Which shall be the recognized official organ of the Marshall county democracy, the Democrat or the Independent? The fight is now on in earnest, big guns have been fired on both sides and more will follow, and the faithful will be in turn appealed to, cajoled and threatened by both contestants. If the Democrat has so comforted itself as to merit the esteem and confidence of the party it has so long represented, the wabbling, misnamed and unreliable sheet that is snapping at its heels will make little headway. One who has followed the editorial course of the Independent through its lightning changes of the past few years will be at a loss to know just where to place it now or where to expect it at any future time, but all who have held or aspired to public office in the county during its brief career agree that it has been steadily consistent in one thing, and that is attempted blackmail.

POLITICAL PARTISANSHIP.

Edgar L. Maines, in the Lebanon Pioneer, writes ably and lucidly on the subject of political partisans. He says:

I admire an honest political partisan. I admire the man who understands and believes in the principles which underlie the political party to which he belongs. I admire the man who loves the history and traditions of his political party. I admire the man who has unshaken confidence in the mission of his political party. I admire the man who seeks, if his party departs from its basic principles, to reform it by remaining a member of the party, rather than to forsake and condemn it. I admire the man who is a political partisan because of his honest belief in the wisdom of certain political principles, but I despise the man who is a political partisan for the sake of political preferment or because of a blind and stubborn prejudice born of ignorance.

There are three classes of political partisans. To the first class belongs the honest partisan—the man who dares to tell the truth, the man who understands and believes in the principles of his party, and who is unwilling to sacrifice a single one of those principles upon the altar of policy. This sort of partisanship is ideal.

To the second class belongs the ignorant partisan who knows nothing, and cares less, about party principles and political history. His actions are governed by inherited prejudice and campaign clamor. He is a creature of emotion and not of reason. In these days of free public schools, newspapers and libraries he deserves no pity—far less respect.

To the third class belongs the politician who cares everything for political plunder and nothing for political principles. He is an unprincipled partisan. The end, with him, always justifies the means which he uses to attain it. He looks for his support to the ignorant partisan—the man who depends upon someone else to do his thinking for him. The unprincipled partisan politician is deceitful, dishonest and untruthful. He would sell his soul for a mess of political potage. He is a social vampire, a modern Ananias and a cowardly assassin of reputation.

NOT YET IN A RECEIVER'S HANDS.

Inter Ocean.

It is not likely, remarks the St. Louis Republic, that Mark Hanna is seriously disturbed by the general Western movement in favor of Theodore Roosevelt for president in 1904. "Hanna," asserts this democratic organ, "is more potent than the people in his party; if he gives the signal, the machine will instantly proceed to crush Roosevelt."

Assume, for the sake of argument, that Senator Hanna possesses the power the Republic attributes to him. What, then, is the situation?

Here is Theodore Roosevelt, admitted by this democratic newspaper to be "vastly stronger with the people than any candidate likely to be named by Hanna—a temperamental friend of the people," who "have confidence in his sound and honest Americanism."

And here is Mark A. Hanna, credited with personal aspirations to the Presidency, although it is absolutely certain that if nominated he could not get the vote of a single state in the Union except possibly Pennsylvania, and that only on condition of his making his peace with M. S. Quay.

Yet republicans are asked to believe that when Hanna gives the signal Roosevelt will be crushed.

If this situation existed—if these were the facts—then the visible drift of public sentiment against the republican party because of its supposed denomination by "commercial" principles would be thoroughly justified.

Then the republican party will indeed be destitute of statesmanship and bankrupt in morals. Then Mark Hanna, the embodiment of "commercial politics" in the eyes of most Americans, would naturally and rightly have become the republican party's absolute master and the receiver named to wind up its affairs.

The republican party, however, has not gone into a receiver's hands. Neither Mark Hanna or any other of his tendencies can dictate its course or define its policy. Neither the Hanna machine nor any other machine can crush Roosevelt. Behind Theodore Roosevelt are the republican rank and file. Shift and dodge and intrigue as they may, the Hannas must ultimately yield to the people's will.

The People Better Off.

