RENSSELAER, FRIDAY, OCT. 13, 1893.

A VOTE for Harrison, it seems, was a vote for Cleveland.

COMMISSIONERS' court in session Monday and Tuesday of this week!

COMMISSIONERS' Court has adjourned a few days for the World's Fair.

SENATOR STEWART, of Nevada, is now an outspoken, full-fledged Populist. "And still there's more to follow."

When the vote on the repeal bill is taken you can see why the three senators from the Northwest were refused admission to seats in the senate.

COMMISSIONER MARTINDALE, being an industrious man and having plenty of work at home to do, is, perhaps, not much in favor of this continued sitting of commissioner's court.

THE minority in the U. S. senate represent an overwhelming majority of the people of the country and the people will uphold them in their efforts to defeat the gold-bought majority.

THE Democrats and Republicans have fused in several counties in Nebraska. Fusion conventions are called in other counties. Does that look much like the People's party was organized to help the Democrats?

SENATOR STEWART, of Nevada, has cast his lot with the People's party and says it is useless to expect relief through any other party. It is rumored about Washington that two more senators will soon follow Stewart.

If the people of the United States only knew how much of the stock of our great new paper companies is owned in England, they would not be so ready to pin their faith to what those papers say concerning the finances of this country.

WHILE Mr. Voorhees is toiling so unselfishly in behalf of the $18,000,000 free gift to the banking corporation, laboring men should be content with their lot and roll under their tongues this delectable maxim, that "you can't get anything unless you work for it."

Our Republican friends during the last campaign told us that a vote for Weaver was half a vote for Cleveland. Wonder what they think of it now with the Republican members of congress almost unanimous in support of the administration and every Populist opposing it with might and main.

STRAWS show which way the wind blows. Here are a few of them: Five counties in Georgia have recently held elections to fill vacancies. Four of them chose Populist. Two counties in Missouri held elections for similar purposes and both went Democratic at the last general election.

Did you ever notice how many of the names of the great daily papers are made up of two words, such as Times-Star, Commercial-Journal, Globe-Democrat, World-Herald, etc.? If not, do so, and at the same time observe where they stand on the money question, and who owns them. Then you will understand the power of England in American politics.

THE plutocrats are now finding out that the Populist party like Ericson's little Monitor, was really a young giant not to be silenced by a few broad-sides of abusive epithets. The party has doubled its strength since the last election. Of seven elections to fill vacancies that have occurred lately, the Populists have carried every one of them. One county in Missouri went 300 Populist that gave a Democratic majority of 1,100 last fall. "So mote it be."

THERE was a time when the president of the United States chose patriotic citizens to represent this government as ministers to foreign nations. It remained for Mr. Cleveland to appoint a man to the high office of Ambassador to Italy, who is an Anglo-maniac of the worst type, and who says that the United States is not a fit country for gentlemen and ladies to live in. But Mr. Van Allen contributed $50,000 to Cleveland's Campaign fund. "He's all right."

A GREAT many Republican newspapers over the country are trying very hard to divide the attention of the voters to the awful tariff question. They are bound to have something to chew on and something, too, which congress has, so far, failed to recognize during this session. The great question before the people to-day is the financial question, still the g. o. p. organs claim that the financial conditions of the country are due to the tariff.

SENATOR VOORHEES in replying to Senator Teller, says he appears in behalf of the laboring classes who are thrown out of employment, yet every labor organization has declared for the exact opposite of what Voorhees advocates. He also appears in behalf of the farmers, and all the organizations of farmers have declared for free silver, while Voorhees opposes it with all his power and is moving heaven and earth to pass a measure that he knows will seal the doom of silver as money.

GOVERNOR MCKINLEY said in a speech at Lancaster, Ohio, "Every dollar that is issued for the people of this country must be issued by the government of the United States. Our money must be as sound and strong and as stable as the government itself." That is mighty good Populist doctrine, but coming as it does from the idol of the gold-bug national bank party, the governor need not be surprised if the Populists and silver men of Ohio doubt his sincerity and refuse to be hoodwinked into supporting him in the coming election.

