

WEIGHING-MACHINE KILLS BOY

RUSSELL PRICE AGED 7 MEETS DEATH IN A STRANGE MANNER BY HAVING NECK BROKEN SUNDAY.

Russell, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Price, was killed before the eyes of his father and a crowd of bystanders, by having his neck broken Sunday morning in the middle of the downtown district on Michigan street. A heavy iron, penny-in-the-slot weighing machine, fell upon the boy, causing his death. The machine was located in front of Chas. Shadel's drug store, corner of Garro and Michigan streets. The accident happened at 9:55 o'clock Sunday morning. The boy and his father were standing on the above mentioned corner when Mr. Price entered into a conversation with Frank Cullison and a couple other men. The group were about the weighing machine and only a couple of feet from it. The machine, which weighs probably 300 pounds, was not setting squarely on the sidewalk, but part of the base projected over the edge, which would make the machine easily overbalanced. The sidewalk at this place, stands about 4 inches above the road. The boy walked behind the machine and taking hold of the machine sought to pull himself upon it. Mr. Cullison saw it tipping, and rushed to catch it, but too late. The lad fell with the back of his head on the sidewalk and his body lying in the road, the dial of the heavy machine crashed on him, striking the boy on the right temple. The fall and the blow, broke the lad's spinal column, in the region of the neck. The boy's father, and Mr. Cullison carried him into the office of Dr. Stephens nearby, where he expired ten minutes later.

The weighing machine which caused the boy's death does not belong to Chas. Shadel, but is owned by a company, who pay Mr. Shadel a percentage of the receipts of the machine. Russell Price was 7 years of age, he has two older brothers and a younger sister surviving him. His parents live one mile west of Plymouth, near the Catholic cemetery. His father, Jacob Price, is a bricklayer, and is the son of Emanuel Price of this city.

The funeral was held at the residence Tuesday afternoon at 2 p. m. services conducted by Rev. E. C. Wareing of the M. E. church. Interment at Oak Hill.

WHAT BARNHART "STANDS FOR"

Booklets Now Being Sent to Republicans of Thirteenth Congressional District.

"Some things Henry Barnhart 'Stands For' is the title of a campaign folder now being sent out for the purpose of aiding the Democratic nominee for Congress in the Thirteenth district. One thing that Editor Barnhart stood for four years ago, and championed his cause most strenuously, was William R. Hearst. Of course, that fact is not enumerated in the booklet that is now being sent broadcast over the Thirteenth district, but it is true; and when the Republicans of this district become aware of it, the other things Mr. Barnhart "stands for" will not cut much figure with them at least.

The case was tried Saturday afternoon, and was taken under advisement of the court until this afternoon. Wm. Everly A. R. Clizbe and W. G. Hendricks, petitioned for the injunction, claiming that the council was about to abuse its discretion in granting the electric light franchise to a higher bidder. Everly and Clizbe were the other bidders. The judge held that although a court could not restrain the legislative acts of a council, yet in his opinion the granting of a contract was administrative, and since the difference in bids appeared to be so large, he would grant the temporary injunction.

STEALS HORSE --LOSES NERVE

BOY RIDES AWAY WITH PONY BELONGING TO CHARLES REEVE--RIDES BACK AGAIN--GETS AWAY.

Because the young thief lost his way, and also his nerve, the pony belonging to Charles, son of C. A. Reeve, which was stolen Sunday evening, was recovered, although the thief made his "get-away."

The thief was Harry Spahr, aged 20 years, who came to this city about a week ago, attired in a kakai army suit. He claimed that he was a regular artilleryman from Ft. Sheridan, Ill., and was bound eastward with a car load of mules. He has relatives in this city, and told that he had been given permission to stop and visit with them here. Different tales were told different persons however, which conflicted somewhat, and it was believed that young Spahr had deserted. One day last week he saw Charles Reeve riding his white pony, and asked permission to take a ride. Reeve consented, and Spahr rode the pony up and down the street for a few blocks. From that time he began loafing about the Reeve residence asking for odd jobs to do etc, and thereby aroused the suspicions of Mr. C. A. Reeve. Mr. Reeve ordered his son to keep the barn locked, and watch young Spahr closely. Sunday night at about 6:30, while the family was gone, Spahr entered the barn, bridled and saddled the pony, took the spurs and halter and drove off with the pony. The drive off. The theft of the pony was discovered in about half an hour. A search was at once begun. P. H. Kuhn with his auto, Wm. Ormond and others with horse and buggy set out after the thief. It was soon learned that he was seen going north on the Michigan road, and so the search was continued in that direction.