Although there is nothing new in the statement made by Carol D. Wright, United States Commissioner of Labor, in the New York Journal that the rich are growing richer, many more people than formerly growing better off, yet it is well to have the truth proclaimed from such an authoritative source.

Karl Marx some thirty years ago evolved what he considered an "incontrovertible axiom" from his inner consciousness that "the rich are growing richer and the poor poorer." The phrase was caught up as the statement of a demonstrated fact, and the world was warned that the ultimate result would be wage slaves on one hand and "great capitalist lords" on the other.

It was a catchy phrase and rolled glibly off the tongue of the prophets of evil, who never paused to look about them to see the unanswerable signs of its refutation on every hand.

Some eight years ago, however, W. H. Mallock, the author of "Labor and the Popular Welfare," took up Karl Marx's "incontrovertible axiom," and by official statistics of Great Britain proved that it had not a fact to support it. He showed that the majority of the community were not getting poorer; that moderate fortunes were not steadily disappearing, and that all wealth, beyond the bare means of living, was not steadily passing into fewer and fewer hands.

Each one of these "nots" knocked a leg from under the axiom which Karl Marx had constructed on the three affirmative propositions which they demolish. Mr. Mallock showed that out of the total national income estimated in 1880 at $1,300,000,000 the millionaires only received $22,000,000, while the income of the working classes amounted to $660,000,000. To this figure it had risen from $340,000,000 in 1850. The total income of those receiving less than $1,000 a year amounts to $940,000,000—a striking proof of how widely diffused is the wealth of the people.

In 1850 those same middle classes and wage-workers in England received only $300,000,000 income per year.

Precisely the same conditions prevail in the United States—only here the incomes below $5,000 overtop those above in a far larger rate than in England, says the Record-Herald. The income of all the Rockefellers, Vanderbilts, etc., combined is as a drop in the bucket compared to that of the 25,000,000 persons engaged in gainful occupations in the United States.

Buy Famous Hunting Marshes.

LEWISTON, Ill., Aug. 31—W. C. Fitzhenry of this place has sold to a party of wealthy Indianapolis men Thompson's Lake, one of the finest natural bodies of water in this state, and far-famed as a hunting and fishing resort.

Among the purchasers are Major Herve Bates, W. P. Ijams, the well-known railroad magnate and Harry S. New, national republican committee-man from Indiana and editor of the Indianapolis Journal, and Dr. Thomas Hill of the same city. Dr. Hill used to accompany ex-President Harrison on his hunting trips to Thompson's Lake, which was the general's favorite hunting resort. General Harrison last visited this place in the spring of 1900. The property acquired consists of Thompson's Lake and several thousand acres of marsh lands adjoining it.

The consideration was in the neighborhood of $30,000. These men have employed Lucien Gray, a local attorney, to draw up papers of incorporation and secure for them a charter under the laws of the State of Illinois.

Bryan Is Satisfied.

LEAVENWORTH, Kas., Aug. 31—Referring to a Virginia rumor as to his future political intentions Wm. J. Bryan said:

"In 1896 and 1900 the majority of the voters of this country said by their ballot that they did not want me as their ruler, and I think I would be imposing upon them by giving them an opportunity to vote against me again. Twice I was defeated, and while I do not say I was defeated honorably I am satisfied, and I do not intend to try and force myself into the race again."

The factories usually begin operations about Aug. 15, but the one here and many others have not yet started up, and it will be Sept. 1 before much canning is done. The Wells County Canning Company today sold 100,000 empty three-pound cans to the Muncie Canning Company.

The Strenuous American Puts in a Full Day Among the Suckers.

A considerable gathering of political and social lights from throughout the state witnessed the ceremonies at Springfield. Colonel Roosevelt was met in this city by a committee of local military men headed by Colonel J. H. Strong which acted as escort to the former colonel of the Rough Riders on his trip to the capital city.

In Springfield Mr. Roosevelt is the guest of Governor Yates. A dinner in his honor will be given at the executive mansion and later in the afternoon will come the review of the soldiers stationed at Camp Lincoln. In the evening, accompanied by the governor and his staff, the entire party will return to Chicago. Tomorrow the distinguished guests will be entertained by the Illinois Naval Militia with a trip on the Dorothea, which will consume the major portion of the day.

