may be granted that Mr. Burleson's experts in the instances above cited left something to be desired in the way of accuracy. But the letters in both cases got to their destinations, did they not?

WON'T BE BOND-FIMFLAMMED.

Holders of the temporary Third Liberty Loan bonds from which the last of the interest coupons have been put can now exchange these certificates for the present bonds with further interest coupons attached.

The fact that the last coupons have been cut from the temporary issue has led some unprincipled scoundrels to seek to buy the bonds at a much reduced price, on the false explanation that they have lost much of their value.

This is not true, and no owner should sell them for less than they cost.

All you need to do to get the new bonds in exchange for the old is to go to your own bank or trust company, the bank where you have your account, or the one through which you purchased the bonds, officials of the Federal Reserve Bank announce.

The exchange need not cost you a penny. Any one who attempts to charge you for the exchange, or tries to get you to pay a fee for getting them exchanged, is obtaining money under false pretenses.

Take your bond to the bank where you keep your savings and the officials there will do you any needed service free of cost.

Don't be flimflammed out of any fee or influenced to sell by the false statement that your bond is not worth every cent Uncle Sam said he would pay you.

AN EXCHANGE OF STUDENTS.

Everyone may recall the exchange of professors between German and American universities before the war, a subtle form of propaganda much encouraged by the former kaiser, and the Rhodes scholarships at Oxford, bequeathed by the great British imperialist to promote the unity of the Anglo-Saxon and Teutonic peoples by bringing together American, German and English students.

Since the war the German Rhodes scholarships have been dropped. Instead there has sprung up an Oxford University British-American club which has for its purpose the promotion of understanding between the British, Colonial and American students there. At present about 100 American undergraduates and 200 from the overseas dominions are enrolled at Oxford, who will form the nucleus of the new club.

This movement revives the suggestion that instead of an exchange of professors the British and American universities might arrange an exchange of students, that a few thousand British students be sent to American universities and a few thousand American students to British universities each year, the respective governments to pay the expense. Such a "get-together" movement would be two-sided, fair and mutually beneficial. It would mean that a leaven of first-hand information about the other country and people would be exchanged annually of which there is on both sides of the greatest need, particularly in the altered relations of the two nations as a result of partnership in the war and no less because of the problems of the future in which the need for mutual understanding will be of vital importance to each.

IT'S RIGHT AFTER 'EM.

William Randolph Hearst prints a page article in his publications showing that there is a big popular demand for his nomination to the presidency. But he modestly declares that they will have to throw him down and tie it to him before he will submit. Colonel Bryan seems to be in the same position. There are others. It is really surprising how many distinguished citizens are being pursued by the presidency, and are being compelled to flee from the office. There is some consolation in the sweetly solemn thought that the presidency never was, as a matter of fact, thrust on a man who didn't want it. A position that even a Lincoln had to seek is not going to run itself to death chasing any of the statesmen or near statesmen of the present period. As for Mr. Hearst and Mr. Bryan, they really ought to rest for the present on their record of having helped put the present national administration in power. That ought to be glory enough to last them for a life time.

WHAT THE average man would like to know is this: Are the Soviets offering peace or praying for peace?

WITH THE predicted $1 haircut, will the barber yearn for a proportionally larger tip?

Give them a room of their own

"Keep your hands off the piano—take your feet out of that chair—stop that hammering—Do sit down and read a book."

That's what the children hear from morning to night as soon as cold weather begins.

There's no place to play. And healthy children must play. Why not give them a room of their own?

Isn't there some space in the attic or some unused room that could be fixed for them. No need for the muss or delay of plastering. Simply take big sturdy panels of Beaver Board, nail right over the studding and joists, panel and paint to suit your individual taste.

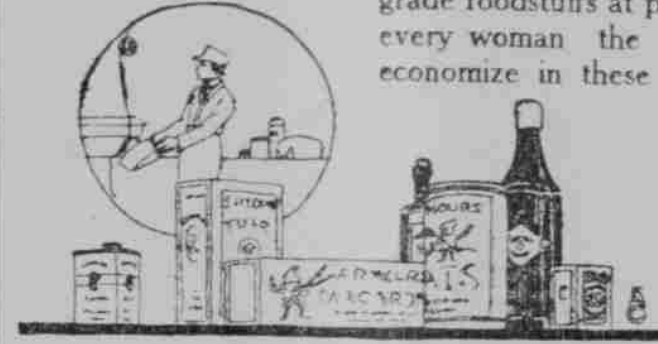

Beaver Board is real lumber, sized and sealed by an exclusive "Sealtite" process that makes it impervious to weather or climatic changes, and it makes wonderfully attractive walls and ceilings, as permanent and desirable as hardwood floors. Call us and ask for estimates and samples.
