HOUSEHOLD CLUB

How Warsaw People Have Solved the Servant Problem.

Several months ago publicity was given to the effort of the Warsaw housewives to solve the servant girl question, always very exasperating in that city, and particularly so in the summer months, when the great Wiltona resort is crowded with guests. The neighborhood housekeeping club idea is a success. The scheme was put into effect May 1, when the annual trouble with the house help was starting, and it has proven so successful that it will be continued, not only through the succeeding summers, but during the winters as well. It will work equally as well in other Indiana towns and cities. The Household Club is in fact in Warsaw a protective organization against house help of all kinds, and especially against cooks.

A company, organized according to usual process, rented the Lightfoot residence, one of the largest and best houses in the city, within two squares of the business section. There is a yard taking up a fourth of a block, and good, roomy porches, making it an ideal retreat. The entire lower floor was converted into one big dining room, and the kitchen was enlarged. Each of the twenty families was assigned a room or part of a room, and they furnished it complete, from matting to toothpicks, using their own dishes and silver and table, chairs and table cloths.

Home life has been worth living this year, and it costs less than $2.50 a week for each person, allowing, at that, half fare rates to children that have not fully matured appetites.

All bother of kitchen work at home is not only removed, but for the seven dollars that Warsaw families would be compelled to pay their cook during the summer months, a man and his wife and his mother-in-law or two children can be fed. The expense will be increased somewhat in winter because of fuel, but at present a respectable surplus is on hand, that will provide for elaborate spreads on Thanksgiving and other holiday occasions.

Thomas C. Shaw is president of the association, Charles Stevenson secretary and Ed B. Myers treasurer. There is an executive committee composed of the three officers and Mrs. Charles E. Neff and Mrs. Reub. Williams.

The second story of the house is given over to the help, who in return serve as janitors and custodians of the entire property. The chef has put up enough fruit and other winter supplies to run his household, the same as any housewife would.

O. N. T. Give a Farewell.

A dance was given by the O. N. T. Club, at Hill's Cafe, as a farewell to Roy Corby. The music was furnished by Miss Harris and Mr. Jenkie, the refreshments were served during the intermission reserved for them on the programs. A very enjoyable time was had though all regret the going of one who has been a good companion, schoolmate and friend to those he leaves behind him.

Progressing Nicely.

Drilling at the new oil well on the fair ground is progressing satisfactorily. The drill is now down to a depth of 225 feet and in a heavy stratum of slate. So far no trouble is experienced with water at the new well. Andrew Baney, foreman of the work, is well pleased with the new location, and has good hopes of completing the well in a couple weeks.—Bremen Enquirer.

Traction Line Under Way.

The final arrangements for building the Goshen & Indiana electrical railway were completed last week in Chicago and W. W. Hatch returned to Goshen yesterday to get the work under way. The force now employed will be largely increased and the construction will go forward rapidly. The extension of this road through Plymouth and Knox is included in the plans for next season and is practically assured as a part of the agreement with the Chicago house that is financing the project. The present contract covers the division from Goshen to Angola. Samuel Tote & Co., Chicago bankers, are handling the bonds and are prepared to complete the enterprise according to the plans of the promoters.

FIRE LADDIES

Reunion of Present and Former Members at Engine House.

The reunion of the fire department, including ex-members, held at the city building last night was a complete success. It was of the nature of a celebration of the recent improvements in the engine house and recalled the grand ball with which the same structure was opened twenty-six years ago, said to have been one of the most successful balls ever held in the city.

Music, recitations and sparkling addresses followed rapidly through a long evening and light refreshments were served by the ladies to the delight of the inner man. Chief Kuhn presided over the intellectual feast and kept the corner of his eye on the refreshment tables at the same time, while the assistant chief, Arthur Underwood, looked after the comfort and welfare of the guests.

It was a time for reminiscence, congratulation, and delicate suggestions to the city dads. The history of the fire department in Plymouth is a history of almost uninterrupted conquest over the destructive element and its present condition and equipment is a monument to the far-sighted liberality of successive city administrations. It should not be forgotten that the long strides toward perfection made in late years should be credited to the present chief, who, after seventeen years of faithful service in his position, is still satisfied to jump at the tap of the bell, day or night, to use his own horses and bugles, to risk the ruin of his clothes, to subscribe and pay for books and periodicals pertinent to the work of firemen, to attend at his own expense the conventions of chiefs, to give a heavy bond to the city, and to accept as remuneration for all that the ridiculous sum of fifty dollars a year.

The men in the department have always stood enthusiastically with Chief Kuhn and have responded to his efforts toward improvement because they knew of his labors to perfect himself in the art of fire fighting, and the result has been and is a fire force par excellence, commanding the confidence of the citizens.

TRIAL BY JURY.

A Successful Entertainment by the Ladies of the Maccabees.

The entertainment given last evening by the Ladies of the Maccabees was a success from every point of view—artistically, socially and financially. The opera house was packed to its utmost capacity, there being included in the audience many persons drawn from a distance. The curtain-raiser, Cox and Box, presented by three of Plymouth's bright young lads, was so full of sparkle and good-looking fun of the Gilbert and Sullivan style that the audience was at once put in the best of humor to enjoy the excellent performance of Trial by Jury. There may have been something lacking in the dramatic action but whatever the shortcomings they were overlooked because of the uniform excellence of the musical performance. All who participated in the enterprise, whether as directors, managers or performers, are entitled to warm congratulations for their success.

The entertainment was followed by a dance given under the management of some of the Blue Ribbon club, advantage being taken of the fact that many young people were here from abroad.

Death of Jacob Wade.

Jacob Wade was born in Maintling, Hessen, Darmstadt, Germany, June 6, 1840, and died at the Sister's Hospital at Hammond, to which he was moved only a few days before his death. Mr. Wade has made his home at Laporte for some time but left a few weeks ago to visit his daughter, Katie, and died during his visit. The cause of his death was Bright's disease.

He came to this country Sept. 11, 1864, accompanied by his brother, Andreas Wade, and resided in this city until three years ago, when he left for Valparaiso. He remained there a short time and then moved to Laporte to make his home with his son, Zeno Wade.

He leaves to mourn his death three children as follows: Miss Katie Wade, of Whiting; Andreas Wade, of Waco, Texas; and Zeno P. Wade, of Laporte, Ind.; and an adopted daughter, Mrs. Mary Woodward, of Ft. Wayne, Ind.

Remains of the deceased were brought here Saturday morning on the 10:38, and were conveyed to the residence of Andreas Wade. The funeral was held Monday morning at 9 o'clock under auspices of St. Boniface Society of St. Michael's Catholic church.