Vice President Roosevelt will be the guest of honor at a luncheon by Colonel Strong at the Union League Club Saturday. Governor Yates will be in attendance and covers will be laid for sixty. From Chicago Mr. Roosevelt goes to Minneapolis to attend the state fair, where he is expected to speak.

With an explosive the door was blown from its hinges and the contents of the safe placed at their mercy. Mr. Hagamann's entire stock was in the safe, and everything was taken with the exception of a few watches owned by railroad men.

Besides the jewelry, $600, which was in a box in the safe, was also taken. The robbery was not discovered until 7 o'clock when Mr. Hagamann opened the store for the day's business and the police kept it quiet until late.

DEATH OF A HERO

General Ludlow Expires Suddenly From Consumption

Had a Splendid Record for Bravery
Honesty and Military Ability in His Country's Service.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., Aug. 31—General William Ludlow, U. S. A., a gallant soldier and veteran of two wars, lies dead at the home of his son-in-law, C. A. Griscomb, Jr., in Morristown. His death was sudden and unexpected. Since General Ludlow arrived here, five weeks ago, he had been steadily improving, and it was thought that he would be well in a short time.

The cause of his death was tubercular consumption, which he contracted while military governor of Havana, Cuba. He came to Mr. Griscomb's home five weeks ago, having been invalided home from the Philippines. When he arrived he was very ill, but soon gained strength, and on pleasant days during the last two weeks had spent much time in the sunshine on the lawn and veranda. At 10 o'clock yesterday morning he dressed and started down stairs, when he was attacked with hemorrhage. At 11 o'clock he was dead. Mrs. Ludlow and Mrs. Griscomb were with him to the end. Secretary Root of the War Department was immediately notified, and he sent the following message:

"WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 30.—C. A. Griscomb, Jr., Morristown: I beg to express to Mrs. General Ludlow and her family my deepest sympathy and the sense of official loss and personal sorrow which I feel in the death of her noble and gallant husband. "ELIHU ROOT, Sec. of War."

General Ludlow is survived by a widow, one daughter, Mrs. C. A. Griscomb, Jr., two brothers, Admiral Ludlow, U. S. N., retired, and Edward Ludlow, of Mexico, and one sister, Mrs. Robert Bond of the Indian territory. There will be a military funeral. The arrangements will be made in New York City.

The general was born in New York in 1847, was a graduate of West Point in 1864, served with high honors in the latter part of the civil war and rose rapidly by merit. His bravery at Allatoona pass and at Atlanta and his distinguished ability as an engineer officer while with Sherman on the march to the sea are well remembered.

When the war with Spain was declared General Ludlow was on lighthouse duty in New York. He was made chief engineer officer of the United States forces at Tampa, with the rank of Brigadier General of volunteers, and later was placed in command of the First brigade, Second division of the Fifth Army corps, and participated in the battles around Santiago. After the occupation of Havana, General Ludlow was made military governor of the city of Havana and commander of the department of Havana. The breaking up of an organized system of blackmail in Havana was entirely due to his efforts. He inaugurated the first improved system of sanitation in Havana and was largely responsible for the improved sanitary conditions of the city. After his return from Havana he was made president of the war college board at Washington, and last January was ordered to the Philippines with other officers assigned to duty at Manila. While at Manila General Ludlow's health broke down completely, and it was evident from an examination made by physicians there that he had consumption. When his condition was reported to the War Department, Secretary Root immediately issued orders for his return to the United States on account of disability. He arrived at San Francisco on June 26, and was on waiting orders from that time. General Ludlow was a brother to Rear Admiral Nichol Ludlow, U. S. N., who married a sister of Mrs. Dewey, the wife of the Admiral.

There is no more sense in paying big fees to a great medical specialist when you are distressed with liver and kidney trouble, than there is in trying to heal a broken limb with putty. Fifty years ago as Dr. McLean treated the most complicated cases, curing and bringing hope and happiness to his great number of patients, he did not have one-fifth as many medicines as his fellow doctors have today. The wonderful success of his cures proves that the simple common sense remedies he employed were right. His remedy was to go direct to the seat of the trouble and apply the simplest form of remedy there.

