Stop, Think, Think Seriously, Think Deeply

The churches have a claim on YOU, because they are doing more than banks, manufacturing plants or any other industry to determine financial values and stabilize the wealth of the country. They are demanding the passage and rigid enforcement of laws that will cleanse our body politic and guarantee the safety of the rising generation.

They stand for the complete elimination of every form of evil from civil and social life. They are giving the world its highest and noblest ideals of citizenship, and the best expression of moral and religious life.

The churches are the custodians of the Gospel, and the Gospel offers the only hypothesis on which the great economic questions of the day can be satisfactorily settled.

THEY'LL GET YOU SOME WAY

City Scalawags Hard to Beat, According to Testimony of Visitor From Jimson Junction.

"If them infernal scalawags up there in Kay See can't get you one way they will another!" disgruntledly asserted the gent from Jimson Junction, who was just back from a brief stay in the Big Burg. "Pretend to do you a favor and then skin you alive! Tuther night in my room in the hotel I was 'tending to my own business when a feller in the next room yelled what in all this and that was coming off."

"I'm nailing my clothes to the floor, if it's any of your by-gosh business!" I hollered back. "I'm a tollable sound sleeper, and don't aim to have my best suit stole while I'm slumbering."

"Why, you pea-green yokel!" he yelled back, "what will you do if the fire department goes roaring by in the middle of the night and you can't yank on your clothes and run after it?"

"By cripes! I hadn't thought of that!" says I. "I would be in a dicken of a fix, wouldn't I? I'll claw my clothes loose from the floor and run the risk of having them stole. I wouldn't like to miss a good fire. Much obliged to you, sir!"

"Well, I done so, and went to sleep, and as far as I know the fire department never made a run the whole night long. And next morning my clothes were gone, and so was the feller in the next room."—Kansas City Star.

Ribbon Fish's Oddities.

"The ribbon fishes," said John T. Nichols, head of the department of recent fishes at the Museum of Natural History, according to the New York Times, "are perhaps the least known of the larger marine species. They are elongate, flattened from side to side with a manlike fin on the back. Specimens are 15 to 20 feet long, being from 10 to 12 inches deep, and about an inch or two broad at their thickest part. They have big eyes and small mouths."

Very few specimens ever come to light and these are usually washed up on some shore or are found floating at the surface in a dead or dying condition. The larger ones are known to grow to be 20 feet or so in length and very likely attain a considerably greater size, but this is a matter of pure conjecture. Young individuals of some of the species but a few inches long are not rarely met with near the surface.
