

THE CORPORATION.

The Republican, and several papers outside of our county, seem considerably exercised over our "assaults" upon the Corporation authorities of our town. We are of course, daily sorry that we are compelled to disturb these gentle men, but nevertheless must discharge our duty as a public journalist, and otherwise our readers would consider themselves unfairly treated.

The present Corporation administration came into power with a grand flourish, and profuse promises of reforms, improvements, and retrenchment. That was all very good, and it will be still better if they make those promises good. So far they have signally failed in every respect, and we very properly complained of their failure. We anticipate a failure throughout their administration, and expect to note down their shortcomings, and write up the full record of them at the close of the year. We hope by this means to protect the interests of our people and to teach these loud and profuse talkers a little modesty or a little honesty, and perchance a little of both. We also expect to demonstrate that reforms are not made by repealing inefficient laws, nor improvements by enacting childishly illegal ordinances, nor is the increase of salaries and wasteful and useless expenditure of money for partisan purposes the true system of retrenchment.

Then perhaps we shall succeed in convincing them that they are neither wiser nor better than their neighbors. So mote it be.

THOSE LAWS.

The good people of Plymouth are no doubt well pleased with the great changes everywhere apparent, effected by the New Board of Trustees. Every thing in the town has already received its fair share of consideration from these wise lawgivers. Even the dogs have not been omitted from the sagacious scrutiny of the Fathers. The innocent canines who roam majestically through the streets need fear no more the baited meat, as the muzzles which the new law requires them to decorate their countenances with will effectually bar it from their rapacious maws, a consummation devoutly wished for by the dogs. Amongst the varied excellencies of these new laws, they are not unalterable like those of the Medes and Persians, neither are they incomprehensible like the Roman Caligula, much less are they inviolable like those of the Spartan Lycurgus, above all they are said to be cheap, peculiarly, they are trifling, intrinsically they are beyond price, and if they do not serve the purposes for which they were designed, (the good government of our town,) the citizens are utterly incompetent to appreciate a good thing.

They are printed on fine paper, (legibly enough where the ink holds out,) so that the wayfaring man if not a fool may read, be edified, and know that Plymouth modestly reclines beneath the aegis of statutes by authority. They are complete in books, bound in green and yellow covers adapted to the verdancy of youth, as well as the senile atrophy of the sere and yellow leaf of age. In them are twenty-four law ordinances to govern the five irascible gentlemen who compose the board, the Marshal and Clerk, not to mention the Attorney, who is a law unto himself, (that is to say under a sublime affiliation.) There are also twenty-two laws for the good government of the 2300 taxable citizens, or one law for every 100 men. Much like Sir John Falstaff's tavern reckoning, "an intolerable deal of sack, (or beer,) to a poor penny worth of bread." The disproportion of the laws to subjects in this case is not easily understood unless by an intimate acquaintance with the authors; it is a mathematical, as well as a philosophical problem, dependent on time for its solution. One of the statutes relative to the board gives them $3 a day, or an hour, according to the protracted nature of the session, and a liberal allowance (to be decided by themselves) for all items of duty outside of the session. This law has sprung from the penurious conduct of the former boards, who allowed themselves but $1.50 per day (or a session) and nothing for duties outside of the sessions. The act was severely criticised in the late board by one of the cute members of this, in certain chaste and highly polished resolutions which he got possession of at a Firemen's meeting last winter; this learned law-maker has only prevented the resolution referred to from applying to the per diem, and even then it may be hinted by some scurrilous creatures that the new board have never met, but for their $3 a session. The only merit in this case of double dealing, is in its originality, which will give the act immunity from criticism until it has been fairly tested. If the authors of it can induce those who never paid a Corporation tax since they lived in it and those others who refused to pay last year, through their persuasion to pay now, the treasury may not fail under this double draft upon its meager resources, otherwise the municipal indebtedness may increase. To prevent a contingency so calamitous to the reputation as well as the pockets of these law makers, they have made ample arrangement to reimburse the exchequer, by raising the license on auctioneers from $2 to $15 per day, the experience of former law makers confirms this act to be a fruitful source of revenue, if not into the municipal treasury, then certainly into the tills of merchants who will meet with no competition in the sale of damaged or other worthless goods, from itinerant auctioneers. To further fortify this fluctuating treasury, a duty has been laid on horned cattle (all the mules are kindly exempt) that wear bells and pergrinate through our streets, by night especially, or by day, the authorities heretofore have been deaf to all appeals made in this matter. The inhabitants of these horned cattle's bells, alas how they tumble on our slumbering bells in the startled ear of night.

