Modern Spiritualism.

We call the attention of the reader to an article on this subject, which will be found on the first page. We have read a great many articles of late on spiritualism, but we never before had one so fully endorsed as the one we refer to. There is no doubt but many wise and good persons have been led astray by this spiritual delusion. We never believed for a moment, that those strange phenomena, such as moving Tables and furniture—beating Drums and Tamborines, and rapping, etc., etc., were performed by the spirits of those who have gone "to that bourne from which no traveler returns."

In the first place we are inclined to the opinion, that such a theory is not in harmony with the Bible: that it is contrary to reason, and that the character of the communications purporting to be made; forbid the idea that they were from good spirits, even if such a thing were possible.

We find by reading Genesis, II-7, that man was formed of the dust of the ground and the breath of life was breathed into him and man became a living soul, (or man.)—The 19-III of Gen. reads thus: "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return."

These scriptures prove conclusively (to our mind) that man was made of the dust of the ground, and when he dies he returns to the dust, and were it not for the promise of a resurrection; death would be an eternal sleep: hence the impossibility of the man proper, as some term the immaterial part which is nothing at all, revisiting the inhabitants of this globe after they have suffered the penalty—which is death.

In further confirmation of this view we refer to Job, XIV-12, which reads as follows: "So man lieth down, and riseth not till the Heavens be no more: they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep."

David says in the latter clause of the 15 of the XVII Psalm: "I shall be satisfied when I awake in his likeness" CVI-4 "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth, in that very day his thoughts perish."

Paul in his first letter to the Corinthians XV, argues that there would be a resurrection of the dead, and that Christ had been raised, and in the 16 and 17 verses he says: "For if the dead rise not, then is not Christ raised. And if Christ be not raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they that are fallen asleep in Christ are perished."

Job IV 17 "Shall mortal man be more just than God?" Paul in his first letter to Timothy VI 16 says: "Who only hath immortality dwelling in the light, which no man can approach unto; whom no man hath seen or can see, &c."

From the foregoing extracts we derive the following conclusions: That man is mortal in his entire being, that he was made of the earth, that when the breath of life was breathed into his nostrils, he became a living soul, or a living man; when he ceases to live, he becomes a dead man, in every sense of the word, that his memory, his knowledge, and his thoughts are perished, and a future life is entirely dependent on a resurrection from the dead.

If our views on the foregoing quotations be correct, this rapping, table-turning, etc., will have to be attributed to some other principle, than spiritualism attribute it to. We have no doubt but many of the phenomena, as they are called, which have been reported in the papers, have been seen and heard, and we are frank to acknowledge that we cannot give a philosophical explanation of them, yet it does not follow, as a matter of course, that because they have not been explained on philosophical principles, that they must be performed by the spirits of the dead.

Some argue that the rapping, etc., is caused by Satan, or some of his spirits.—This hypothesis, we think, is equally as absurd as the other.

The Serpent that beguiled our Mother Eve, is represented as talking with her.—Satan was represented in Job's day as walking up and down in the earth; as smiting Job, etc., and in our Saviour's time, the Devil is represented as talking with him; but this secret, invisible power, that he is represented as exerting, is, to say the least, not in harmony with the accounts given us in the Bible, of his manner of communicating with the children of men in ancient times. Doc. Everts of the La Porte Times, says, "If Angels conversed with Abraham, why not with Mr. Cathcart?"

The Angels that conversed with Abraham, were called men, and no doubt were; they ate and drank with him, and conversed freely, which was conclusive evidence that they were material organized beings; such communications as they made to Abraham, were tangible, and can be easily comprehended.

The Angels that appeared to Lot, were also called men, and they told Lot what he must do, in language that he could not misunderstand.

We wish our views to be distinctly understood, on this subject; we have no doubt but many of the marvelous things which have been reported as being performed by the rappers, are true, but to believe that they were performed by any supernatural power, is taxing our credulity a little too strong.

We have thrown together these few crude thoughts, merely to show what side of this question we stand on; this is the first that we have written on the subject, although we can scarcely open an exchange, particularly from the east, but what has something to say about spiritual mediums.

Elections.

The corporation elections have passed off about as usual, with one or two exceptions. The Republicans have carried Fort Wayne. We would not have been more surprised to have heard that Wayne county had gone Democratic, than that Fort Wayne had gone Republican. We presume that the defeat of the Democrats is in consequence of there being a very large foreign vote polled there. It is thought by some that the Republicans will not call them cat quite as much as they did. Laporte, Lafayette, and Logansport, have gone Democratic; Indianapolis and South Bend Republican.

Conference.

