CAMP FIRES LIGHTED.

THE Grand Army Encampment at Indianapolis Attracts a Great Crowd—Addresses by Gen. Harrison and Commander Weissert.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 5.—The veterans of the union armies have been pouring into Indianapolis for the past twenty-four hours with scarcely a break in the procession. It is estimated that 25,000 uniformed men of the Grand Army of the Republic are in camp. Probably twice as many persons who are not members of the organization have arrived. There is no diminution in the crowds that are pouring through the gates of the union station. It looks like there might be 150,000 or 200,000 strangers in town to witness the great parade. Four-fifths of the posts that poured out of the union station came from Indiana or the close lying counties of Illinois, Ohio and Michigan.

The contest for commander in chief has been the absorbing theme about headquarters. It looks as if John B. Adams, of Massachusetts, known as COMMANDER IN CHIEF WEISSERT.

"Huffy Jack" Adams, would be commander. He has the united support of the east and several states in the west have promised to support him. S. H. Hurst, of Ohio, still feels confident. Charles P. Lincoln, of Michigan, who was deputy commissioner of pensions under Harrison, has a considerable following. There was some surprise when E. Burd Grubb, of New Jersey, announced that he was a candidate for commander.

It has been practically decided in advance of the session of the encampment that the next gathering will be held at Pittsburgh. Members of the association were delighted when a delegation of Pittsburghers arrived and announced that the city had pledged $100,000 for the entertainment of the veterans next year. It was the first bid that had been made and was eagerly accepted. The Kansas delegation has announced that it will vote to take the encampment east again for the reason that the railroads of the west have not shown a disposition to treat the old soldiers right.

The naval veterans held their business meeting Monday, and to-day will act as an escort for the G. A. R. in the grand parade. Admiral B. S. Osborn was re-elected commander of the association, Byrnes Sears, of Baltimore, was elected commodore, and Capt. R. N. Hopkins, of Chicago, captain. The association voted to go to Pittsburgh next year.

The encampment was formally welcomed to Indianapolis Monday night by a meeting in Tomlinson's hall. The principal address of welcome was delivered by ex-President Harrison. The ex-president dwelt upon the subject of pensions. He denounced in strong language a pension policy that reflects upon the integrity of the veterans of the war. His remarks on the subject of pensions brought forth cheers from the veterans.

Commander in Chief Weissert, in response to the address, also referred to the pension question. He endorsed what ex-President Harrison had said and indicated that the Grand Army of the Republic, through the eventful meeting, would speak its feelings in reference to the treatment of pensioners by the democratic administration.

Besides speaking at Tomlinson's hall, ex-President Harrison addressed the veterans in Camp Wilder in the afternoon and the camp fire of the Army of the Cumberland at night. He is the central figure of the encampment.

The thing which will no doubt occupy the greater part of the time of the encampment is the subject of pensions. A claim will be made that a pension claim once allowed and entered on the rolls is a judgment against the government, and that the government has no right to deprive the pensioner of his money without a formal opening of the case. It is said 6,000 pensioners have been suspended or cut off or had their last increase recalled. Commander in Chief Weissert's annual address will be delivered Wednesday. He will discuss the pension question and other subjects of interest to the members.

TWO MEN SLAIN.

Brutal Double Murder in a Lonely Spot Near Calumet, Mich.

HOUGHTON, Mich., Sept. 5.—John Salo and Ivar Palrola, who came from Minnesota a week ago, were murdered Sunday night at Joseph Simmons' temperance saloon on the road from Hancock to Calumet, about 4 miles west of the latter place. The jugular vein and carotid artery were severed in both men by stabs from a knife. Nat Hergeron was also dangerously stabbed, but will recover. Simmons kept an unlicensed saloon and a disreputable place. There is no clew.

AS OF YORE.

Comrades of the Late War Again March Side by Side, This Time, However Through the Peaceful Streets of a Bustling City—The Grand Army Parade at Indianapolis—Fully 25,000 Old Soldiers in Line.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Sept. 6.—The old soldier had a brisk time of it Monday night, with public receptions, camp fires, and other entertainments, formal and informal. The sun had scarcely risen when the people began to gather along the thoroughfares of the line of march to see the parade—the biggest one Indianapolis has ever witnessed.

