THURSDAY MORNING, NOV. 29.

Money Panic.

Our country has not yet recovered from the money panic of 1857, and all were totally unprepared for the one that is now upon us, and which bids fair to be far worse and more lasting than the one out of which the country had partly extricated itself. Induced there is no hope of its abating until a different state of feeling is brought about between the North and South, and at present we have nothing to found our hopes on, that money matters will be any better soon, but on the other hand we have every reason to fear that they will grow worse.

Since the election of Lincoln was made known in the South and those States have taken measures to secede, all Northern currency secured by Southern capital, (as most of our western money, in particular, is,) has depreciated and the bill holders of nearly all these banks have been subjected to a heavy shave and many of the banks have broken down under the strain that has swept over the country.

Already money matters are more uncertain and almost as distressing as they were three years ago. The whole country is in confusion and each section is supposing at the results they have brought about. The North stands dumb-founded at the result that has followed the election of their sectional candidate, and the South is paralyzed at the results their secession movements have produced. There is an entire want of confidence on the part of each section toward the other, and while this feeling exists we need not expect money matters to be any better than they now are, but we may look for them to grow worse and worse until our heretofore prosperous and peaceful nation is involved in bankruptcy, civil war and ruin.

Such is the inevitable result of the permanent triumph of sectionalism. The panic we are now suffering from is the natural result of the election of Lincoln, the sectional candidate of the North. It administers this government the next four years he will have a right to every principle that has been contended for by his party as strictly Republican. Whether he will turn traitor to the traitors who have elected him and prove himself at least a patriot or whether he will do the reverse remains to be seen, but one of these two things he will be compelled to do, and in the event of his attempting to carry out the policy of his party, a civil war is the inevitable result. Will he forsake his sectional principles and disunion party and save the country from ruin. In either event modern Republicanism will be dead.

Progress of Secession.

The Southern States are preparing for secession, in every branch of business. There is not as much enthusiasm or wild excitement as there was at first, but it now appears to be regarded by several of the slave holding States as a fixed fact that they are to secede and they are preparing for the results that will follow. Our last hopes for the preservation of the Union have about fled. Disunion is, most likely, right upon us. The South will no longer submit to the outrages of the North. Many of the free States have nullified the Fugitive Slave Law and the slave States think, very naturally and reasonably, that they have as much right to secede as the Northern States have to outrage the rights guaranteed to the South by the Constitution. The Abolition States will not, of course, repeat those outrageous, unconstitutional laws, and the South is in duty and honor, to herself, bound to resent those gross insults and injuries, and we believe she will do so.

A few of the slave States will peacefully withdraw from the Union and declare themselves to be a new and independent confederacy. Then the Administration will attempt coercion, the seceding States will resist, the other slave holding States will join them, and this state of things is what?—nothing but disunion and civil war. This we believe will be the immediate result of the triumph of Abolitionism. We could fill columns after columns with dispatches from the Southern States corroborating the foregoing, but we have not room for them nor time to put them in type.

PRESIDENT BUCHANAN is opposed to secession and will use all power in his hands to prevent it, and in the event of actual secession will undoubtedly attempt coercion. It is stated on what is said to be good authority, that there is a serious division in the Cabinet and it has been predicted that it will break up in a row before the President leaves the Presidential Chair, owing to the difference of opinion in relation to the right of States to withdraw from the Union.

All are waiting anxiously for the President's forthcoming Message. It will probably be laid before Congress by the middle of next week.

MISSOURI FOR DOUGLAS.—The latest returns from Missouri, although not complete show that the State has given Douglas a small majority over Bell.

More Kansas Troubles.

On the outside of this paper will be found some dispatches that will give our readers an idea of the condition of affairs in Kansas. Later reports show that the dispatches referred to are no exaggeration of the outrages committed by the notorious Black Republican outlaw, Montgomery.

Large numbers of volunteers have been raised in Missouri to protect the western border of that State.

General Harney has been ordered to Kansas, and it is to be hoped that he may get hold of Montgomery and that the traitor will speedily be disposed of in the same manner that Old John Brown was.