The North-Western Christian Conference will commence its next session on Thursday, the 28th inst., at the North Schoolhouse, six miles south of this place, on the Michigan Road, and hold over Sunday. Elders Marsh, of Rochester, N. Y., Blain, of Buffalo, E. Miller, Jr., of Michigan, Proctor and Fields of Jeffersonville, D. R. Mansfield and F. H. Berwick, of Ind., and many other eminent speakers, have signified their intention of being present.

WASHINGTON, April 21, 1857. There are signs that the New York Panama Railroad Company are a little alarmed at the effect of the significant demonstration of this Government against New Granada. It was not a war that they wanted, but future security against the extortion of the New Granadian Government and against the repetition of the outrages of the 15th of April. A capital of twenty-five millions of dollars is vested by the Panama Steamship and Railroad Company in this transit, and, in the event of a war, even if no foreign nation took part with New Granada, it is probable that the transit would be at least temporarily interrupted.

The people and the Government of New Granada, as a measure of defence or revenge, might obstruct or break up the railroad, and seize upon and destroy the property of the Company. It would be an easy thing to bombard and destroy Aspinwall, but it would be more destructive to the interests of the American Company than those of the natives. The Company now deny that they stimulated the Government to the adoption of hostile measures, and that they have urged the expediency of the acquisition by the United States of the territory within which the transit lies. They would not free to all nations, for if it was the expression of one of them, it would be exposed to the hazards of war.

DISCOVERY OF LIGHTNING BY GAS.—The first gas lights may be said to have discovered themselves. The most remarkable natural jets were found in a colliery at Whitehaven and Cumberland. The miners were at work one day when a gust of air of powerful odor passed by them, and, catching fire at their lamps, blazed up with such brilliancy that the colliers took to their heels in fright. It was found, however, that the flame, large as it was, burnt quietly and without danger, and the men returned to their work. A curious result then appeared. The flame was entirely put out, but immediately rekindled on the approach of fire, so that the only way to get rid of the gas was to conduct it to the top of the mine. A tube was fixed for this purpose, and the gas, being lighter than the air, ascended to the surface. As soon as it appeared there without danger, and the men remained, and crowds of people assembled to witness the extraordinary spectacle. The application of gas to general purposes of illumination was first tried by Mr. Murdoch, in Cornwall, in 1792. The first display of gas-works was made at Boulton and Watt's foundry, in Birmingham, on the occasion of the rejoicings for peace in 1802. Gas lights were first introduced into London in 1807; now the pipes in the city extend about 1,500 miles.

Lampas in Horses.

Mr. Editor.—My attention was called to this subject by passing a blacksmith shop, and seeing a horse refuse to submit to the barbarous operation of having the lampas, as it is termed, burned out. Now sir, to save the noblest of animals from that unnecessary torture, I will briefly state my practical experience. It frequently happens that horses are brought to me with the bars on the palate in a state of tumefaction, causing an unnatural prominence of the lower ridges of the palate. I would not trouble you on this supposed malady, but it has called forth infliction of great torture on the animal. Lampas is neither more nor less than a torpidity of the vessels of the palate, caused by an inflammatory condition of the gums which frequently attend the teething process. In such a case we ought instead of burning out, remove the cause by lacerating the gums, and this is seldom called for. I find that in tumefaction of the mouth, arising from whatever cause it may indicate, cooling and astringent washes—a weak solution of alum is very good, or an effusion of witch hazel or bayberry bark, will answer the same purpose.

The practice of burning out lampas has received the seal of the ancients, but, I trust, in this age of progression, such ancient barbarities will be superseded by practical science.—T. WEBB, V. S., in Zanesville Times.

ASSOCIATION OF THE SEXES.—The author of a work on amusements well observes: "The natural and only safe mode of enjoying amusements, is in common. Where one sex, or any one particular class, enjoy their amusements alone, they are sure to run into excess. The division of the human family into man, woman and child, father, mother, brother and sister, is the only conservative principle of society; they act and react upon each other like the different seasons of the earth. Each age and sex has its peculiar characteristics, that serve to modify and check certain mischievous tendencies in the other sex, and in others of different ages."

"For one sex to attempt to amuse themselves agreeably and innocently alone, is like trying to make music on a one-stringed instrument, it has about it a sameness that is tedious and annoying. The union of the aged with the young, the fair with the manly in our diversions, brings every source of social improvement and enjoyment together—age with its gravity and experience, middle life with its energy and its cares, and youth with vivacity and hopes. It is right for the aged to censure and discourage the innocent amusements of the young, merely because they fear that they may be carried to excess, when, presiding at those diversions, they can effectually prevent it."
