Cattle.

The Peri Republican of May 21st., in commenting on an item of ours, published two weeks since, in relation to the result of the late elections, undertakes to prove that the foreigners who vote the Democratic ticket, are, as some of the would-be prominent republicans of this place call them, more cattle. The Republican, by mistake or otherwise, confounds the word "cattle" with "chattel," and then says that "It is in vain to deny that gangs of Irish are thus used (driven to the polls,) at points convenient to the public thoroughfares at every election. By suffering themselves to be used thus they lose their manhood; being treated as mere chattels, they need not look for any other classification." In the opinion of the republicans generally—and we presume the Peri man does not wish to be considered an exception—it is horrible and inhuman for the slaves of the south to be called chattel property, but all right for free white men to be called such, who are as unfortunate as to have their nativity dated in a foreign country—they "need expect no other classification."

The Republican, in the fullness of its dislike of all foreigners who vote with the Democracy, concludes that the Irish belong to that class known as floating population—who have no interest in the enactment or enforcement of our laws, pay no taxes, and are therefore entitled to the application of cattle, or chattels, as he calls them. If the prompt payment of taxes is the necessary qualification for voters, we think the republicans of this place would have been in a more pitiable condition than the one in which they now find themselves, for but one out of eight of their candidates at the last corporation election had paid his taxes for the past year; and if but one-eighth of the acknowledged leaders of the republican party pay their taxes, what proportion of the laity might we expect to do likewise. It does us good to hear men of that party talk about the "floating population" not paying taxes, when these would-be guardians of the public interests, who live here, own property, do business, and receive the benefit of the laws—fail to do the thing they condemn so strongly in others.

If a foreigner can be persuaded to act with them, he is considered an intelligent and patriotic citizen, and receives their most heartfelt congratulations; but if he has too much self-respect and patriotism to be led away by their humbug philanthropy and financial enthusiasm, he is denounced by them as being unworthy the name of man, and classified among cattle.

If a Democrat's political opinions cause him to fall from that high position which nature assigned him, to a level with the lower order of created beings, we should be compelled to get a revised edition of the zoological dictionary to add a subequivalent to latter-day republicanism.

Melancholy Accident.

We learn from the Huntington Herald, that a man by the name of Fink, was seriously, if not fatally wounded by the accidental discharge of a gun.

"It appears that he was standing on a log and noticing a squirrel ascending a tree and attempted to get down, when the gun slipped and struck the hammer with such force, as to cause an instant discharge.—The ball entered the side and lodged, it is supposed in the region of the heart; at least accounts he lay in a very dangerous condition, with slight prospect of recovery."

Poor House Burnt.

We learn from the New Castle Courier, that the Poor House in Henry County was totally destroyed by fire. It was with difficulty that the papers were rescued—loss several thousand dollars.

Starvation.

In the northern part of Michigan there seems to be a great scarcity of provisions—several persons have died of starvation; also, in the newly settled Counties in Iowa there seems to be a great dearth of provisions and much suffering.

Mobocracy—Three Negroes Hung—One committed Suicide.

The four negroes charged with the murder of the Joyce family, after occupying the attention of the Court for nearly two days, were acquitted yesterday afternoon. As soon as the verdict of the jury was made public, the most decided demonstrations of dissatisfaction were manifested by the crowd, who at once proposed lynching them. Large numbers immediately assembled in front of the jail; but the premises were stoutly defended by the Chief of the Police, together with a police force, when reinforcements gathered from all points, which gradually swelled to several thousand people.

The mob rallied on several occasions, but were still repulsed by the guard at the jail. At length a fiercer demand was made for the negroes, and some ten or twelve shots were fired from either side.—Still the jail was secure in the hands of the officers, and the crowd fell back for a few minutes. It was only, however, to procure a cannon, which was taken and placed in front of the jail; and being filled, it was ready for heavy execution. Another demand was made for the negroes—hundreds swelled their voices in the general cry—and, thus overpowered, the jailer opened the doors, when the negroes were immediately seized, and three of them taken to the Court House yard and hung—one upon a tree in the southwest end of the yard, and the other two on the east side, or fifth-street, in front of the Court House square. The other one of the four cut his throat, it is supposed, as he left the jail door, and fell dead on the spot.

Thus ends the tragedy of the Joyce murder trial. It was a terrible murder committed, and terrible were the consequences visited upon these negro criminals.

These are the circumstances as nearly as we could learn; it was another damning outrage upon law and order. We have said a thousand times that there was no law in Louisville, and the result of last night's proceedings is another evidence of the fact.