THE Toledo Blade of Sept. 28th remarks: One of the objects of the movement to repeal the federal election laws is to get up a partisan debate and check the growth of the Populist party in the solid south."

The Blade is doubtless right this time, but only one short year ago it insisted that the People's party was only an annex of the Democratic party, a scheme concocted by the Confederate Brigadier, and aided and abetted by the Democratic campaign committee. The Blade has seen its error as to the purpose of the People's party, and when the vote in Ohio this fall knocks the scale from the other eye it will see its error as to the strength of that party.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Indiana, that the auditor of each county of the state shall be required to publish, in a newspaper of general circulation in his county, within ten days after the adjournment of the session of said Board of Commissioners making allowances, a statement showing all allowances made by the County Commissioners at each term of their court, to whom allowances are made, and for what purpose.

Provided, that the cost of the printing thereof shall not exceed five cents for each allowance. —Acts of the General Assembly of the State of Indiana, 1893, page 342.

So far the allowances of the September term of the commissioners' court have not been published. The purpose of this law is to let the people know what the county board is doing with their money. Just why the auditor has failed to comply with the requirements of this law we are unable to understand. The taxpayers of this county demand the publication of the September allowances, or a reasonable excuse for not doing so. If each separate allowance can not be published for five cents, in a newspaper of general circulation in the county, or if ten days have not yet expired since the close of the September term, then is the auditor not at fault for this seeming neglect.

Ringed Resolutions.

American Nonconformist.

The following Resolutions passed at a large and intelligent meeting of farmers in Clay county, Ind., Thursday, Sept. 23th, and in the evening of the same day were taken to a public meeting of citizens at Clay City where they were adopted without a dissenting voice:

WHEREAS, The blow given to the silver dollar in 1879 by the combined gold powers of Europe and America was a blow to the business of every farmer in the land; and

WHEREAS, The effect of that blow has been to reduce the wages of the farmers until they have arrived at a bare living point; and

WHEREAS, Under the present system our farms are likely to be confiscated completely; therefore be it

Resolved, That we demand the immediate passage of a law restoring the free free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1.

Resolved, That we condemn the policy of the administration which favors the further destruction of the silver dollar.

Resolved, That we are opposed to the policy of any senator or representative from Indiana who will favor, by word or vote, the single gold standard or who antagonizes free coinage.

Resolved, That the constitutional rights of the silver dollar, to-wit: Equality before the law, shall be maintained and to this end we pledge our most earnest efforts.

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be placed in the hands of our senators and representatives at Washington.

Washington Letter.

From our regular correspondent.

Washington, Oct. 6, 1894.

Senator Morgan's resolution directing the committee on the Judiciary to investigate and inform the senate what provisions of the act of 1837, establishing a mint and regulating the coinage of the United States, are now in force, would seem to indicate that the statement made by Representative Springer several days ago, that the unconditional repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman silver law would leave the free coinage law of 1847 in force, was not so chimerical as many supposed it to be. Senator Morgan is admitted to be one of the ablest lawyers in congress and he says that himself and other lawyers are of the opinion that the law of 1837 has never been repealed. Should this prove to be true the entire situation would be changed and those who are now so anxious for a vote on the Voorhees bill would swap places with the opponents of that measure.

Whatever may be one's opinion on the silver question it is impossible not to admire the indifference to public clamor of the senate. It proceeds with the silver debate just as though its members were not being daily abused by the press of all the financial centers. It is noticeable too, that the galleries invariably applaud sharp criticisms of the money power, and nearly every senator opposed to the Voorhees bill has made them, those of Senator Butler, of South Carolina, being particularly severe. The gallery doorkeepers had to suppress the applause when he said: "The most unsafe financial adviser that congress can have is the banker of New York, Philadelphia or New Orleans."

Although many senators and representatives would like to have congress take a recess from the last of next week until after the fall elections are held the prospect for a recess can hardly be considered bright. The house will pass the bill for the repeal of the election laws next Tuesday and could then take a recess, but the senate will hardly be allowed to take a recess until the silver question is disposed of.

