THERE IS NO END TO IT

Neither is there any end to the good things a sharp-eyed dealer can provide for his customers, saving them many a dollar on their day-to-day purchases. We are always on the watch for buying opportunities, and hence the phenomenal values that prevail throughout our stock.

ELLIS & MURRAY.

THE PEOPLE'S PILOT.

Christmas.

Charles S. O'Neill, in December Donahoe's. With heart and mind we hail the Past, And greet the primal Christmas tide Illumed with light of blessings vast, That haloes Bethlehem's mountain-side. Meek shepherds, chosen first to see The Gift of Heaven's wondrous grace, In ecstasy we bend the knee Before the Shepherd of the Race. Judea! favored of the Earth, Ah, sacred is thine every sod; Land glorified as place of birth And cradle of the Son of God!

* All other goods in proportion.

C. C. SIGLER, SON & Co.

Sanford Bowman, the young man who was so seriously injured by the accidental discharge of a gun, which we made mention of last week, has been in a precarious condition, and may yet become necessary to remove his arm. The old Indian's remark that a gun was a dangerous weapon, even without a lock, stock or barrel is about a fact. There is too much carelessness connected with them by those who go out to enjoy the pleasure of a hunt.

H. V. Weaver, the funeral director for C. C. Sigler, Son & Co., took the time last Saturday to show us a record of funerals which they keep. The book is especially prepared for the work and contains blanks for all the necessary information concerning our flight from this world to the next.

The Monon is making an effort to get back some of the coal traffic which it lost when shipments of stone from the Bedford quarries were so heavy, and is moving three car-loads of coal now where it did one last year, in November and December.

The W. C. T. U. held a public meeting at the First Baptist church last Wednesday night. The audience was addressed by a lady, whose name we were unable to learn.

Just received. A carload of blacksmith coal. C. W. COEN.

The heaviest snow of the season fell last Saturday night and Sunday. It measured about eight or ten inches in depth, and it was tough on the pedestrian to make his way about town on Sunday. Sleds and sleighs have been going in every direction, and those who enjoy riding over the "beautiful," are not slow in fixing up some sort of a conveyance, in which they can enjoy themselves.

We will send the PILOT from now until Jan. 1st, free of charge to anyone who will send us a dollar for a whole year's subscription. You will get thirteen months of reading matter for the price of twelve.

Dr. L. B. Washburn, the optician, handles the celebrated Trolley's Kohinoor eye glasses, the best made. Attention is called to the ad, "See Again as in Youth," in another place in this paper.

We have this week inaugurated a weekly grain market report, which is kindly furnished us by W. R. Nowels, and it can be relied upon as being correct.

C. E. Nowels has retired from the grain firm of W. R. Nowels & Son, and the business will still continue under the name of W. R. Nowels.

Pop corn social at Slaughter school house, Saturday evening, Dec. 9. All are invited.

You cannot pick up quicksilver with your fingers, but you pick up bargains with a quick silver dollar at LaRues' Cash Grocery.
