HUNDREDS LOST.

Awful Ravages of Recent Floods in Japanese Provinces.

Resides Destroying Nearly 4,000 Houses and Wrecking Over 500 Vessels. More Than 1,500 Persons Lost Their Lives.

WOR IN JAPAN.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 16.—Further details have been received of frightful loss of life and tremendous destruction by the floods in the southern and middle provinces of Japan. Following are the returns of the outcome of the inundation up to October 21: Deaths, 1,557; persons missing, 637; vessels wrecked, 577; houses entirely destroyed, 3,908.

The greatest loss of life reported up to date is 950 in the province of Inaba. At Okayama nearly 1,400 houses were destroyed. At Oita 144 vessels were wrecked, but Ehime exceeds this number by twenty more. In the flood at Oita 300 persons were drowned. Forty-four fishing boats foundered off the western coast during a typhoon, and all their occupants were lost, numbering 142 men.

At Minomua the water attained a height of 30 feet, sweeping away many houses. It was still worse in the neighboring prefect of Ekayama, where at Kawabe the river rose 18 feet and broke down a great embankment, carrying away 200 houses. About 100 persons are unaccounted for. The police station was demolished and the chief killed. Going northward, the storm beat with violence on the island of Sado, where it broke to pieces six vessels in the port of Yebisu and nine others at Suisu, whereby four seamen lost their lives. Before going so far northward it touched at Toyama-Ken and carried away forty-eight houses.

At the City of Toyama eighty houses were carried away and over 1,000 are under water. The Yoshino rose 27 feet in Tokushima-Ken, and many houses were demolished. In Kawabe and the neighborhood 400 houses were carried away and the fate of over 200 persons is as yet uncertain, while a similar number of houses have been swept away at Kuboya.

Up to the present the report of the greatest loss of life so far as actually known comes from Futakata-Gun, in Hyogo-Ken, where a mountain side gave way, burying two villages and killing fifty persons. At Misumi, in Kumamoto-Ken, 120 vessels were shattered to splinters, but the number of men drowned has not been ascertained. The wharf at Oita harbor is half destroyed and a majority of the houses are demolished. Thirty large junks have been cast ashore and damaged, and Mount Takasaki gave way inflicting further serious damage. The Tsurakigaiwa river burst its banks and carried many houses to sea. In all sections innumerable bodies of men and cattle are to be seen in heaps. At Moji twenty-four vessels foundered. Off Tanowia seven others were wrecked, and the crews were seen clinging to the topmasts and crying for help, but no help could be given and they sank into the sea. The total number of vessels wrecked in that neighborhood cannot be much under seventy.

At Kawabe water rose 18 feet and embankments were burst in ten places. The total number of houses carried away at Kawabe and other villages is about 400, and the fate of over 200 persons is uncertain. From reports the neighborhood of Tamajima appears to have suffered terribly. Embankments have been burst in Kayo and Kuboya districts, in the latter of which 400 houses were carried away.

At Osaka sixty or seventy junks and fishing boats foundered. At the port of Tanoura sixteen junks were smashed to pieces. At Nagasaki eighteen or twenty junks went ashore and most of them are broken beyond repair. The Mitsu Bishi collieries alone have lost eleven junks sunk and nineteen damaged, and at the mines seven sunk and five damaged. About twenty cargo boats have also been lost. Reported loss of life is thirty, but this is not yet confirmed.

The Abot volcano of Mount Mazon, in extreme southeast of Luzon, Philippine islands, was in a violent state of eruption from October 5 to 11. On the evening of the 5th lava and ashes commenced to pour forth without intermission from the left outlet of mountains. On the following day streams of lava and ashes increased in volume and alarming subterranean noises were heard. The hamlet of Bunqueroham was in danger of being overwhelmed by a lava stream flowing down the mountain. Inhabitants both there and all over the neighborhood hurried away with whatever property they could. The volcano continued to belch forth its fiery stream until October 11, when eruption ceased. No casualties are reported.

