CHAS. PROTSMAN IS IN TOILS

CHARGED WITH STEALING 5 HOGS FROM HERBERT
GIBSON.

Sold Stolen Swine Valued at $63 to a Bourbon Butcher for $38.

Charles Protsman an old man, almost disabled about 70 years of age, is languishing in the county jail charged with grand larceny, and unable to furnish bond in the sum of $300.

Protsman is charged with stealing five large hogs from Herbert Gibson, a farmer, residing east of this city, and selling them in Bourbon at about half their value, Thursday morning.
The theft was cleverly executed and would not have been discovered had not Protsman's actions aroused suspicion, which resulted in his arrest. Gibson owns a herd of 32 hogs and probably would not have missed the stolen ones for several days. The theft was made early in the morning, and the buyers at Bourbon, would not have questioned the ownership of the hogs.

About 5:00 a. m. Thursday morning Protsman had reached a bridge on the road, a mile west of Inwood.
He was driving five hogs, which refused to cross the bridge. Protsman walked to a nearby farmhouse and asked the help of the tenant, Louis Henderson. After telling Henderson that his name was Doc Perry, and that he was driving the hogs to Bourbon to sell them, the latter remarked that he didn't believe the hogs would stand the 10 mile trip, and he questioned Protsman why he did not drive the hogs to Plymouth. Prots-man answered that he was offered better prices in Bourbon, and that the hogs were to be purchased by Chas.
Bates at that town. Henderson called Mrs. Bates over the telephone.
She said that they were not buying on that day. These facts increased Henderson's suspicions, but he hitched up his wagon and drove Protsman and the hogs to Bourbon.
Here they were sold to a butcher by the name of Keller, for $38. The butcher was told to mail the check for the hogs to Chas. Protsman, at Plymouth.

Henderson drove to Plymouth later in the morning followed the trail of the hogs. They were traced to the Gibson residence, where the ranch ended. He related the affair to Sheriff Voreis, describing the man who had given his name as Doc Perry. Voreis connected the description to Protsman through the address list the butcher at Bourbon, and arrested Protsman in this city Thursday afternoon. Friday morning by Attorney E. C. Martindale, he waived preliminary hearing, was unable to give $300 bond, and went to jail to await a hearing in circuit court.

Protsman is well known in this city. He takes his disgrace moodily.
Thursday evening Sheriff Voreis told him not to be in the cold stone floor or he would get a severe cold. Prots-man answered that he wished he could drop dead then, and end it all.
Friday morning he begged the sheriff to buy him some carbolic acid, by which he might end his life.

THE LEMON BOX

Harry Knott and Clifford Burkett of Plymouth were basking in the sunshiny smiles of two of Valpo's fairest young daughters Sunday——Valparaiso Vidette.

It seems that the young man who recently called at the residence of L.
G. Harley was an eye-opener. Saturday morning, the first for several days, that benighted gentleman appeared on the streets of Plymouth without a green patch over his left eye. P. S.—L. G. is wearing a smile that won't come off.

Did you ever see a villain in a real good show, who when "foiled again," did not say T—h, T—h, Curses on him, T—h. Note (The above mentioned T—h, is produced by snapping an expiration through the upper teeth, and then shutting it off real quick with the tongue. Of course the front upper teeth must be located a little distance apart or better than all by extracting one of the front teeth) Extract from a melo-drama, which recently played in this city.

The music issuing from a horn on the east side of north Michigan street has been considered a god-send by the clerks in Ball & Co's store. While not busy the clerks have been noticed hanging about the front entrance during the evening, by the hour, listening to the dulcet strains, which permeate the air in that vicinity rendering the heart more buoyant, the step more light, and causing a general sense of being lifted to the blue ether fields, by those gappy ones who are within hearing distance. The charm has been unbroken. The other evening one rude swain, who evidently "had no music in his soul, and was not moved by the concord of sweet sounds" suggested "Get a new record." That clerk has been threatened with expulsion and perhaps bodily violence if he again so commits his unmusical soul.
