

In this issue will be found President Lincoln's Inaugural. We have not room for comment and will only say that it is regarded as being anything or nothing—non-committal, and time will alone give it a meaning.

Inauguration of Mr. Lincoln.

HIS ADDRESS.

Fellow Citizens of the United States:—In compliance with the duties which I have assumed, I appear before you to address you briefly, and to take the oath prescribed by the Constitution of the United States to be taken by the President before he enters on the execution of the duties of his office.

I do not consider it necessary at present, for me to discuss the duties of administration which are placed upon me, or to express any opinion on the subjects which are before you. I have no special anxiety or excitement. I have no personal ambition. I have no personal interest. I have no personal stake in the result. I have only the duty which I have assumed, and I have only the duty which I have assumed.

I have no personal ambition. I have no personal interest. I have no personal stake in the result. I have only the duty which I have assumed, and I have only the duty which I have assumed. I have no personal ambition. I have no personal interest. I have no personal stake in the result. I have only the duty which I have assumed, and I have only the duty which I have assumed.

I have no personal ambition. I have no personal interest. I have no personal stake in the result. I have only the duty which I have assumed, and I have only the duty which I have assumed. I have no personal ambition. I have no personal interest. I have no personal stake in the result. I have only the duty which I have assumed, and I have only the duty which I have assumed.

I have no personal ambition. I have no personal interest. I have no personal stake in the result. I have only the duty which I have assumed, and I have only the duty which I have assumed. I have no personal ambition. I have no personal interest. I have no personal stake in the result. I have only the duty which I have assumed, and I have only the duty which I have assumed.

I have no personal ambition. I have no personal interest. I have no personal stake in the result. I have only the duty which I have assumed, and I have only the duty which I have assumed. I have no personal ambition. I have no personal interest. I have no personal stake in the result. I have only the duty which I have assumed, and I have only the duty which I have assumed.

I have no personal ambition. I have no personal interest. I have no personal stake in the result. I have only the duty which I have assumed, and I have only the duty which I have assumed. I have no personal ambition. I have no personal interest. I have no personal stake in the result. I have only the duty which I have assumed, and I have only the duty which I have assumed.

I have no personal ambition. I have no personal interest. I have no personal stake in the result. I have only the duty which I have assumed, and I have only the duty which I have assumed. I have no personal ambition. I have no personal interest. I have no personal stake in the result. I have only the duty which I have assumed, and I have only the duty which I have assumed.

I have no personal ambition. I have no personal interest. I have no personal stake in the result. I have only the duty which I have assumed, and I have only the duty which I have assumed. I have no personal ambition. I have no personal interest. I have no personal stake in the result. I have only the duty which I have assumed, and I have only the duty which I have assumed.

I have no personal ambition. I have no personal interest. I have no personal stake in the result. I have only the duty which I have assumed, and I have only the duty which I have assumed. I have no personal ambition. I have no personal interest. I have no personal stake in the result. I have only the duty which I have assumed, and I have only the duty which I have assumed.

I have no personal ambition. I have no personal interest. I have no personal stake in the result. I have only the duty which I have assumed, and I have only the duty which I have assumed. I have no personal ambition. I have no personal interest. I have no personal stake in the result. I have only the duty which I have assumed, and I have only the duty which I have assumed.

The power conferred in me will be used to hold, occupy, and possess the property and places belonging to the government, and to collect duties and imposts; but, beyond what may be necessary for these objects, there will be no invasion, no using of force against or among people anywhere. Where hostility to the United States is any interest or object, it shall be so great and so universal as to prevent competent citizens from holding Federal office, there will be no attempt to force obnoxious persons upon the people, but I shall do my best to secure the removal of such persons. While the strict legal right may exist in the government to enforce the exercise of these offices, the attempt to do so would be so irritating, and so nearly impossible, without, that I deem it better to forego for a time the use of such office.

The mails, unless repelled, will continue to be furnished in all parts of the Union so far as possible, and the people everywhere shall have as free access to the mails as they have heretofore. The course here indicated will be followed, unless current events and experience shall show a modification or change to be proper, as in every case and emergency, my best judgment will be directed according to the circumstances actually existing, and with a view and hope of a peaceful solution of the national troubles and the restoration of the fraternal sympathy and affection.

There are persons in one section or another who seek to destroy the Union at all events, and are glad of any pretext to do it. I will neither affirm or deny; but if there be such, I need address no words to them. To you, however, who really love the Union, may I not speak? Before entering upon so grave a matter as the destruction of our National fabric, with all its benefits, its memories and hopes, would it not be wise to ascertain previously why we do so? Will you hazard a step which deprives a minority of any possibility of doing their part in the Union, from any real or pretended right to do so? Will you, while the certain loss of your rights is at stake, risk the commission of so fearful a mistake?

All profess to be content in the Union, if only their rights can be maintained. Is it true, that all their rights can be maintained? Is it true, that all their rights can be maintained? Is it true, that all their rights can be maintained? Is it true, that all their rights can be maintained? Is it true, that all their rights can be maintained?

Resolutions of the Committee of Thirty-Three.

The following is a synopsis of the report of the committee of Thirty-Three under consideration in the House last Thursday:

1. That all proper and Constitutional remedies for existing discontents, and all guarantees for existing rights, necessary to preserve the Union, should be promptly and cheerfully granted.

2. That all attempts to obstruct the recovery of fugitive slaves be inconsistent with interstate comity, and dangerous to the peace of the Union.

3. That the several States be requested to revise their statutes, and repeal such as may be in conflict with federal laws on this subject.

4. That each State be requested to enact laws to punish violations of these State laws, and to punish violations of these State laws, and to punish violations of these State laws.

5. That each State be requested to enact laws to punish violations of these State laws, and to punish violations of these State laws, and to punish violations of these State laws.

6. That each State be requested to enact laws to punish violations of these State laws, and to punish violations of these State laws, and to punish violations of these State laws.

7. That each State be requested to enact laws to punish violations of these State laws, and to punish violations of these State laws, and to punish violations of these State laws.

8. That each State be requested to enact laws to punish violations of these State laws, and to punish violations of these State laws, and to punish violations of these State laws.

9. That each State be requested to enact laws to punish violations of these State laws, and to punish violations of these State laws, and to punish violations of these State laws.

10. That each State be requested to enact laws to punish violations of these State laws, and to punish violations of these State laws, and to punish violations of these State laws.