The great column began forming early in the day at the corner of Meridian and Seventh streets, and the line of march was down Meridian street to New York, west to Pennsylvania, south to Market, east to New Jersey, south to Washington, west on Washington past the reviewing stand fronting the courthouse to Tennessee street, where it was dismissed.

Promptly at 10:30, the designated hour, the booming of a fifty-pounder gave the signal that all was in readiness for the head of the column to move. The posts were formed in columns of platoons, twelve columns to each platoon, single rank, and with intervals of four paces between platoons.

The boys from Illinois, by virtue of seniority, had the honor of the right of line, following immediately after the chief marshal and his staff. The comrades from the world's fair state turned out in goodly numbers and presented an admirable appearance, the Chicago posts especially winning enthusiastic plaudits.

Following the Illinois division came the detachment from the Keystone state and behind these a large and creditable representation of the veterans of Ohio. One once familiar face was missed in this division, that of the late ex-President Hayes, who for many years had never missed the opportunity of marching on foot with the comrades of his post. New York followed Ohio.

The department of Wisconsin, which was headed by the celebrated eagle, "Old Abe," which has led the Badgerites at every encampment since that of Columbus, held five years ago, made a good showing, both in point of numbers and appearance, and the Massachusetts delegation came in for many loud cheers. Connecticut was sandwiched in between New York and Massachusetts, and after the latter the departments followed each other in this order:

New Jersey, Maine, California, Rhode Island, New Hampshire, Vermont, Potomac, Virginia and North Carolina in one department, Maryland, Nebraska, Michigan, Iowa, Colorado and Wyoming combined, Kansas, Delaware, Minnesota, Missouri, Oregon, Kentucky, West Virginia, South Dakota, Washington and Alaska combined, Arkansas, New Mexico, Utah, Tennessee, Louisiana and Mississippi in one department, Florida, Montana, Texas, Idaho, Arizona, Alabama, North Dakota, Indian territory, Georgia and Oklahoma.

The rear of the column was brought up by the department of Indiana, which comprised nearly one-half of the entire number of veterans in line. Every post in the state was represented by a goodly proportion of its membership and in many instances every comrade of the post roll was in line. There were bands of music by the score, flags and banners too numerous to count. Indiana had promised at Washington to do itself proud if it was given the national encampment, and it more than redeemed the pledge.

Along the entire route the spectators were massed solid from the ropes to the building line, spreading over lawns, filling windows and porches of residence and business blocks alike, and in many cases preempting the roofs. There was no lack of enthusiasm and the special features of the parade were cheered to the echo from square to square.

Numerous stands were erected at points along the route, the official reviewing stand being placed on the grounds of the courthouse on East Washington street. From here the veterans were reviewed by Commander in Chief Weissert. Ex-President Harrison stood on his right and Gens. Lucius Fairchild, of Wisconsin, and Lew Wallace, both of whom marched in line until the stand was reached, on the left. Each veteran saluted the commander in chief and the ex-president as they passed and some of the more enthusiastic doffed their hats and gave a cheer on going by the stand.

A cursory estimate places the number of men who participated in the parade at 25,000.

Grand Rapids Factories Resume.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., Sept. 6.—There has been a marked improvement in the furniture trade the last few days. Orders are coming in so freely that it is predicted that within ten days all the local factories will be in operation again. Stickley Bros. and the Grand Ledge Chair company resumed with full forces Tuesday and the Widdicombs company began working three days a week. Next week they will run full time. Several furniture factories will resume before the end of the present week.

The World's Inn. The above Chicago hotel, under the capable management of Mr. Chas. E. Leland, is having the patronage it deserves. It is not a fire-trap, but is built of steel and fire-proof tile, combining absolute safety with reasonable prices. Its location—southwest corner Midway Plaisance (60th st.) and Madison ave.—is unsurpassed, as it faces the Fair Grounds. Is accessible by steam, cable and elevated lines. Write or telegraph in advance of your coming for accommodations, or look The World's Inn up when you arrive. You will not be disappointed.

This chain which holds the cow to the stake is like a hard conundrum. It contracts the brow.