What party do the demons who make Kansas bleed, belong to?—what was Old John Brown and what is Jim Lane and Montgomery?—all Republicans.

PERRY WILLIAMS, AGAIN.—This little fete continues to whine, snap, snarl and puppy about what we have said of him from time to time, and persists in trying to insert his little maddening nose in our business. If it affords him any pleasure he is welcome to continue, but he must excuse us if we do not notice him every time he sneezes. That would be paying him more attention than such a dirty little pup as he is deserves; however, we hope he will not become discouraged, but "smell frequently and we will grow occasionally."

WE SHALL BE.—We understand that there are several Republicans in this place who are fishing for the Post Office. They all think they have "done enough for the party" to deserve the "sit." It is none of our business more than anybody else's, but if this is the grounds upon which they found their claims, we think Mattingly should have it. If Mr. Fuller was not in the Auditor's office he would have the strongest claim on the party in this county, as he has told more lies than any other Republican in the county. Next to him comes Mattingly. We are for him.

OUR "DEVIL."—We have procured the services of a new "devil" and although he performs his part "up to the handle," in most respects, yet he plays the devil's part, as may be seen by the thousands of this issue, where the mistakes were so thick that we could not find margin enough to mark them on. However we have great hopes of him, knowing that we were all "devils" once.

BAPTIST SOCIAL.—A Baptist social circle is to be organized in this place, we understand. It will meet the first time at the residence of Mr. Charles Palmer, on Wednesday evening next. All are invited to attend.

"CABBAGE-HEAD."—We discover that the Cabbage-head editor of the Republican is going to be a "heavy little joker." He says folks about here don't like cabbage-head editors. Moses says he'd better write your valedictory and retire.

GOSE FOR LINCOLN.—The latest dispatches from California and Oregon indicate strongly that those States have gone for Lincoln by a very small majority. Hereafter by a very little over one-third of the popular vote of either of those States.

READ IT.—Read the letter of Judge Douglas to the citizens of New Orleans, which may be found on the first page of to-day's paper. Like all his productions, it is conservative and sound.

NEW ADVERTISEMENTS.—The attention of the reader is called to the new advertisements that appear in this issue. The "Cosmopolitan Art Association" and "Duff and McCoy's Commercial College."

MEETING OF CONGRESS.—Congress meets on Monday next. We anticipate a stormy session. Disunion matters will soon assume a positive shape.

It was proposed by the Republican of New York to celebrate their victory by passing a large elephant somewhere in the center of the State, and inviting all the people.

Hon. Sir Boyle Roche's invitation to an Irish nobleman was rather equivocal: "I hope my lord, if you ever come within a mile of my house you'll stay there all night."

Last week the Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago Rail Road finished up the track to their new Depot ground in Chicago, connecting with the north-western road, which makes one continuous gauge of track from Pittsburgh to St. Paul, Minnesota, making it the longest continuous gauge of Railroad in the world. Mr. J. S. Buchanan Superintendent of repairs had charge of the work and drove the last spike in this great claim.—Porter Democrat.

Dolls Dutton in Cleve and.

This little lady who has attracted so many thousands to her Levees in New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Boston and other cities, arrived here yesterday, and she with her Parents, Manager and Company are stopping at the Weddell. She gives a Levee this afternoon and her second Levee this evening at Melodeon Hall and continues till Thursday evening next. The Philadelphia papers state that fifty thousand persons attended her four Levees in that city. We have seen very flattering notices of her in many of our exchanges. A Philadelphia paper says:

"For the last week the children have talked of nothing but 'Little Dolls Dutton' cries and frettings have been stopped by promises to go and see Dolls Dutton; noise and confusion have been suddenly hushed by 'tell me about Dolls Dutton' Dolls has come and in a shape no bigger than an agate stone on the forefinger of an Alderman. Beautifully formed, quick, graceful, with the most sparkling eyes, the prettiest curls, the neatest little arms and exquisite hands; so spry, intelligent, and yet only weighing fifteen pounds, and only knee high to a grasshopper!"

