The Court House Fence.

EDITOR PILOT:—With your permission I will use your columns to suggest what I think would be a public improvement for Rensselaer. It is this, that, in-as-much as the iron fence which surrounds the court house is really of no use, and as the appearance of the square would be made more attractive, and as Weston cemetery is in immediate need of just such a fence, that it be moved from its present location and placed around the cemetery. This is but a suggestion, and I should like to hear from other citizens upon the subject.

Farmers Institute.

The Annual Farmers' Institute will be held at the court house in Rensselaer, Ind., Jan. 30 and 31, 1895, a full programme of which will appear in the papers of next week. These institutes if properly attended and conducted are of great value to the farmers of any community. No farmer is so apt in his occupation but what he may be enlightened upon some point in farming or stock raising, and this well disciplined farmer may be able to enlighten many others in some branch or other. It is for general and mutual benefit that these meetings are held, but if not attended they fail of their objects, therefore let every farmer who possibly can be out and come prepared to ask some question for information, or to make suggestions as to methods proper for the most successful farming. Let Rensselaer be full of farmers on that day, and I have no doubt all will in some manner be benefited.

C. D. NOWELS, Secy.

The railroad train, consisting of an engine and five coaches, will cross the stage at each and every performance of Uncle Hiram at Eger's Opera House, Jan. 21st.

Saved His Life
BY USING
AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL

"When my adopted son was seven years of age, he had as severe a cough as I ever knew anyone to suffer from. He coughed incessantly, and spit up blood. I tried everything I could think of, but he constantly grew worse, and I feared the poor little fellow would surely die. At last, I gave him Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, being recommended to do so by the physician. This medicine gave the child speedy relief and effected a permanent cure."—Mrs. M. E. DEBAT, Liberty, Texas.

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral
Received Highest Awards
AT THE WORLD'S FAIR

There will be an attraction at the Opera House in the near future that will no doubt pack the house. Manager Eger has had the good fortune to secure the mammoth production of Uncle Hiram, direct from their long run in New York and Boston. This company is, without doubt, the largest and best scenic production that will ever appear here. They carry a full working saw mill, and a railroad train crosses the stage in less than ten seconds.

They Are Powerful Agencies.

Farmer's institutes have proven a powerful agency for diffusing a knowledge of the best and most successful methods and practices of agriculture. The setting forth at the institutes of the causes of failure and conditions of success by practical men who have themselves been eminently successful, affords a strong incentive to effort and improvement which is meeting with general and hearty response on the part of farmers who have attended the institutes. All the varied interests of our county and town, all classes and all institutes, are interested. The business and professional men of our town were quick to note this feature of the work, and have given it their active support from the start. Although, as a rule, the farmers were not so quick to discern the real merits of the institute work, they now very generally understand and endorse the methods and purposes of this great movement, which is bringing good to all. Briefly summarized, farmers institutes have done much to allay the feeling of antagonism between town and country, which was so prevalent at first; to foster friendly relations among the agricultural classes themselves; to increase the general intelligence of the farming classes; to foster a desire for the more thorough education of farmers' sons and daughters as a means to higher success and greater happiness on the farm; to point out the causes of failure and the conditions of success and thereby improve the methods of agriculture, to awaken a new interest and pride in agricultural pursuits; to lift the agricultural classes up to a higher plane of living and achievement and to a clearer recognition of the duties, responsibilities and privileges of the farmer as a business man, neighbor and citizen.

D. H. YEOMAN.

One of the positive forces at work in the reform arena is the Coming Nation, by J. A. Wayland at Tennessee City, Tenn. It is a clean masterly paper nearly as large as the Pilot, without advertisements at 50 cents per year. Wayland is a man of means, who after a successful career in business, realized that the present system of competition and profits and monopoly was wrong, and he is now giving free his services and capital to teach a better and juster system.

The total production of silver in the United States in 1892 was $50,750,000 of the coinage value of $75,000,000; being about one-third of the total out put of the world. Of this amount one-half is used in the arts, leaving $75,000,000 to be added to the money of the world. If every ounce of it were coined into dollars by Uncle Sam it would take 44 years to equal $50 per capita for our present population, and by that time half of it would have disappeared, and we will number 150,000,000 people. We present the above without comment on the danger of being flooded with cheap silver and dishonest dollars.

Indiana Liquor Laws.
EDITOR PILOT: In last week's Republican we find the following: "The people naturally look to the republican party for whatever work has been accomplished in that direction was originated and fostered by Republicans. What will be done at the coming legislature is difficult to determine, but there seems to be no special or universal demand for a change in the present law and probably no change will be made."

Following this the Indianapolis Journal is quoted as saying: "The Republican party never passed any temperance law in Indiana as a party measure. In 1873 both branches being republican, the Baxter law was passed but not as a party measure. In 1875 the democrats being a majority in both houses, that law (the Baxter) was repealed and the present license law, which was dictated by the saloon interest, and written by Senator Turpie, as their attorney, passed as a party measure, the democrats at the preceding election making the repeal of the Baxter law a part of their platform."

Now Mr. Editor, what puzzles us is this; if, as the Republican says, "the people naturally look to the republican party for temperance legislation," why is it so anxious to show by the Indianapolis Journal that "the republican party never passed any temperance law in Indiana as a party measure?" Again, if the democrats gave us "the present license law which was dictated by saloon interests," and it took the place of the Baxter law, passed by the republicans, why is it that the Republican says "there seems to be no special or universal demand for a change in the present law and perhaps no changes will be made?"

The democrats, by the Republican's logic, did a good thing when they repealed the republican Baxter law and gave us "a law dictated by the saloon interests" for no effort is to be made to change this law, by "the party to which the people naturally look for temperance legislation." The Republican, it appears to us, wants to say good Lord and good devil. Had it stopped with the first sentence in the above article, or rather, had it said nothing at all on the subject, it would have been much more respected by both temperance and intemperance people.
