THEATER HOLOCAUST TAKES LIVES OF 160

GAS TANK IN BOYERTOWN, PA., PLAYHOUSE EXPLODES, KILLING SCORES.

EXACT DEATH ROLL CANNOT BE TOLD

Awful Panic in Burning Auditorium When Cry of "Fire" Startles Audience Estimated at Four Hundred—Recovering Bodies Commenced.

Boyertown, Pa., Jan. 15.—When daylight dawned Tuesday the full extent of the awful fire when the Rhoades opera house burned was fully apparent. The list of dead is placed at 160 and the injured at 75. Exactly how many were killed may never be known, for among the victims were a number of visitors who may have no relatives to trace their untimely fate. It is estimated that there were 400 persons in the playhouse when the explosion of the gas tank occurred. The tank was being used in connection with pictures. An amateur performance of "Scottish Reformation," for the benefit of St. John's Lutheran Sunday school, was being produced. Instantly the explosion occurred some one yelled "fire," and in almost less time than it takes to tell the center of the opera house was a blazing furnace. The rapidity with which the flames spread was caused by the upsetting of the coal oil lamps used as footlights.

Awful Panic Kills Scores. Some of the persons on the stage endeavored to allay the frenzy of the frightened women and children and quiet the audience. But even the men seemed to lose all control of themselves and fought with the women and children who composed the greater part of the audience to gain the street. In this manner many women and children, who might otherwise have escaped the flames, were forced back and trampled upon. Particularly was this the case with those who were caught on the stairs. Pandemonium reigned and the mad scramble for the exits was simply indescribable. The weaker ones were brushed aside and in many instances trampled to death. Scores of persons on the second floor, seeing the awful jam on the stairs, risked their lives by jumping from the windows. In this way several were so badly injured that they died before reaching any of the numerous temporary hospitals. Boyertown is a village of about 2,500 people, and there is scarcely a house in the little town that has not been afflicted.

Fire Controlled at Last. The fire was not brought under control until Tuesday after assistance had arrived from Reading and Pottsville. Physicians and nurses were also sent to Boyertown from Reading and aided materially in alleviating the sufferings of the injured who had leaped from the windows in their mad rush to escape the flames. Tuesday about 50 members of the state constabulary, which is stationed in this district, came over from Reading on a special train. The work of removing the bodies from the debris will be unusually tedious and hazardous. When the crush was at its height the floor gave way, precipitating many persons to the basement, and the bodies of these will be buried beneath the charred timbers and tons of bricks from the ruined walls. In addition to the opera house and Farmers' National Bank, Rahm's hardware store and the dwellings of George Rahm, Harry Penypacker and Alfred Zashard were burned. The monetary loss will amount to about $75,000.

Songs; Then Terrible Blast. The people taking part had finished their songs and, incidentally to the drama, a number of pictures were shown by a moving picture machine. This was operated by H. W. Fisher of Carlisle, Pa., who used calcium lights. While he was operating the machine there was a flash and a loud report and the people sitting in the rear of the opera house near the machine arose in fright and rushed toward the stage. Their action caused a panic in the audience and many of the people, thinking the building was afire, rushed toward the stage. The young people who were taking part in the performance motioned to them to keep back and resume their seats but the frightened spectators attempted to climb onto the stage. One of the young people on the stage more excited than the others made a motion as to repel them and in his excitement he overturned one of the coal oil lamps that were used as footlights for the stage. It fell with a crash into the auditorium and exploded.

Abaze in an Instant. In an instant the stage floor was ablaze and the frightened people surged toward the rear again. The youthful actors fled from the stage and managed to escape, clad in their stage garments. The crowd in front of the auditorium fled to the rear and they were met by a crowd from the rear frantic to escape from the peril of the burning picture machine in the rear. The mob became panic-stricken, and strong men beat down women and children in their efforts to get out of the building. Frank Callen, a blacksmith, seized his four-year-old son and made his way to a window. When he attempted to return to get his wife he was in a struggling mass of humanity and it was impossible for him to reach her. The flames spread rapidly and many of the audience were caught and overcome before they could reach the fire escapes. The frenzied people fought with each other to reach the front entrance.

Confusion After Holocaust. All is confusion and it was late Tuesday night before anything like an orderly count could be made. What may be a true statement of the cause of the disaster was given by an eyewitness. Toward the end of the performance the man in charge of the moving picture machine was testing his apparatus and it gave forth a hissing sound. This caused a stir in the audience and somebody on the stage lifted the curtain for the evident purpose of seeing what the commotion was about. On the front of the stage was a thin tank about eight feet long and a few inches higher than this were placed 12 kerosene lamps which served as footlights. The curtain tilted this tank over and started the subsequent fire. There were 310 admissions to the performance, and it is believed that about 400 persons were in the hall, including the performers, when the fire started.

State Officials in Charge. The state constabulary immediately took charge and roped off the scene of horror. Tuesday a gasoline tank exploded and blew down the standing walls, and but for the precaution of the guards many others would have been killed. The building which was destroyed was a large brick structure, three stories high, and with a frontage of 125 feet on Philadelphia avenue. The first floor was occupied by the Farmers National bank and a hardware store. The second and third floors were occupied by the opera house and a lodge room. The building also extended on Washington street for a distance of 250 feet. In the rear of the bank were four large dwelling houses which were part of the building. These were burned. Survivors and spectators unite in saying that the attending scenes were the most horrible that can be imagined. People threw themselves from the balcony into the body of the theater, hoping to find some means of escape. Others jumped from the windows of the building.