Running along the aisles of the Hall she looks like a fairy that would hardly tip a blade of grass with her foot or shake a drop of dew from a rose. Her Chariot could easily be an empty haid made by a jointer, or an old grub "tongue out of the fairies coach maker." A young out of a gentleman of her age placed upon the stage beside her is surprised when she can hardly reach with her hand to his vest.

The Hall will certainly be crowded again to night to see the fairy, and it is therefore superfluous for us to urge all to attend. Those who looked at her last night will be the very first at the Hall to-night. Tom Thumb was a wonderful sight, what shall we say of the charming Dolls—one third his weight and size? Stay not under the order of going, but go at once!"

A National Convention, The Correct Policy.

(From the Southern Confederacy, the Douglas organ at Atlanta, Ga., Nov. 12th.)

As before suggested in these columns, there is yet left a remedy by which the Union can be honorably preserved to the satisfaction of all fair-minded and reasonable citizens. It is now a settled fact that the South will not submit to the rule of any chief magistrate who has been elevated solely upon the one ideal principle of hostility to her most cherished interests. The bare submission to the government of an executive holding and pledged to maintain and carry out so unjust a policy, would be, on the part of the South, a base recognition of her inferiority in the Union, and as such only entitled to those immunities which are usually dispensed to vassals and subjugated peoples. But inasmuch as the South is the co-equal of the North in every respect, as a people, only asking for simple justice, and nothing more, they have resolved to have it under the aegis of the constitution, if they can; if not, in a separate government.

The people of the South, as a body, desire the preservation and perpetuation of the Constitution and the Union. They are willing and desirous that the Union of the States shall remain intact, and the laws administered in accordance with the guarantee of the Constitution as expounded by the facts; but they will never agree that the Constitution shall be interpreted to their serious detriment, or the bonds of the Union to seal their destruction.

The idea prevalent at the North, that a constitutional submission to insult and aggression is preferable to disunion. It is a great mistake. The South is in deep and determined earnest. She is tired and disgusted with the starchy agitation, and such is now the nature of affairs that all reflecting minds see that this question must be forever settled, or the bonds of union must and will be severed. Therefore the South proposes a plan by which all distracting differences can be settled, and a plan that each section and every interest, if agreed to, can be constitutionally protected and maintained, to the satisfaction and justice of all. Will the North consent that justice shall be done? We shall see.

The plan is, that there shall be a convention of all the States—a national convention—which shall convene in the city of Washington on the first Monday in January next, composed of two delegates only, elected by the people from each State of the confederacy, and that these delegates be instructed by the people to settle and arrange, in thirty days from the time of meeting, the question of slavery and all other sectional differences, upon a national, constitutional basis, and if the convention can agree upon a settlement, that its action be held on the 4th of March, 1861, be referred to the people for ratification or rejection. If rejected, let that settlement be incorporated by the proper authority as an amendment to the Constitution.

If the North, however, in Convention fails to give the South her Constitutional demands, then let it be understood, that the two delegates selected by the States of the South for a settlement, be also empowered to sever the bonds of the Union, and immediately proceed to form such a government for the Southern States as is congenial to their taste, suited to their interests, and will give them protection in all cases, and in all pursuits.

By pursuing a policy of this sort, the South will be justified in the eyes of all civilization. But if the South hastily secedes from the Union, without making a final effort at an adjustment of difficulties, we shall have wrangling and discontent in our midst, and with the curse of other nations. Let us then act prudently, calmly, discreetly, harmoniously, but firmly. If this policy is acceptable, it will supersede the necessity of separate State action, and give demagogues no opportunity to trifle with vital principles, or pander to the prejudices of the timid and the ignorant.

In the meantime, every member of Congress representing a Southern constituency, should resign at once. Let us have nothing further to do with the government until the eternal and everlasting question of slavery is settled. If the South cannot settle in the present Union, we can do so in a new one. But it is the first duty to settle it as possible upon honorable and equitable principles in the Union.