For which musical entertainment they should pay, besides, horses, are odious, hideous, repugnant to all the finer feelings of nature, and unendurable since the first cuckold. This deriving good for the treasury out of the evil doings of horned cattle, must be deemed judicious. The hog, that most provoking and immodest beast (to be lead or driven) and is not eaten by the people of Israel, having enjoyed the luxury of bathing in any of the mud puddles on the streets, these many years, must also pay, and to facilitate the collection of this tax it is expected that all owners of hogs will immediately label them with his or her name in some conspicuous place on the animal so that the Marshal can be sure of his customer.

The ass, too, has not been forgotten in this judicious selection of taxable animals, but for some inscrutable reason the Marshal, whom he favors, perhaps, in some respects, has omitted him from his proclamation.

BARNACLE.

Eld. Godfrey on the Republican Party. Elder Godfrey, who is a Methodist Presiding Elder in this District, has his eyes opened to the corruption and rottenness of the Republican leaders in this State, and is opening out on them heavily. The Elder is a man of considerable ability, and earnest in his political and religious convictions. He is in the habit of saying whatever he thinks, and we are glad to find him showing up the deformities of Republicanism in their true light.

The Elder preached a sermon at Lebanon last Sunday evening, at the conclusion of which he alluded in scathing terms to the rottenness and corruption of the leading Radical politicians of Indiana, and charged the "wire manipulators" with hostility to the Methodist Church. He said that Lincoln turned Methodists out of office, and appointed none, and removed Joe Wright from Berlin because he was a Methodist. Grant had appointed no Methodists to office except his brother-in-law as Consul to a German State. He also stated that it was a fact that more Methodists were appointed under Buchanan's administration than any other, and that the Methodists voted with the Democrats up to 1861, at which time they "sluffed off" on the whiskey question, and have since voted with the Republicans. He claimed that the Methodist held the balance of power in Indiana, and if the Republican politicians persisted in ignoring the Church, they would turn things upside down again, and abandon the support of the Republican party. He said that Cumbach was a martyr to his religious opinions and characterized Baker's conduct as infamous and treacherous. He defied anybody to point to a Methodist now in any important office. The Republicans, he remarked, had had control of legislation for twelve years, and had spurned the petitions of the united Church for a temperance law—the "whiskey guzzling" politicians had shoved their petitions under the table. He charged the Republican Legislation with the enactment of a most infamous divorce law, which was a disgrace to the State, and made the very name of Indiana a by-word and reproach the country over.

Indiana at twenty thousand, which he said was a power in the State not to be underrated, and he cautioned the radicals to look out lest they lost that support, the spinal column of their party. The "reversed gentleman" pitched into "Court House cliques" generally, charging that those influences controlled nominations, and to that source he attributed much of the demoralization and immorality inside of the Republican party, which he, no doubt, thinks will cause its disintegration and overthrow. Mr. G. is an earnest and intense Radical in his political opinions, but we must infer, from the tenor of his remarks, that he has no confidence in the representative men of the party whom he thinks are bound to lead it to destruction. He is one of the prominent radicals, who believe that the radical party, under its present guidance, fails to accomplish its mission, and hence must be regenerated and purified, or else it must soon bite the dust. From a moral standpoint Mr. Godfrey rightly appreciates the corruption, dishonesty and rottenness of the radical party. And its political status, so far as the great economical questions of the day are concerned, is not less detrimental to the public good and welfare than its moral. —LaFayette Dispatch.

