THE Democratic party has a president on its hands.

A BANK note may be redeemed in silver. Then wherein is it any better than silver, though it is based on a U. S. bond.

NOTWITHSTANDING the great drought we have just passed through, wheat in this county is getting the best start this fall it has had for years.

NATIONAL bankers are fond of calling in silver sixty cent dollars, but if you take one of their notes to the bank for redemption they take it in with silver at par all the same.

THE only two things that have risen in price in the United States for years, says a writer, are gold and bonds. Farmers, who are the ones benefited by the rise in price in these two things?

A BANKER deals in money and like any other dealer he wants a demand for his wares; wants a good price for his "stuff;" hence this great effort of the bankers to limit the output of that kind of goods we call money.

It is not right for a majority of a legislative body to rule unless that body represents a majority of the people. The majority in the U. S. senate represents less than one tenth of the people of this country. Therefore, should not be allowed to rule.

A DRIVE through the country shows us that there is more corn fodder in shock this year than ever before. There is no better feed than good shock fodder, besides it is a great saving. Thousands of dollars worth of feed is yearly lost in this country by pasturing stocks.

THE world produces two bushels less per capita of wheat than it did twenty years ago, but the gold-bug papers are still trying to delude their readers into the belief that it is over production and not financial legislation that has caused wheat to depreciate over sixty per cent. in that time.

In anticipation of the repeal of the Sherman law, the loan companies recently advanced their rates of interest on farm loans. They now announce that they will call in all their loans on western and southern farms. That "object lesson" is to be repeated on a larger scale than the bankers' panic, it seems.

THE plutocrats want to issue more money but do not want to put any more in circulation than already exists. Their plan is for the government to issue $150,000,000 in bonds to buy gold to pile up in the treasury as a reserve. The banks then will use the bond as a basis for their notes which they loan at twelve per cent. while they draw interest on the bonds.

WE are asked to adopt the gold standard that we may stand with the most intelligent and prosperous nations of the earth. Well, yes; England has lords and dukes, a hereditary monarchy, an established church, free trade and a gold standard. Let's have the same here and we will be intelligent, first class and prosperous.

Germany is a first class nation, a large standing army, a pauperized peasantry, a crowned Emperor, a high protective tariff, and a gold standard make her so; let's have all these things here and be a first class nation too. Let's confer titles of nobility and in this way make "America fit for gentlemen and ladies to live in."

WE are told by the few monometalists we meet on the street, that if half our money is demonetized, the other half will just as well fill the place. They say a dollar per day will now buy no more than a half dollar will buy when half the present amount of money is in circulation, or double the present amount of money and it will require two dollars to buy what one dollar now buys. Increasing the amount of money increases the price of everything else, they say, and a proportional increase all round leaves everything relatively just as it was before, consequently no one is benefitted by the change. This proposition looks very plain, but why the effort, the great effort to reduce the amount of money if increasing it has the same effect as decreasing it? If this rule of increase and decrease in our circulating medium, like all other good rules, works both ways, why are not our bankers and boards of trade just as willing to increase as to decrease. Just as willing to let things remain as they are as to change them? No, everybody knows that the money power always works for the decrease of money. An increase of circulation benefits the debtor class, a decrease of circulation benefits the creditor class, but a policy that increases and decreases our circulating medium in proportion to the increase and decrease of our population, commerce and industry gives special advantages and privileges to no one. This is the policy that should be pursued, but it is the very policy the money power has successfully opposed for the last twenty-five years.

Washington Letter.

From our regular correspondent.

