The best story of late is told of Clarence Slayter and his store cat. It happened thus: Clarence has a cat that he thinks a great deal of because it is such a fine mouser and death on rats, so he says, and he bragged so much that everybody thought no rat would dare venture within ninety feet of the store under pain of being annihilated. But Charles Porcher vouches for the fact that last week a rat came from the cellar and scampered all around and at last came up and rubbed noses with the big cat, even a second time—just to show them that he dared and then ran into a box near by. Clarence took the cat and jammed him headfirst into the box, but to no avail. And now if you want a good cigar all you need to do is ask Slayter to show you his fine mouser.

A Great Disaster.

The Boyertown, Pa., theater disaster is a far greater tragedy in some respects than was the burning of the Iroquois Theater. The loss of life was less in the Pennsylvania case, but the 167 dead belonged in a small community, while the victims of the Chicago fire were from widely distant parts of the great city and from cities outside. The people of Boyertown were all known to each other, and survivors feel the loss of neighbors and friends as well as of members of their own families. Some idea of the extent and character of the tragedy may be gained from the list of names of the dead—four Andersons, four Browns, six Hartmans, four Johnsons, nine Leidsys, twelve Moyers, and so on, showing that whole families were swept away. The scars of that event will last in the small community for more than one generation.

BATTLE AT GARY NOW INTERNATIONAL AFFAIR.

Austro-Hungary Inquires About Killing Servians.

Alexander de Nuber, the Austro-Hungarian consul-general at Chicago under instructions from the embassy at Washington, has sent a representative to Gary, Ind., to investigate the battle between the local police and the Servians employed as laborers in railway construction, in which two laborers were killed, while another laborer and patrolman Miller, of the Gary force, were seriously wounded. Henry A. Boeche, connected with a law firm in Chicago, was appointed to conduct the inquiry on behalf of the consul-general, and he has served notice that he will apply to Charles L. Shurpise, United States commissioner at Hammond, for the arrest of all the members of the Gary police force taking part in the affair. This will include Chief Joseph Martin, Sergeant Edward Klopff, Sergeant Frank Catey, and patrolman John Melchey and Fred Miller. The last named officer was supposed to be fatally wounded by the first shot from the laborers' camp.

It is admitted that the first shot came from the camp, but it is contended that the foreigners did not recognize the police and supposed they were marauders, and that this one shot did not warrant the police in volleying in reply.

The police are holding John Derith, boarding-house boss, and John Jurich, whose shot opened the battle, and in case Miller dies one will be prosecuted for murder and the other for assault with intent to kill. It is alleged that Sergeant Catey fired the shot that killed Michael Meokovitch, one of the laborers, but this will be difficult to prove.

Pushing the prosecution of the police is Stanley Sulentic, an educated Hungarian, who does a large insurance business in Gary, and who has constituted himself a leader and friend of the foreigners. Deputy Coroner Tempin has returned a finding in the Meikovich case, filing a verdict of justifiable homicide.

Walsh is Guilty.

John R. Walsh was found guilty Saturday of criminally misapplying funds of the Chicago National Bank.

The verdict returned in Federal Judge Anderson's court on the first anniversary of Mr. Walsh's indictment, carries with it a maximum penalty of 540 years in the penitentiary. The minimum penalty is five years.

A scene bordering on the dramatic in which one of the jurors broke down and sobbed, attended the reading of the verdict which found Mr. Walsh guilty on fifty-four of the 150 counts in the indictment. The penalty on each count is from five to ten years, but it lies within the power of the court to arrest judgment on as many of the counts as he may see fit.

Attorney Miller made his formal motion for a new trial, and after the date for arguments was set by Judge Anderson the question of bail arose. The court agreed to allow the present bond of $50,000 to stand.

Judge Anderson, thanking the jury for the two months they had given to the trial, ordered that the members be dismissed.

Scientists Get Problems.

The president has decided to appoint a commission composed of scientists from five of the leading universities to pass upon the problems brought up by the enforcement of the pure food laws.

The institutions to respond are California, Virginia, Chicago, John Hopkins and Yale.

The principal questions that will be discussed by the commission will be the use of benzoate of soda in the preservation of catsup and pickles, sulphur in dried fruits and glucose in syrups.

The appointment of this commission means that Dr. Harvey Wiley, author of the poison squad's breakfast table and chief chemist of the agricultural department, is to be shorn of some of his power. Representatives Hayes, Needham and Smith, of California, called on the president Saturday, to protest against Mr. Wiley's ruling against the use of sulphur in the preservation of dried fruits. The president said he would write to the universities mentioned and ask for the names of two or three chemists from each, from which he could make his selection.

Beheaded by Train.

Alex Johnson, of South Bend, was decapitated by a L. S. & M. S. railroad passenger train at the Leet street crossing in that city, Friday night at 6:30 o'clock, his lifeless form being found a short time later by C. D. Hildebrand at a point 150 feet west of the crossing and on the embankment by the side of the tracks. So far Coroner Clark has been unable to locate an eye witness to the accident and just what manner in which Johnson's death was brought about is not definitely known.

It is presumed that Johnson was crossing the tracks at the time and that he either did not see the approaching train or that he tried to cross in front of it. The position of the body when found indicated that it had been thrown into the air and carried by the concussion to the place where it was found.

Father MacCorry Denounces State of Morals That Condone Sin of Man.

Standing out vivid as lightning against a black sky, and with an effect no less startling, came Father MacCorry's denunciation Sunday night at Caleb Mills Hall of the present day state of morals, which makes an outcast of the erring woman for the sin which is condoned in man, the partner of her crime. With due regard to the dramatic, Father MacCorry appeared before his audience in priest's garb against a black background. The hall was dark except for the spotlight upon the face of the lecturer and the stereopticon light on the screen. The impression upon his audience was that of a strong-faced man saying things in a deep, clear voice, which a pair of white cuff hands had an expressive way of making striking.
