The "Big T" brand of tomatoes placed on the market last year by the Tippecanoe Canning Co. of this place has taken high rank and is in great demand in the Chicago market. The dealers in that city who bought last year are anxious to buy again and say they reserve the "Big T" especially for their city trade.—Monticello Herald.

A BICYCLE FACTORY.

And now Rensselaer is to have a bicycle factory employing 200 or 300 hands—provided the town raises the necessary amount of capital and the enterprise proves to be all that is claimed for it. At present the factory is located in Chicago. It is owned by three men, two of whom wish to dispose of their interest. The other partner, who owns two-fifths of the plant, was here Tuesday and met some of our local capitalists and made them a proposition. He proposed that a company be formed here to buy the three-fifths of the retiring partners' share and remove the plant to Rensselaer. He agrees to put $8000 into the plant as his share, our citizens to put in not to exceed $12,000, the home company to have the benefit of the difference if the plant fails to invoice for $20,000. The plant will require a building 50x400 feet.

After the juice is all squeezed from the lemon one would naturally suppose that the rind had no further use, but if you dip the inside in salt and rug a copper kettle or stew pan it will brighten it, or put in a greasy saucepan and boil awhile, it will cleanse it and remove the odor of fish or onions.

The first victim of the chain gang struck town the first of the week. He is a tramp and applied for lodging at the jail. The next day he was tried before Squire Morgan and given twelve days in the chain gang. He was put to work trimming the trees in the public square Tuesday and later at other work. This will doubtless be a means of ridding the town of tramps.

The Jasper County Board of Education met last Monday. The most of the session was taken up with the enumeration reports. All members were present with the exception of Trustee Bruner and the president of the Remington school board. The purchasing agency was continued another year with the same purchasing agent. The county superintendent was instructed to prepare and have printed a county manual, supplementary to the state manual.

Three feet under ground, on the premises of John Opp, Jr., in Benton county, in a ditch in progress of construction, a silver slipper was unearthed a few days ago. Over the spot where the slipper was found was a hole of considerable depth, about a foot in diameter. It is supposed that in early days there was a depression in the prairie at that point, and the slipper was lost by a party of Jesuit priests on their way to the St. Mary's or St. Anne's neighborhood in Illinois, this side of the Kankakee. Mr. Opp has the slipper in his possession.—Fowler Leader.

North Dakota has a law which is found unprofitable to the lawyer's trade. Under it "courts of conciliation" are established, the duty of which is to prevent litigation. Aggrieved parties may appear before it, each side stating its case, and the court will endeavor to effect a settlement without expense to them. No lawyers are admitted to this unique tribunal. Some good results have already been realized from the system.

The Hebron Leader says that Porter county has completed her share of the bridge across the Kankakee river in Keener township, and observes: "Now let the Hebrew children of Jasper county arise from their slumber and see that their share of the contract is fulfilled, and then we shall begin to reap the benefits of the money expended. Procrastination is the thief of time, and life is too short to idle away, so draw yourself together and get out of that crawfish pace."

The town election passed off quietly last Monday, as usual resulting in a complete Republican victory. A full vote was not polled, a great many voters seeming indifferent as to the result. This week we chronicle the sudden death of Rial Benjamin, which occurred Tuesday afternoon. He had been in feeble health for some time, but was able to be about and was down town the day of his death in the forenoon. In the afternoon his son Philander was working in the garden, when his father came to the door and requested him to come in. His son complied with his request, but when he arrived at the house, his father was unconscious and died in a few moments. His age was 83 years, 4 months and 25 days. His wife preceeded him but a few weeks. He leaves but two children, Philander and Mrs. James T. Randle. His funeral was held at the M. E. church Wednesday afternoon, services being conducted by Rev. Campbell.

For having right good times, perhaps no society in Rensselaer can equal the Woman's Relief Corps and G. A. R. post. Saturday evening these two societies gave a farewell surprise party to R. B. Wilson and wife, previous to their departure for Kansas. A full supply of rations were taken along and a grand time was had at Mr. Wilson's residence. While the festivities were at their height a number of the ladies broke in upon the scene fully masked. Monday evening the corps prepared for a surprise supper and reception in honor of Mrs. Julia Healey, who is shortly to move to Missouri. The comrades felt slighted and while the lodge was in session made their appearance with masks on their faces and dressed in mother Hubbard dresses. Being unable to give the pass word they were refused admission, but sweeping the guard aside, they made a rush and captured the hall. Full baskets were taken with them. After supper the evening was spent in story telling, music, etc. Comrade Chas. Platt was the life of both meetings.