No speech made since the opening of the extra session has been as much talked about as the one made this week by Senator Sherman. It was in some respects one of the most radical ever delivered in the senate. For instance, when he said, "If Mr. Carlisle does his duty he will at once stop the expenditure of all money where it is not fixed by law and where it is not imperative. He ought to suspend the erection of public buildings and all public improvements." Should Secretary Carlisle act upon that advice without being specifically directed by congress to do so he would precipitate a row that would be far more dangerous than the one now on hand over silver, and Senator Sherman's party associates would be the first to attack him. A senator, speaking of that portion of Mr. Sherman's speech, said: "I cannot regard that advice as more than a bluff to secure votes for the Voorhees bill. It is true that Secretary Carlisle estimates a deficit of $50,000,000 at the close of the current fiscal year, but even if there were a deficit of that amount at this time the secretary of the treasury would not be justified in assuming such extraordinary authority. Congress is in session and will provide means to meet this deficit before it adjourns, regardless of what disposition it makes of the silver question, and you may be sure that it would resist any such assumption of authority as that proposed by Mr. Sherman. The people also, regardless of politics, would resent having the millions of dollars now regularly paid out each month for wages and material on public buildings and improvements cut off by a stroke of the pen. It would be worse than cruel for the government of the wealthiest country in the world to add to existing suffering on the eve of winter. It would be more statesmanlike to provide for the spending of more money on public works than to cut off what is now being spent."

Perhaps some of our readers would like to know in what respect Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is better than any other. We will tell you. When this Remedy is taken as soon as a cold has been contracted, and before it has become settled in the system, it will counteract the effect of the cold and greatly lessen its severity, and it is the only remedy that will do this. It acts in perfect harmony with nature and aids nature in relieving the lungs, opening the secretions, liquefying the mucus and causing its expulsion from the air cells of the lungs and restoring the system to a strong and healthy condition. No other remedy in the market possesses these remarkable properties. No other will cure a cold so quickly. For sale by F. B. Meyer, the druggist.

The St. Joseph's Catholic church, at Mishawaka, was dedicated last Sunday. It cost $50,000.

THE PROOF OF MERIT.

Is fully demonstrated in the use of Craft's Distemper Cure among horses. It cures Chronic Coughs, Colds, Pink Eye and all catarrhal troubles of the horse. It is acknowledged by Veterinary Surgeons to be a wonderful remedy and the only known specific treatment for Distemper. Price 50 cents. Sold by F. B. Meyer.

This week will be remembered

a long time by the members of the senate. To begin with, a lot of the senators were put in a bad humor by the success of President Cleveland in preventing a compromise on silver after it was almost agreed upon, a success that later brought down upon Mr. Cleveland's head this sharp language from Senator Morgan: "When you leave the executive mansion and come here to guide us in legislation, you must not feel at all affronted if we take up the veto power and use it on you. You shall not interfere with us." During the entire week personal bickerings have been almost constant on the floor of the senate, between the friends and opponents of the Voorhees bill. The most significant event of the week, however, was the way the silver Democrats put the administration Democrats, as the friends of the Voorhees bill are called, on the defensive, by proposing a Democratic caucus to settle the silver question, every man who attended the caucus to be bound by its decision. The administration senators declined to sign the call, but enough names were secured to get the caucus without their signatures, but they will not, of course, be bound by its action. Senator Vest originated the idea and circulated the call. Another silver Democrat said of it: "We got tired of listening to the twaddle about the rule of the majority which has been fired at us by administration senators. We believe in the true rule of the majority; they don't. The Democrats are in the majority in the senate and are entitled to the control of legislation. In only one way can that be done, and that is the way we propose—by holding a caucus and allowing the majority to map out a programme. That we wish to do and the administration senators fear to do. That's the whole business in a nutshell." This was a clever move on the part of the silver Democrats, although they ran no risk, as a majority of the Democratic senators are with them.

A curious and rather suspicious state of affairs has lately come to light in connection with the gold reserve fund of the treasury. Although no gold has been shipped to Europe that fund has dropped off about $12,000,000 in a few weeks. Investigations by national bank examiners show that the holdings of gold by the big eastern banks have within the same period increased exactly the amount that the treasury fund has decreased. From this it would seem that these banks gobbled up the gold that has lately been paid out by the treasury in large quantities and locked it up in their vaults, instead of allowing it to remain in circulation and eventually find its way back into the treasury, as most of it would have done.