Mob law was established, sustained, indorsed and protected by the city authorities some two years ago, and from that day to this Louisville has been under mob rule.

On the evidence adduced in the case, and the instructions of the Court—which instructions, we are assured, were admitted to be entirely correct, by members of the bar present—the jury could render no other than a verdict of acquittal. It did seem unjust that such a verdict should be rendered in such a case; but the evidence was the guide of the jury, and the Judge could not change the law. That these negroes deserved hanging, hundreds will agree; but the law must be above the mob or it becomes a dead letter. Louisville had lost millions by mobs already, this is a further weight she has to carry now in her general competition with other cities of the West.

We are a disgraced city, controlled by mobs, and have become the by-word and jeer of the world. Shall such things be continued? Are the laws to remain a dead letter? Shall the "hue and cry" of an incensed multitude control the city and set the action of our courts at defiance? Is Louisville given over to perdition and hopelessly lost? The proceedings of last night are but the legitimate fruits of mob government. Let us unite in restoring the laws of the land, or cease to be a municipality.

Louisville Democrat.

A BECK-HORN CHAIR FOR THE PRESIDENT.—On Saturday we saw a great curiosity in the shape of a chair, made entirely of elk antlers, and designed as a present to James Buchanan, President of the United States. It arrived here on Saturday afternoon on the Steamer Goliath. It was made in the northern part of Humboldt county, by Sam Kinman, a hunter, who has arrived with it in this city, en route for Washington.—It is mainly composed of four massive buck horns, with the antlers bracing as appropriately as if the whole affair were the work of a carver. The two largest horns compose the hind legs and back, and they incline backwards very gracefully at the top and meet together so as to form an arch. The two other horns compose the fore legs and sides, and extend back so as to lap on and firmly fasten in the forks of the back part. The feet are original; instead of talking old antlers, the hunter "brought down" the largest living bucks, and cut the horns out of their heads with about three inches of bone attached. This bone is solid and white as ivory, and the ends on which the chair rests are formed into the shape of deer's hoofs. The rounds or rungs are made of straight pieces of horn, and so neatly jointed that there is no outward evidence of it. The small horns which project from every part of the chair, having their points polished like ivory. The seat is of white buckskin, prepared expressly for it by the maker.

And with a spice of Mirth, too."

There has been paid in gold, for Postage, $2,809.06. Of this $1,471.81 was for the House, and $1,337.25 for the Senate. About $250 was paid for Hack Hire, and large amounts for articles that appear entirely useless and unnecessary to outsiders. The entire cost of the last session of 61 days, was in round numbers $90,000. We would take the contract to place double the amount of good and necessary laws on the Statute Book that were passed at the last session, for less than half the people had to pay last winter.—Locomotive.

Condemn no man for not thinking as you think. Let every one enjoy the full and free liberty of thinking for himself. Let every man use his own judgement, since every man must give an account of himself to God. Abhor every approach, in any kind of degree, to the spirit of persecution. If you cannot reason or persuade a man into the truth, never attempt to force him into it. If he will not compel him to come, leave him to God, the Judge of all.—John Wesley.

The Schenectady Star tells the following good joke, which was perpetrated between Utica and that city, upon one of the conductors of the Central Road: "A lad about twelve years of age got on board the train at Utica, and, being in something of a quagmire as to how he should pay his fare, he was kindly offered the protection of the lady passengers. The offer was accepted, and, in a very short space of time, the youngster was duly seated on the bottom of the car, between two seats, completely covered with skirts. The conductor passed through the car without observing the 'free passenger,' and the little fellow has since become a thorough convert to hoops, and believes in the right of women to protect poor travelers.

A certain antidote to poison, which is successfully practiced by Doctor Shipman, of Syracuse, N. Y., is to administer the whites of eggs. These absorb the poison, when they are afterwards ejected by the stomach. Let every one root out this simple remedy in cases where poison has entered the stomach. The instance cited, was where a little girl swallowed corrosive sublimate by mistake. The eggs saved her life.

Water of every kind, except rain-water, will speedily cover the inside of a tea-kettle with an unpleasant crust; this may be easily guarded against, by placing a clean oyster shell in the tea-kettle, which will always keep it in good order, by attracting the particles of earth or stone.

The Sydney Morning Herald states that a nugget of Gold was recently found at Louis Creek, New South Wales, the value of which is estimated at £20,000. It weighs about 6 cwt., but there is very little gold visible on the surface. This is the largest nugget of gold yet discovered in the world. Its discovery produced quite a sensation.