AN ELOPEMENT.—The usual staid, sober and steady town of Rochester, which lies about twenty mile south of Plymouth, a few days ago furnished the principals for an elopement, some of the particulars of which we have from the one who was left behind. It appears that a married man by the name of R—, a cooper by trade, conceived the idea of changing his domestic state, and in furtherance of his designs, informed his wife that he had made arrangements to work at his trade in Plymouth, and that he would sell off most of his property, and go there. He did sell the property; and in company with another woman left for parts unknown. His wife and daughter, the latter about ten years old, came from Rochester on Tuesday evening in search of him; but on inquiry of the man for whom he said he had engaged to work, learned that he had not been here, and that he was not known here at all. Mrs. R., is searching for him; but it is not likely that she will find him, or that it will do her any good if she does. Men or women who will not stay at home when they are there, are hardly worth looking after when they run away.

Rochester is giving signs of renewed life, and we have no doubt that ere long, will furnish a real live sensation.

THE LADIES OF THE ST. JOHN'S GERMAN EVANGELICAL LUTHERAN church will give a Fair and Festival at Balcourt Hall on the first day of September. Ice Cream, Lemonade and other refreshments will be served. The articles for the Fair will be on exhibition and tickets for the same for sale; admission ten cents. On Sept. 2d, there will be a grand Pic-Nic at the Summer Garden, where the articles on exhibition will be drawn at 2 o'clock p. m., dinner will be served at one o'clock p. m., adults, 35 cents, children 25 cents; refreshments of all kinds can be had at the Garden. Amusements of all kinds will be furnished.

The Plymouth Silver Band will be in attendance to enliven the occasion. Teams will run to and from the Garden during the day. Everybody is respectfully invited. Proceeds for the benefit of the Church.

VILLAINOUS PROCEEDING.—On Wednesday night, two weeks ago, as the northern bound freight, on the C. C. & L. R. R., approached a deep cut about 3 miles south of Plymouth, the engineer saw a short distance ahead of him, two large sticks of timber or wood, placed in such a position on the track, as to leave no doubt in his mind that they were placed there by some malicious wretch, for whom there is no legal punishment severe enough. The engineer, Hank Stewart—succeeded in so nearly stopping his train before reaching the obstructions, that but little mischief was done. All suspicious characters in the neighborhood of the attempted outrage, should be closely watched, that the guilty may be brought to merited punishment.

An Exchange says that President Grant has appointed his barber to office. He is a negro, Oliver LeDain was the name of the barber and bosom counsellor of the French King, Louis XI. Grant's negro barber is appointed to the Third Auditor's office. We presume there is no soldier now wanting an office, since this is given to Grant's negro barber, who does not even seem to have been one of the "colored troops who fought so bravely," according to Artemus Ward.

to the effect that in addition to the recent great eclipse, and the approach of the comet, we are, in a few years, to have another sensation which is nothing more nor less than a transit of Venus across the sun's disc. It is periodical, but the periods are unequal. The first of them, during the present century, will take place in a few years, and will be visible wherever the sun is. It is an eclipse, also, in a certain way, for Venus gets between us and the sun, but being so far away from the earth, it intercepts less of the sun's light than if it was closer to our planet. Astronomers regard this transit as only second in importance to a total eclipse. The present is an age of celestial wonders.

MISCELLANEOUS.

—Hog cholera has just made its appearance in Ohio county.

—George Washington Franklin Browns the name of a white man in Evansville who has just married a colored girl.

—There are now but 100 inmates in the house of refuge at Plainfield. —Chas. Hans, of New Albany, was drowned in the Onondaga river a few days ago.

—There are a great number of vacant dwelling-houses in Evansville, and rents are coming down.