The house this week passed the McCreary bill amending the Geary law; the Cox bill prohibiting national banks loaning money to their officers or employees without the consent of a majority of a quorum of their boards of directors, and a bill repealing the law requiring loyalty to be proved by applicants for bounty lands.

Perhaps some of our readers would like to know in what respect Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is better than any other. We will tell you. When this Remedy is taken as soon as a cold has been contracted, and before it has become settled in the system, it will counteract the effect of the cold and greatly lessen its severity, and it is the only remedy that will do this. PIG-IRON IN THIS COUNTRY.

A Total Production In 1892 of Over Nine Million Gross Tons.

It was in 1864 that the United States first made 1,000,000 gross tons of pig-iron, falling below that figure in 1865, but exceeding it in 1866. Taking the period for twenty-seven years from this last date, it appears that the industry advanced so rapidly that in six years, namely, 1872, more than double the amount of pig-iron was produced than was made in 1866; in fourteen years (1880) the output was over treble that of 1866; in sixteen years (1882) it was almost four times the output of 1866; in twenty-one years (1887) it was over five times the output of 1866; in 1889, twenty-three years after, it was over six times the output of 1866; in 1890 it was over seven and three-eighths the production of 1866. The product of 1891 was considerably below and that of 1892 was slightly below the output of 1890. This is truly a remarkable record of progress, and one which has never been duplicated in this or in any other country in a similar interval of time. The total output for the twenty-seven years was 105,712,591 tons, of which 65,571,334 tons were produced in the decade just closed. Statistics show a total production of pig-iron for the year 1892 of 9,157,000 gross tons, made in about 300 furnaces, which were in operation for some portion of the year, although but 253 were active at the close of that year. Of the total output, 6,822,266 gross tons, or about 74 per cent., was made by using coke or bituminous coal; 1,797,113 gross tons, or 19 per cent., was made by using anthracite fuel in whole or in part, but only 229,020 gross tons, or 2 per cent, of the total output, was smelted with anthracite coal alone; 537,621 gross tons, or 6 per cent., were made with charcoal as fuel.

A Cool Scene.

Des Moines (Iowa) Leader.

An entrancing engraving of a boating party occupies the first page of July Womankind, published in Springfield, Ohio. The pictures are all of high grade. The paper is devoted to the interests of women and home, and seems to judiciously combine fiction, fashion, art culture, care of household and children, hints for business women, etc., while also dealing with the upward progress of women, particularly as shown at the World's Fair. The notes from the editor, Elizabeth Cherry Haire, sent from the "White City," are bright and helpful. The letters from Munich, London, and other foreign cities are charmingly written, and show the progress of woman's work in foreign lands. Every thing is original and very readable. We were impressed by a letter from Florence Bargarnie, who is associated with Lady Somerset in the conduct of the Woman's Herald, of London, and who writes of the Woman's Federation of England, which is a warm ally of the Liberal party, and yet is not a suffrage organization.

It is stated that Womankind does not advocate woman's suffrage, but regards it as a problem worthy of the widest discussion. The paper seems to us non-sectarian and non-partisan, recording news, facts and experiences helpful to all women, and we advise the ladies to send for a free sample copy.

The price, 50 cents a year, would not be possible except for its large circulation, the magazine being a consolidation of Woman's News, Indianapolis; Woman and Home, New York; Woman's Recorder, Toledo, O.; and American Home, St. Paul, Minn.

This is the paper we offer to our subscribers free if they will pay up their delinquency and one year's subscription in advance, or to any new subscriber who will send us $1.00. Take advantage of this offer.

YOUNG MEN'S MEETING.

Twenty-fourth Annual Convention of the Young Men's Christian Associations.

We have received the announcement of the twenty-fourth annual state convention of the Young Men's Christian Associations of Indiana, to be held at Marion, November 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th. The principal speakers will be Rev. William McKibbin, D. D., of Cincinnati; President John M. Coulter, of Lake Forest University; H. F. Williams, state secretary of Missouri; Rev. A. A. Pfanstiehl, of Shelbyville, Ind.; Dr. William Bryan, of Indiana University; Frank H. Burt, college secretary of Illinois; E. L. Hamilton, railroad secretary of the international committee. A number of well known business men of the state and officers of the city, college and railroad associations will also take part in the program.