About 8:30 o'clock a crowd of boys called to Mrs. Reeve who was at the home that the man who stole Charles' pony was coming down the alley. He was soon beheld emerging from the alley back of Chas. McLaughlin's residence, turned east on Jefferson street, dismounted and proceeded to lead the pony across the bridge Mrs. Reeve was unarmed but called from the road "Stop or I will shoot." Without looking around Spahr released the pony and took to his heels running eastward. The last seen of him he was continuing in that direction. No particular efforts were made to effect his capture, and Mr. Reeve stated that he would not care to hunt the thief down.

It is evident that Spahr continued north on the Michigan road to the Julia Work farm. Here he turned west, and then south, his intentions being, seemingly, to circumvent the city and make off eastward. He probably lost his way, and upon striking the city on west Adams street finally concluded that he would try to put the pony back into the barn or pasture.

The pony had been out about an hour and a half, and was almost exhausted, being covered with lather and "blowing" hard. The thief escaped with the spurs and halter.

SHOWERS AVERT MILK FAMINE

FARMER REJOICES NOW THAT HE CAN PLANT WINTER WHEAT--PASTURES ARE GREEN ONCE MORE.

Plymouth gained materially by the heavy showers of Sunday (yesterday) and Monday morning. For as one farmer said, had the drought continued a week longer the city would have been "up against a milk famine." Even as the situation was the milk dealers were unable to supply the greater part of their customers with the milk they ordered. In spite of the fact that the thermometer fell from 82 to 84 degrees Sunday to 40 degrees last Monday night the farmers in this vicinity are wearing a smile as broad as a barn.

Previous to the rain storm the roads leading into Plymouth were unbearable for the pedestrian as well as the autoist and the cyclist. At certain points the dust was 9 inches deep and this condition of the roads made motor riding almost impossible and unless the autoist had a machine of extraordinary horsepower he stood as much chance in passing through them as a snowball has in a bake oven.

Even during the past 24 hours the pastures in the country have taken on a verdant color and the grass has assumed its natural hue. During the drought a farmer remarked that the ground was literally a burning mass as far as a foot and that it was impossible for even the wildest weeds to withstand that condition. Now that the pastures are green again the milk cows can start the daily milking.

DOG POISONER GETS 13 VICTIMS $100 OFFERED FOR ARREST

That contemptible specimen of human beings the dog-poisoner, has begun another trade against the valued and harmless dogs of this city, the second time this summer, and thirteen good dogs, all valued highly by their owners have died since Monday. Among the owners who have lost dogs are Harry Hoham, Oscar Tribbey and H. E. Wallace. The last dog poisoned died Saturday morning. In almost each instance of the thirteen canines that have been poisoned, the dogs were pets, and were held priceless by their owners.

So much interest and concern have been felt by owners of dogs, that a collection was started by Henry Myers and others, and over $100 had been raised by Saturday to hunt down and prosecute the dastardly poisoner. A reward of $100 is offered for information that will lead to the arrest and conviction of the guilty man or woman. A systematic hunt will be begun.

The first step would be to send one of the carcasses to Indianapolis and have it analyzed. The purpose in this would be to learn what kind of poison is being used. There are persons who believe

STUDENTS ARE HALED IN COURT

THREE HIGH SCHOOL FRESHMEN ARE FINED FOR CUTTING HAIR OF SOPHOMORE--COLLECTION TAKEN.

Three freshmen in the local high school, Gerald Shreeve, Herlas Poor and Dalas Glaub, were brought before Justice Young Tuesday morning, charged with assault and battery upon the person of George Jordan. They plead guilty and were each assessed a fine of 50 cents, which with costs amounted to $8.85. The boys were released on their own recognizance. The trouble arose over a little class fracas, which occurred on last Friday evening. The Sophomores had been "initiating" the Freshies by catching them alone, cutting their hair, in some instances tying them to trees etc. Friday evening the Freshies plotted a deep plot. They would have revenge. Some Sophomores were decoyed into a trap and the victims were partially scalped. Everything was done in fun, nobody was hurt, and the best feeling was held between the two lower classes. Young Jordan was one of the victims. A clean swath had been cut through his pompadour for forehead to the back of his neck. His pompadour was ruined. The lad went home in tears, and an angry parent took a hand in the "drama." Affidavits were filed against the three above boys, with the result of all being fined. The high school students sympathized with the Freshmen and are taking up a collection to pay the $85 fine against the boys. Hazing has been the custom in the high school for several years but never before has a suit resulted therefrom. The hazing was all done after school hours.