The McLean way of reaching the trouble, which has stood the test of a half century of successful life-saving, is simple, safe and sure. It is the good old-fashioned, practical method of going direct to the evil to quickly relieve suffering. Nothing will take the place, nothing can replace.

McLean's Liver and Kidney Balm
It should be used at the beginning of the trouble, but it is equally safe and sure even if taken when the trouble has taken deep root. In new cases a cure will result in a short time. In very bad, chronic cases, it is equally effective, but patience is necessary and the need to keep up the treatment faithfully. Kidney and liver troubles are stubborn, and only a persistent use of this reliable remedy will cure them. If you druggist is up-to-the-times, he has it.

A MISERABLE MAN.

Two Years and Six Months Without Sleep.

Sleep seems to be in many cases a matter of habit, just as eating and drinking are habits. The Arab whose desert life leads to abstemiousness, declines the offer of a draught of water, saying, "No thank you, I drank yesterday." He drinks only when thirsty, and like his own camels, he can go long and far without water.

It's much the same with sleep. When Gabot and Hux, the French missionaries, were exploring Tartary they engaged in the translation of the Scriptures, working without intermission day and night. When one felt the need of sleep he lay on a couch, holding in his hand a ball, beneath which, on the floor, was a brazen bowl. When his muscles relaxed sufficiently to release the ball, it fell into the bowl, and the noise awakened the sleeper who resumed his work.

But it is one thing to give up sleep and another thing altogether to be unable to sleep. Those who suffer from asthma, bronchitis and other diseases of the organs of respiration are only too familiar with this enforced wakefulness. They would give almost anything for a night's unbroken rest.

THE SECRET OF SLEEP for them lies in the cure of the diseases which banish slumber. That this cure is possible is abundantly proven by those who have used Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the cure of bronchitis, obstinate and deep-seated coughs, lung "trouble" and other diseases of the organs of respiration.

"I can this day say that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is the best and only remedy I have ever found for what the doctors call asthma," writes Mr. F. G. Rodemeyer, of 45 Hayden Street, Fort Wayne, Ind. "I have suffered from hay-fever (and I get the asthma with it), every year in August and September for the last fifteen years, and could not sleep one night during that time, until this year, I have not lost one night's sleep, thanks to Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery; and best of all I did not get the asthma with the hay-fever, and I only used two bottles of the 'Golden Medical Discovery.'"

The cures accomplished by the use of "Golden Medical Discovery" are as numerous as they are wonderful. The great triumphs of this medicine have been won in the cure of chronic diseases of many years standing. When every other medicine had failed to do more than give temporary relief, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has made a perfect and permanent cure.

covery with one bottle of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy cured me, and to-day I am well and hearty, and I will say further that my former physician, Dr. W. M. Lyday, recommends Dr. Pierce's medicine to me and to others. I am sure your medicines will cure any case of catarrh that exists. I recommend them to all."

By purifying the blood and increasing the activity of the blood-making glands "Golden Medical Discovery" strengthens every organ of the body. Accepting the fact that the blood is the life, it follows that the healthfulness of the physical life will depend upon the healthfulness of the blood, and that a deficient supply of blood must result in a deficiency of physical strength. "Golden Medical Discovery" gives health and strength by increasing the quantity and improving the quality of the blood. The evidence of this lies in the marked gain in weight experienced by those who have become emaciated by wasting disease, and who have been cured by the use of "Golden Medical Discovery." It is not a gain of flabby fat, but a gain of sound flesh and firm muscle, and with this gain of flesh and muscle comes a gain of strength, which seeks a new outlet for itself in active exercise. The frequent testimony, "It has made a new man of me," thoroughly expresses the real rejuvenation which comes to those cured by the use of "Golden Medical Discovery."

Accept no substitute for "Golden Medical Discovery." No so-called "just as good" medicine can compare with the "Discovery" when its record of cures is considered.