Paris, Jan. 15.—The first sequel to the fight between Count Boni de Castellane, the divorced husband of Anna Gould, and Prince Helle De Saxe, his cousin, was placed in the courtroom Tuesday when Count Boni and Count Jean De Castellane, his brother, appeared to answer to the charge of assault brought by Prince Helle. Replying to a question put by the judge, Count Boni admitted that he had spat in the face of his cousin, but only after provocation. Count Jean denied that he had struck Prince Helle and maintained that he was in no wise connected with the fight. Owing to the absence of the attorney for Count Boni further hearing of the case was postponed until February 4.

DEFENSE IN EFFORT TO PROVE INSANITY

THAW LAWYERS TAKE UP LINES OF THEIR CASE ONE YEAR AGO.

FAMILY PHYSICIAN TAKES THE STAND

Tells of Treating Man, Accused of White Murder, for St. Vitus' Dance and Measles—Allists Are Present When the Court is Opened.

New York, Jan. 15.—The defense began the presentation of its case at the trial of Harry K. Thaw Tuesday. Physicians who had attended the insane members of the defendant's family were called upon by revoking the rule of confidential relations between doctor and patient. District Attorney Jerome succeeded in blocking some of the intended testimony. One of the witnesses was a former teacher of Thaw at Wooster university, who declared the boy's conduct so long ago as 1886 was irrational.

That insanity pure and simple is the defense on which Thaw's attorneys will rest their case was made plain in the opening address of Martin W. Littleton, Thaw's chief counsel. The attorney promised to show the jury that Thaw had been insane since a boy, that the burden of insanity came to him from both the paternal and maternal line, and that in the very nature of things he could not have been mentally responsible for his actions on the night of the tragedy. How Mr. Littleton expected to show that Thaw is now sane, if he does expect to do so, he did not say.

Delay in Opening. There was a delay of half an hour beginning the trial Tuesday, Justice Dowling having been caught in a subway blockade down town. John T. Deemar, the Thaw family physician, was the first witness called to the stand. His home is at Kittanning, Pa. Dr. Deemar testified he treated Harry Thaw for St. Vitus' dance and measles. He repeated this testimony and also told of attending members of the Copley family, the mother's branch of the defendant's antecedents. Dr. Deemar said a brother of the older Mrs. Thaw turned an imbecile. Dr. C. G. Wagner of Binghamton, N. Y., and Mr. Smith Ely Jelliffe, two alienists of the defense, were present when the court opened.

Objection Sustained. Dr. Deemar was asked as to the present mental condition and whereabouts of John Ross, a maternal cousin of the defendant, but District Attorney Jerome objected on the grounds that the doctor obtained his information while acting in a professional capacity, and it would require a waiver from his client before he could testify. Justice Dowling sustained the objection over the protest of Mr. Littleton, who declared it did not lie in the mouth of the prosecuting officer to raise such an objection. On cross-examination Attorney Jerome drew out the fact that Henry Copley, while incapacitated for mental work, was never confined in an asylum. S. Butler of Roanoke, Va., former assistant physician at the Western lunatic asylum, Staunton, Va., where Horace S. Thaw, a paternal cousin of Harry Thaw, was confined, next testified.

Other Defense Witnesses. When he was asked as to Horace Thaw's condition up to the time of his death, Jerome again objected and was sustained. The district attorney also successfully objected to the introduction in evidence of the commitment papers prepared when Horace Thaw was admitted to the asylum on the ground that the evidence was hearsay. Mr. Littleton took an exception to this ruling. Dr. L. S. Foster of Norfolk, Va., formerly of the Eastern state hospital for the insane at Williamsburg, Va., where William S. Thaw, another cousin of the defendant, was confined, next was called to the stand. Dr. Foster was asked to identify the records of the asylum as to the admittance of William S. Thaw, and did so. Mr. Littleton recalled Dr. Deemar and succeeded in circumventing the former objections. Dr. Deemar said he ceased to be Ross's physician after the latter had been committed to the Hope institution of feeble-minded.

COUNT VON KANTITZ TALKS OF FINANCIAL SITUATION.

Reichstag in Berlin Listens to Suggestion That President is Responsible Party. Berlin, Jan. 15.—In the course of an interpellation in the reichstag Tuesday in reference to the high rate of discount charged by the Imperial bank, Count von Kantitz, conservative, suggested that President Roosevelt was responsible for the critical financial situation existing today throughout the entire world, and the direct cause thereof, according to the speaker, was to be found in the president's "threats against the trusts." Count von Kantitz said that the opponents of the trusts must recognize that interference with the financial activity of the United States, which is based on the operations of the trusts, means interference with the entire economic situation in America. "America's error has been that she allowed the trusts to go so long without interference," said the speaker.

Count von Kantitz then reviewed what he called "the frenzied finances" of America of the past few months and drew the attention of his hearers to the recent fight for gold in Europe. He said that the amount of gold leaving Europe could not be estimated exactly, but that in the month of November alone 158,000,000 marks (about $39,500,000) had left Germany for the United States. Continuing, he declared that the assistance given by the American treasury department had very little effect in improving conditions.