Every young man, whether an association member or not, is invited; also pastors and business men interested in this special work. Excursion rates have been granted over all railroads in Indiana, and the Marion association provides entertainment for all accredited delegates. A number of prominent business men of the state are on the executive committee in charge of this convention.

List of Patents.

Granted to Indiana inventors this week. Reported by C. A. Snow & Co., solicitors of American and foreign patents, opposite U. S. Patent Office, Washington, D. C.

J. R. Allgire, Indianapolis, machine for cutting and printing veneer package blanks; A. J. Cheusse, Monroeville, steam engine governor; J. M. Fender, Liberty, beaking machine for sheet metal; F. E. Herdman, Indianapolis, elevator; W. H. Holloway, Brazil, cloth measuring machine; J. Honstman, New Harmony, cuff fastener; M. H. Jackson, Kokomo, flying top; J. L. The oleomargarine factory at Hammond manufactured 60,000 pounds of that article one day last week.

"During my term of service in the army I contracted chronic diarrhoea," says A. E. Bending, of Halsey, Oregon. "Since then I have used a great amount of medicine, but when I found any that would give me relief they would injure my stomach, until Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was brought to my notice. I used it, and will say it is the only remedy that gave me permanent relief and no bad results follow." For sale by F. B. Meyer, the druggist.

A Different Phase of It.

EDITOR PILOT.—We wish you would correct a statement made in your paper on the 13th inst., which appeared in the Moonshine items. It stated that a couple of thieves entered the store of Meyer Bros. and had taken all the contents of the money drawer, except about fifty cents and that said Meyer Bros. declared the thieves were inhabitants of our town. Upon investigation of the above we find the report to be, and, as Meyer Bros. says, false and without foundation, and we request you to correct this statement as it is a disgrace and a detriment to our good citizens and to our town. This fictitious and abusive correspondence is not only an injustice to the good citizens of Walker township, but to the paper that publishes such. JOHN O'CONNOR, Knianm, Ind.

"I consider Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a specific for Croup. It is very pleasant to take, which is one of the most important requisites where a cough remedy is intended for use among children. I have known of cases of croup where I know the life of the little one was saved by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy." J. J. LaGrange, druggist, Avoca, Neb. 50 cent bottles for sale by F. B. Meyer, druggist.

Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind.
Gentlemen: I take pleasure in informing you of the very beneficial results which have followed the use of Dr. Miles' RESTORATIVE NERVINE in the case of myself and wife. For a year I was subject to a distressing pain at the base of the brain and upper portion of the spinal cord. I lost flesh and was greatly troubled with sleeplessness. Your Nerveine was high recommended to me. My case had been so obstinate that I had no confidence in the efficacy of any medicine. Yet as a last resort I consented to give it a trial. Much to my surprise, I experienced marked benefit; my sleeplessness disappeared, my headache was removed; my appetite and general health greatly improved. I soon

SEWING MACHINE
POPULAR?
BECAUSE LADIES
BUY THEM LIKE THE
AND TELL THEIR FRIENDS.

Many ladies have used our machine twenty to thirty years in their family and are still using the original machine we furnished them a generation ago. Many of our machines have run more than twenty years without repairs, other than needles. With proper care they never wear out, and seldom need repairs. We have built sewing machines more than forty years and have constantly improved them. We build our machines on honor, and they are recognized everywhere as the most accurately fitted, finely finished sewing machines in the world. Our latest, the "No. 9," is result of our long experience. In competition with the leading machines of the world, it received the Grand Prize at Paris Exposition of 1889, as the best other machines receiving only commensurate medals of gold, silver and bronze. The Grand Prize was what all sought, and our machine was awarded it. Send for our illustrated catalogue. Want dealers in all unoccupied territory.
