

The Republican Members of Congress—Their Position.

From the State Sentinel.
To give a clear idea of the position occupied by the Republican members of Congress in their controversy with Mr. Long to advance partisan interests, we copy the following comments of the New York World of Monday last:

Mr. Colfax—always a demagogue—has overdone the mark in his attempt to catch a little cheap popularity. "Vaulting ambition has o'erleaped itself and fallen on t'other side."

Three of the Republican journals of this city—that is to say, all of them except the Tribune, have expressed their disapproval of this attempt to expel Mr. Long for words spoken in debate. The Evening Post, in particular, has declared its sentiments in a way which we trust may prove instructive to the popularity hunting busy-body who has prostituted the dignity of his office. Says the Post:

"But there is more than a question of mere party expediency in this matter. Mr. Long's speech was a perfectly legitimate expression of opinion. He thinks that the rebels must be allowed to go in peace or be exterminated, and the states brought calmly and respectfully, in proper words. We do not think it necessary to concede the independence of the Confederacy (which is an impossibility in our view), nor to extirpate the people of the South."

"We are not, however, unwilling that those who have come to other conclusions should have the full liberty to express them, whether in the newspapers or on the floors of Congress. If they carry that liberty to the extent of overt acts of treason, they can be arrested and punished."

but if they remain within the limits of fair debate, if they controvert argument, if they present only logic, eloquence, appeal, in favor of their views, they are but exercising the rights which belong to all freemen."

That the description here given of the temper and manner of Mr. Long's speech is true should be evident, even to those who have not read it, from the fact that he was not called to order, either by Speaker Colfax or any member, during its delivery. When his hour was up, he requested an extension of time to conclude his speech, a request which was granted with alacrity by leading Republican members. If the speech was reckless with treason why was not Mr. Long called to order?

By one of the rules of the House, in cases requiring it, "the Speaker shall, and any member may, call to order." To judge of one part of Mr. Colfax's conduct by the other, he sat a passive listener to flagrant treason, without calling the traitor to order, and it took him till the next day to find out that treason was an affront to the dignity of the House! By another rule of the House, "no member shall be held to answer or be subject to the censure of the House for words spoken in debate, if any other member has spoken, or other business intervened, after the words spoken and before exception to them shall have been taken." One might suppose that the Speaker, at least, would know the rules which govern him. It was his office to call to order the traitor, and he failed.

Other members did speak, may, a whole day intervened, before Mr. Long, in the very teeth of this rule, was "held to answer for words spoken in debate." A model Speaker, this Mr. Colfax, who thus conspicuously violates a rule of the House of nearly thirty years standing!

ABOUT LOW-NECKED DRESSES.—At a fancy dress ball in Paris, France, recently, a lady was seen in a very low-necked dress, wide flaring and waving an abundance of green gauze. She was asked politely by a gentleman what she represented. "The sea, monsieur." "At low tide, then madam." The lady blushed and the gentleman smiled.

THE NEW YORK FAIR.—It costs $2 65 to see the various departments of the New York Fair, which includes "charge for viewing a lady's hand, 25c; charge for viewing a brick, 10c. It should be explained, perhaps, that the "view of a lady's hand" is an inspection of the soft, white hand of a beautiful "male through a microscope. The brick—

If you count the number of spots on a pack of cards, there are 353—so many days in the year; if you count how many cards in a pack, you will find there are 52—so many weeks in the year; when you reckon how many picture cards there are in a pack, you will find there are 12—so many months in the year.

The number of Macleodfield, who lent her flannel petticoat at a recent and somewhat sudden event, has been presented with a splendid bracelet by the Princess of Wales.

A Culpepper farmer, on whose farm the opposing pickets are stationed recently remarked to a Union officer: "I haint took no sides in this yer rebellion, but I'll be doggorned if both sides haint took me!"

A FIFTY THOUSAND DOLLAR REWARD.—In 1858, officer Van Ness, attached to the police force of San Francisco, rescued a man from drowning. The rescued man gave him his name as Charles Bernard Eggersson and offered to handsomely reward him. Mr. Van Ness refused to accept anything for his humane act. A short time since Mr. Eggersson died in Liverpool and left officer Van Ness a legacy of $50,000.

The number of printing presses now in operation, or ready for use, in the Treasury buildings in Washington, is so large that if placed in a line, they would extend a quarter of a mile.

There is a young man in Cincinnati who is so modest that he will not "embrace an opportunity." He would make a good mate for the lady who faints when she hears of the naked truth.

ROOMS

PLYMOUTH, MARSHALL COUNTY, INDIANA

The proprietor of this establishment having purchased the late interest of A. J. Haerler in the same, and having made extensive additions thereto, is now prepared to do all kinds of Photography, Ambrotyping, Portotyping and Melanotyping in the highest style of the art. His large sky and side lights enable him to take all kinds of pictures in all kinds of weather.

He is now having an immense run of those beautiful Carte de Visites, that are all the rage in the cities. They are just the thing and everybody should have a dozen at once.

Life-sized Photographs as true to nature as the original, and very popular. Pictures of all kinds copied and enlarged.

Don't fail to procure a life likeness of your Father, Mother, Son, Daughter, Husband or Wife before their dear faces are hidden from your view by the grave. Money could not buy from you the poorest and faintest Photographic image of the lost loved one. Then delay not a day lest the substance fade ere you secure the shadow.

The undersigned having had years of experience in the picture business, and having recently become familiar with all the late improvements in the art, flatters himself that his work will compare favorably with the best done in the cities.

New and beautiful pictures, Stereoscopic views, etc., will constantly be added to the already respectable stock, so that this establishment will indeed be a "Fine Art Gallery." Call and see the pictures. E. H. HALL, Agent.

Policies Issued Without Delay.