Representative Davis, of Kansas, this week, presented the Populist idea of what is most pressing needed by the people, in an argument made before the house committee on banking and currency in favor of his bills providing for the issue of fractional currency and to replace retired national bank currency with greenbacks, and to re-issue lost and destroyed treasury notes. More money for the people was the foundation of Mr. Davis' argument and he quoted the opinion of the late Senator Beck to show that it would be safe to add $700,000,000 to the money now in circulation without increasing the present gold reserve, and then called the attention of the committee to the fact that he only asked for an increase of $200,000,000 to take the place of money that has been lost or destroyed. Mr. Davis made his argument under difficulties, as the members of the committee hostile to his bills did all they could to confuse him by firing question after question at him in quick succession.

As we expected, the McCready substitute for the Geary Chinese law has been favorably reported to the house from the foreign affairs committee, and the power and influence of the administration is to be used to push it through as soon as the bill for the repeal of the election laws is disposed of. Representative Geary of California, thinks the McCready bill entirely too lenient and says he intends to do his best to defeat it.

Although the house judiciary committee has ordered that the Oates bankruptcy bill, which is almost identical with the Torrey bill, which has been before several congresses, be reported to the house, a majority of the members of the committee stated that they reserved the right to oppose or offer amendments to the bill on the floor of the house. This seems queer in view of the popular idea that bills are referred to committees to be perfected before being reported, if the committee thinks them meritorious enough to be reported favorably.

One of the most significant incidents of the week in the senate was Senator Dubois' telling Senator Voorhees of his inability to pass the repeal bill bearing his name. The words are expressive, but not so much so as was the tone of voice in which they were spoken. The remarks were made in answer to Senator Palmer's expressions of surprise that the senate was unable to control itself, and were as follows: "I agree with almost all the remarks of the distinguished senator, but I think the fact is that whenever there is a strong sentiment in favor of any measure in this country the senate will immediately respond to it. But the senate knows that it is not going to pass this bill. There is no sentiment in the senate in favor of it. I honestly believe there are not ten senators here who actually desire to pass this unconditional repeal bill. If there was a strong sentiment here in favor of it the senate would pass it. There is a manufactured sentiment outside, but that does not exist in this chamber." Senator Voorhees' reply was an acknowledgment of his helplessness to force a vote.

"During my term of service in the army I contracted chronic diarrhoea," says A. E. Bending, of Halsey, Oregon. "Since then I have used a great amount of medicine, but when I found any that would give me relief they would injure my stomach, until Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was brought to my notice. I used it and will say it is the only remedy that gave me permanent relief and no bad results follow." For sale by F. B. Meyer, the druggist.

The Jimson Weed.

New York Sun.

If "Jimson weed" were not a weed, but a costly exotic, how it would be treasured for lawns and greenhouses. The weed, or stramonium, to give it the botanical name, is now in flower, and its fragrant, lily like blossoms, are the whiter against the vigorous looking leaves of dark green. A rare variety has a flower of pale purple. The popular name of the plant is said to be derived from "Jamestown weed," and the tradition is that after the destruction of Jamestown the English found its ruins filled with thickets of this stramonium.

I CAN NOW DO A GOOD DAY'S WORK.

Forest, Ind., Oct. 21, 1891.
Dr. Man-O-War:—After taking your Indian Herb treatment for two months I am wonderfully benefited. In fact, and in a manner cured. I have been a sufferer for eight years with kidney, liver and heart disease; was unfit for any manual labor. I can now do a good day's work. I have been treated by several prominent physicians and received no benefit. They all pronounced my case incurable. If I only had the money back that I paid for worthless treatment I would be a happy man.

Truly yours,

GEORGE M. MIERS.

The city election at Indianapolis occurred last Tuesday, and from all reports it was decidedly Republican by a large majority. They got the mayor, clerk, police judge, and the city council stands nineteen Republicans and two Democrats. The average majority of all those elected is near 2,500, while two years ago it was to the opposite—the Democrats carrying nearly everything with about the same majorities.
