Death of Kittie Scott.

From Friday's Daily Republican.

Miss Kittie Scott, who has for many days been lying very low with consumption at the residence of her father, Washington Scott, on South Van Rensselaer Street, died this Friday morning, April 23rd, at 6 o'clock. She had been in poor health for two years, but confined to her bed only about two weeks.

Katharine Scott was born in Milroy Tp., Jasper Co., May 19th, 1877, and her age was 19 years, 11 months and 4 days. She was the daughter of Washington and Margaret Scott. A Record Breaker.

More fish were caught in the Iroquois here Sunday than has ever been the luck of our local anglers to see heretofore. The suckers and red-horse were spawning below the dam at Starr's ice-house and were lying on the shallow shoals in countless numbers. The fish are not very gamy or much on the bite, but the fishers tried other means besides the usual bait. They attached several hooks to their line, weighted it well, and proceeded to hook them, which was an easy task, the fish almost covering the bottom of the river, so numerous were they. Some heavy catches were made, Harry Wiltshire being well up on the notch with a clean score of 33. By ten o'clock probably fifty people were congregated there enjoying the sport, while perhaps as many more were lookers-on. The snap was of short duration however. The river rose in the night and most of the finny tribe had vacated by morning passing over the dam.

A Lamentable Accident.

From Saturday's Daily.

A lamentable accident occurred Friday afternoon, about 4 or 5 o'clock whereby Dick Wood, a worthy and industrious citizen of Rensselaer has suffered the loss of one of his legs. Mr. Wood is the proprietor of a steam wood sawing outfit, and was out in James Yeoman's neighborhood, 5 miles west of town, doing some sawing for the people of that neighborhood. At the time mentioned he was up on his engine, which is the traction kind, making some adjustments, while it was running, but while the traction part was in motion. In stepping down he placed his foot on the cog wheels which drive the traction mechanism, and at the same time his hand accidentally struck the lever which started the traction cog wheels. His foot was at once drawn between them, and although he himself had the presence of mind to move back the same lever, thus stopping the traction wheels, and another man reversed the engine, yet before the wheels could be stopped his leg was drawn between the cogs, nearly to the knee, grinding and crushing the bones and muscles in a terrible manner. Had it not been for the quick work in stopping the engine, he would have been killed in another second or two.

Mr. Wood was taken into James Yeoman's house and Drs. Washburn and English were sent for; and in the evening they amputated the leg, below the knee.

Of course such an injury is a terrible shock to anyone's system, and not infrequently they result in the death of the victim, but as Mr. Wood is a strong vigorous man, there is good grounds for believing that he will rally from the shock and recover.

Mr. Wood has a wife and several young children depending