In the industrial, mechanical and electrical departments nearly all the states and eight nations are represented, while among the attractions are some of the features from the Midway Plaisance at the world's fair. President Patrick Walsh delivered the opening address.

A TRUE HEROINE.

In Trying to Save a Pupil a Schoolmistress Is Burned to Death.

NUNDA, N. Y., Nov. 16.—The little school-house at Coopersville, a village 2 miles north of here, caught fire Tuesday afternoon and was totally destroyed. The teacher, May Porter, and a little boy, Willard Johnson, were caught by the flames and burned to death.

Before she died Miss Porter braved death in a most horrible form to save her pupils, and it was in making a hopeless effort to rescue the boy Johnson, the last one in the building, that she lost her life.

There were twenty scholars in the school Tuesday morning, and they were all at their studies shortly after the noon recess when the building was discovered in flames. The house was a frame structure, lightly built, and the fire spread with awful rapidity. The children were panic-stricken and rushed up to the teacher's desk, screaming and begging her to save them. So sudden was the outbreak of the flames that the teacher was for a moment paralyzed with fear. Burdened with the struggling children, many of whom clung to her dress, she could not for a moment move.

She recovered her presence of mind quickly, however, and began to fight her way to the door, around which the flames were already creeping. As she reached it she saw that escape by that direction was impossible. The only way to save the children was to drop them out of the windows. Two of the biggest boys, Mulvin and Charley Chambers, dropped out of the window, and to them Miss Porter passed the children. One by one they were dropped out. All the time the flames raged about her and the room was black with smoke, which almost stifled her.

She could easily have abandoned her pupils and saved her own life by jumping out of the window, but she remained inside heroically until all had been passed except the boy Johnson. The Chambers boys say that the little fellow was panic-stricken and struggled as Miss Porter stepped backward to pick him up. She was surrounded by fire, and flames were leaping from the window through which she had already passed seven children.

Mulvin Chambers clambered up on the window sill to help her, but was driven back by the flames. He saw her with the Johnson boy in her arms. He climbed up again and saw her take a step forward. A great whirl of fire swept around her, and she stumbled. She made one more effort, and as the flames drove the boy back from the window, he saw her fall, with the Johnson boy in her arms, into the very heart of the fire, and the nineteen children stood there and saw the school-house reduced to ashes.

The district is sparsely settled and it was some time before aid arrived. When it did come there was nothing left but the smoldering ruins. When the news of the fire once got started it traveled rapidly, and in a short time the parents of nearly all the children were gathered at the spot nearly mad with anxiety. Willing hands tore away the ruins, and in a few hours the bodies of Miss Porter and the Johnson boy were found within a yard of where the window was. They were burned beyond recognition, but the larger frame held close in its twisted and blackened arms a little body.

ELECTROCUTED.

John Johnson, the Convict Murderer, Dies in the Electric Chair.

AUBURN, N. Y., Nov. 16.—John Johnson, the colored convict murderer, was executed in the electric chair in the prison at 12:40 p. m. Tuesday. He walked to his death calmly and his nerve did not desert him. The execution was a success.

Johnson was known as the "Blue Nigger from Clyde." He had been a criminal for years and had been sent up for various crimes many times. April 17 last, without excuse or warning and simply while in a fit of ill temper, Johnson ran through the broomshop of the prison and began slashing right and left among the convicts with a broom-knife. He stabbed Charles Peck to the heart and slashed Daniel Britton in the abdomen, death resulting in two hours. Several others were badly cut before the convict was disarmed.

LOST MONEY ON HIS WHEEL.

Inventor Ferris' Dividends Do Not Pay Cost in Excess of Contract Price.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 16.—The Ferris Wheel company has paid the stockholders 22 per cent. on their investment. The surprising information is also made public that George W. Ferris, the originator of the big Plaisance attraction, has lost money on the wheel, together with the construction company that built it. The construction company only received $300,000 for building the wheel, while the actual cost was $362,000. Therefore Mr. Ferris and the construction company are out $62,000, while the Ferris Wheel company, which operated the wheel during the fair, made a good profit on their investment.
