An enjoyable evening was spent by the crowd of young people who attended the band concert at Argos. They were: Lola Everly, Bessie Leonard, Bess Vink, Eva Turner, Nell Reubelt, Lottie Suesland, Nettie Corse, May Disher, Edith Covert, and Bessie Smith.

For some reason, unexplained and contrary to promise, the steel structural work for the Masonic Temple and Speicher building is not yet delivered. That for the bank building is in place but the work cannot proceed satisfactorily until the remainder arrives.

Owing to the strict enforcement of the game laws in Michigan it is reported that deer are unusually plentiful in the wilds of the northern peninsula, and fine sport awaits the hunter this fall who will fulfill all the requirements of the law.

The name of the man found murdered in a box car near Toledo, is Rufus Hulwick instead of W. H. Davis as first supposed. He was about forty years old and had been a saloon keeper in Goshen about ten years. He has been a hard character, but was highly connected at Goshen. He recently suffered reverses and left Goshen about three weeks ago.

Because of the lax methods of many guardians of pensioners the Interior Department issued an order some time since requiring guardians to report their disbursements to the government at Washington. This rule is causing some complaint, but it should not, since the party that grants a pension or bounty has a right to know if the person to whom it is granted receives it.

In Indiana, many people live to a great age owing to the fact that it is the best and most healthful country in the world, but one of its most remarkable couples are Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Martin, of Laporte, who recently celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary. Both are over 86 years old and are in excellent health with mental vigor unimpaired.

It is easier to keep well than get cured. Dr. Williams' Little Early Bitters taken now and then, will always keep your bowels in perfect order. They never gripe but promote an easy gentle action. J. W. Hess.

Mrs. Emma Walker, of Elkhart county, changed cars here Friday on her way to Donaldson to visit relatives. Mrs. Walker was for thirty years a resident of the Donaldson neighborhood.

Mrs. Nancy A. Snapp returned to Bourbon Thursday after spending most of the summer with relatives in Miami and Fulton counties, and visiting last week with Mrs. Ringgenberg in this city.

Will Martin, having resigned his position in a railway office at Toledo, visited his parents Dr. and Mrs. J. S. Martin last week. The county commissioners have appointed him to a scholarship in Purdue University at Lafayette. This entitles him to free tuition and he will go there next week to take a four years' course in electrical engineering.

A resident of Indiana can neither kill a deer nor eat venison within the state, although the deer may be killed legally in some other state. Merrill Moore, assistant attorney general, thus interprets the game law of 1901 for G. W. Brier, of Elwood, who appears to want to hunt in Wisconsin. No provision was made in the law to allow deer to be brought into Indiana and sold for venison.

Friday, Sept. 13, is the Jewish New Year, called Rosh Hashonah, and means the head of the religious year. It is a time of great solemnity among the Jewish people. They gird themselves again for the year's work. Really it is the revival season for the spiritual life of the people, but it also is a time of joy. Felicitations are exchanged, good wishes are expressed by person or by letter. The day begins the penitential season which culminates Sept. 22 in the great Yom Kippur, or day of atonement, also called the day of reconciliation. The ten intervening days are days of penitence.

Old Settler of Two States.

Peter Jacoby came to Marshall county more than fifty years ago, resided here over thirty years and went to Nebraska twenty-one years ago. This makes him an old settler of both Indiana and Nebraska. He came to Plymouth to attend the Jacoby reunion and visit a week, and he has been kept busy shaking hands with old friends. He owns a section of land near Aurora, Neb., and raised 4,000 bushels of wheat, almost a hundred tons of hay, lots of oats and vegetables and says he will have 4,000 bushels of corn to crib this year, notwithstanding the dry weather. He brought with him some fine specimens of peaches and apples and says peaches are selling for fifty cents a bushel in his neighborhood.

He is 68 years old but looks 20 years younger, because he votes the Republican ticket straight and has read the Plymouth Republican for more than forty years.