—James King, of Randolph county, laid down on the track of the Bellefontaine railroad, near Indianapolis, on Saturday, to take a sleep, thinking the noise of the approaching train would wake him. It didn't—and he was killed.

—A novel marriage case recently occurred at Rockville, Parke county. A couple who lived unhappily together were divorced. The husband went away, remained about four weeks, returned, made love to his former wife, was accepted, and the two were reunited in the silken bonds of matrimony, all within a month or six weeks.

—The Terre Haute Express has the following speculation upon the population of that city: "The new city directory contains the names of 4,700 men. According to the usual mode of computing population, this would give this city a population of only 20,420."

—A tobacco stemmy, 40 by 100 feet and five stories high, is in course of erection in Rockport, Spencer county. A lot has just been bought for another, which will make six in all in the town.

—The state convention of Universalists will meet with the church at Logansport, from Sept. 1st to the 6th. At this meeting the question of location of a state denominational school will be definitely settled. Logansport has raised a subscription of some $23,000, and the board apparently felt out with the Muncie people, hopes to secure the school.

—Last week, Mr. Joseph Ashbrook, living near Milford, had two twin children die. They were about eighteen months old, and during their entire sickness they seemed to be in complete unison with each other. They must nurse at the same time, and the moment one commenced to cry the other did also; the operations of nature were at the same time; their disease was the same—and both died at precisely the same time.

—The hailstorm which occurred on Wednesday of last week is described as the most terrific that has visited Warren county for years. In the size of the stones that fell, there has never been an equal in old Warren. Stones fell as large as hulled walnuts, and some even larger. Much of the hail was of rough, jagged appearance and shape, as if a chunk of ice had been suddenly shattered, and the fragments sent down. Stalks of corn were knocked in two, and the small portion of oats harvest unfinished was ruined.

—Quite a stir was caused in town one day last week, by the settling of the lot on which is located Frank Armstrong's ice cream saloon. The lot is immediately over an old mine. No great damage was done to the property, the ground sinking but a few inches. The old shell of a building was warped and twisted slightly, but not materially injured. —Brazil Mirror.

—In Pike county, a few days ago, the wife of Moses Gates mercilessly, maliciously maltreated miserable Moses. Whereupon Belinda Gates, daughter of the aforesaid, pitched in for paternal rescue and flattened the nasal protuberance of the maternal female by a well-aimed blow with an unmentionable piece of domestic crockery.

and evidence of the Gates case is nearly finished, and when done will be perhaps one of the most massive documents ever filed in our supreme court. The proceedings in the case have been compiled by Mr. R. M. Smock, and cover one hundred and seventy pages, but they are a mere trifle as compared with the evidence, which is being compiled and will soon be finished. —Ind. Jour.

—Colfax has been roaming about all summer, smiling, grinning and shaking hands, and the papers have kept a bulletin of "Vice-President Colfax and suit." He wears a very long tail for so small a cat—and some democratic papers, we are ashamed to say, have assisted in giving the bobby a national bulletin. It is an insult to the American people to occupy the public press with such stuff.—Ex.

—Henceforth, they (Irishmen) will be found under the banner of universal freedom, for all mankind, in every land and clime.—Northern Indianian.

To which might be added a reasonable number of those "bloody catholic skulls" that were once paraded through the streets of Philadelphia by men who, like the writer of the above, registered a sacred oath before him heaven that no foreigner and catholic should ever be permitted to hold office in this "land of the free and home of the brave." —LaPorte Argus.

The "writer of the above" was rather too young to "register an oath" such as the Argus speaks of, at the time of Know Nothing uprising—is not particularly hostile to catholics, only when they assail our common school system, as they are now doing in Ohio, and has not the least antipathy to foreigners, whether they are Dutch, Irish, Japanese, Chinese, or Hottentots—in fact, he regards all of them in about the same light! For this is about

"Land of the free and the home of the Brave." —Northern Indianian.

Do we understand our friend of the Northern Indianian to class Hottentots, Dutch and Irish in the same category?