Speaking of Labor day, the Elkhart Review says: "The only mar to the day was made by the speeches. They were misfit. They were not prepared for such intelligent workers as make up the labor element in Elkhart. They told the listeners that they were slaves and serfs, a statement Elkhart workmen are not inclined to believe. They asserted that workmen were worse off today than a year ago, another statement that their hearers deny. The speakers offered no suggestions for changing conditions but revolution and carnage. The speakers were socialists. As one union man said to his friend 'socialism is not unionism.' And the pity of such misfit speeches when there is so much to be said on the questions of labor and capital; so much warning needed by selfish capitalists, so much counsel for workingmen, so much wise inquiry needed into social conditions and the correction of industrial evils."

Death of Benjamin Welch.

Benjamin Welch died at his home in Laporte Thursday and the remains were brought to this city and interred in the Catholic cemetery Monday morning.

Deceased was the son of Michael Welch and was raised on a farm west of Plymouth near the P. F. W. & C., railway. He was a charter member of the Catholic Benevolent Legion and was for several years foreman of the Vandalia section here. He went to Laporte about seven years ago and was a section foreman there. He was 43 years old, was an industrious quiet citizen and had many friends. He leaves a widow and one child to mourn his death.

A Slip of Paper.

S. D. Henderson, of Mead Centre, Kas. says: "I can not say too much in praise of your Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup and the peculiar way I came to try this medicine. I once found a slip of paper laying along the road, on which was printed these words, 'Use Dr. Marshall's Lung Syrup for Asthma,' and my wife being troubled with Asthma for several years and having tried a great many different medicines, I thought I would just spend 50c more and try yours and I must say it is the best she has ever used, and think it will cure her sound and well." "Something doing every second" is the programme for Railroad Day at the Pan-American Exposition, Saturday, Sept. 14th. Low fares via Pennsylvania Lines.

A GREAT COMPANY

The Security Mutual Life of South Bend, Oscar Simons, Agent.

At a meeting of the directors of the Security Mutual Life Insurance company held at the home office in South Bend yesterday the resignation of George M. Fountain as president was accepted and J. M. Fitzgibbon, former vice president, was elected in his place. Mr. Fountain's resignation was due to the fact that the rapid growth of the company made such demands on his time and energies as to interfere with his private business.

Mr. Fitzgibbon is recognized as one of the leading insurance experts in the west. He is a successful lawyer and has for sixteen years made a study of the science of life insurance. Under his direction the Security Mutual has in 18 months accumulated about a million dollars of insurance without a single death loss and the expense rate for that period has been far less than of any legal reserve company ever organized. The institution is one that the state of Indiana, and especially South Bend, has great reason to be proud of.

Oscar A. Simons is the general agent of the company for Marshall, Fulton and Starke counties and, under the personal direction of Mr. Fitzgibbon, who was in Plymouth Friday, is preparing himself to take up the profession of life insurance.

A Suggestion to the City Fathers.

Now that Michigan and Laporte streets are to be paved and made two of the handsomest streets in the state, would it not be a good idea to do a little more in the way of utility and beautifying the city?

My suggestion is that inasmuch as there is a public drinking fountain at the Blain corner, that the city furnish another drinking fountain near the bridge in the neighborhood of the Sears fountain. Tap the city main and give the public plenty of good fresh water from the city's water supply.

Still another suggestion. If the pagoda now there was replaced with a larger and stronger one, the upper part set on strong posts it could be made a most excellent and permanent band stand. The public could pass beneath the band stand and we could have a neat, out-of-the-way stand from which our band could give open air concerts as in other places. Will the citizens favor this action?

CHAS. KELLISON,

FIRST DAY OF SCHOOL

Children Take Their Places Ready For the Year's Work.

The city schools opened Monday promptly on schedule time, with all the teachers in their places. Nothing was done except to register the pupils, assign them to their proper grades and give them information as to the books and supplies necessary to be provided. The registration is fully as great as was expected and tests the capacity of the buildings.

Following are the teachers and their respective assignments:

High School—Prof. Chase, D. Frank Redd and Miss Mae Romig.

Room B—Jacob Martin.

Room C—Fred Hite.

Room D—Mr. Curtis.

Room E—Miss Ruth Thomson.

Room F—Miss Emma Crowley.

Room G—Miss Teeters.

Room H—Mrs. Kleinschmidt.

Room I—Miss Beebe.

Room K—Mrs. Maud Houghton.

Room L—Miss Mary Kendall.

Room M—Miss Price.

Room N—Miss Baker.

Room O—Mrs. Fred Hite.

Room P—Miss Rose Smith.

Room R—Miss Hanes.

The high school will not be opened until next week. The young men and women of '02 are feeling very much grown up as they approach the closing year of the course and they know that their class is the best that ever passed through the grades in this city.

Venue Changed.

In the case of the Modern Samaritans against J. A. Shunk, which was set for trial Monday before Justice Molter after a continuance granted on the petition of the defendant, Mr. Shunk filed an affidavit for a change of venue from the township on the ground of bias and prejudice in Center township, and the case was sent to Justice Plake at Lapaz, to be heard Sept. 11 in the forenoon.

Goshen-Angola Railway.

W. W. Hatch went to Chicago Monday to close the final contract for the construction of the Goshen-Angola electric line, which is to be extended southwesterly through Plymouth. The terms have been agreed upon and the money is ready for the work to be carried through rapidly. Mr. Hatch intends to put on a full force of men at once. The contract provides that cars shall be running regularly within one year.

PRAYERS OFFERED

Pastors of Plymouth Churches Make Touching Allusions to the Nation's Sorrow.

In every church in this city Sunday special prayers were offered for President McKinley and in most of them some allusion was made in the sermon touching the horrible crime. There was an undercurrent of great anxiety due to the fact that rumors were set afloat in the morning to the effect that the president was dead and exact information was not obtained until after the morning services.

At the Methodist church Rev. McKenzie, in the course of his last sermon of the present conference year, digressed from his main subject to express his thought as follows.

"Our president, who now lies at the point of death in Buffalo, is a man whose kindness, gentleness and rectitude of purpose are acknowledged by all, and his assassination by an anarchist should cause us to realize the fact that there are limits to free speech. President McKinley's private life is without a blemish, in the position he occupies he represents the American people, and while deploring the attack upon him and joining our prayers with the millions that are going up to heaven from every section of our country that his life may be saved, we cannot escape the fact that there are influences in this republic of ours which breed anarchy.

"Everything that makes government less exalted than it should be, every word spoken or written in the heat of partisan feeling to unjustly inflame passion and array class against class, becomes an incentive for bitterness against all government, and I should hate to sit in the editorial chair of many of the great city papers which assume to direct the thought and the policies of this government. We ought, under the shadow which hangs over us today learn to be better citizens and have more respect for those in authority."

Father Yenn, at St. Michael's, spoke in the following terms: "The infamous attack, recently made upon the life of President McKinley, is a dastardly crime, the gravity of which words fail to express. Any murder perpetrated in cold blood, the unwarranted taking of a man's life, unless it be in self-defense—is an execrable deed, affecting not only the injured party, but disturbing public order as well. But the assassination of the chief magistrate of the land is more than a murder. It is a blow aimed directly at legitimate authority,—at the authority with which God himself has vested the ruler at the bidding of the people—it is a blow at the entire community, whose welfare is inseparably bound up with the exercise of the authority of its ruler.

"It is in this light that all Catholics must view the sad affair, that will ever remain a foul blot on the pages of American history. Obedience, respect for legitimate authority, whether temporal or spiritual, is one of the most sacred duties of a Catholic. With him it is not merely a matter of policy, inasmuch as it may appear the best means of promoting his own happiness and that of his fellow-men, but it is, moreover, a matter of conscience, which he cannot overlook or neglect without proving faithless to the tenets of his church.

"The Catholic Church is not content with being herself a most implacable foe to anarchy, but she deems it her sacred duty to implant in the hearts of the young at an early age as deep a hatred for everything that savors of anarchy, as she does a docile and submissive spirit that will respect authority. For it is the same motive that should induce us to obey God and to respect lawfully constituted superiors. May God speed the entire recovery of our President and avert impending calamities from our beloved land!"
