Chicago opened the boreal season last night with a smart snow storm.

The wife of ex-Secretary Sherman was stricken with paralysis in Washington yesterday.

in the United States.

Superintendent Morgan of the Cincinnati public schools has decided that the school children of that city shall not be called on for contributions to the Lafayette monument. His head is level.

Governor Tanner of Illinois has decided that a laboring man can not go from one state to another to seek work. If Tanner is right the principles on which this government is founded are all wrong.

It is estimated that before next spring from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 of railway supplies alone will go to Cuba from the United States, and perhaps as much more of agricultural implements, while the demand for farm cattle will be very large.

A cat's paw was found in some sewage in Richmond. The health officers ought to make the fur fly.—Indianapolis News.

The cat's paw was not found in Richmond sewage. It was discovered in sewage that was bought at Indianapolis and sold in Fountain City, this country.

Senator Fairbanks will devote the remainder of this month to the campaign. He will speak at Cambridge City on the afternoon of the 26th. That will probably be the only speech he will deliver in this country. He will leave for Washington the last of the month.

Trolley lines are the coming conveniences for local travel in this country. Between the twin cities of Minnesota, St. Paul and Minneapolis, the electric line has driven the steam railway out of the field so far as local business is concerned. The same thing is taking place at many eastern points. An electric line is projected from New York to Albany, taking in all the leading towns between those two cities.

Yesterday's Chicago Inter-Ocean made the following announcement:

The Lake View Woman's club has invited the Chicago Woman's club to be present at the next meeting, October 17, when Professor Bamberger will deliver a lecture on sloyd in the public schools.

What in the world has Chicago got? E. Benjamin Andrews for it not to keep "sloyd" out of the public schools?

HOME STORIES.

Delicate Children

The annual overcoat renovating time has come, and in the pockets of some of them, especially in those of the boys, mysteries are unearthed. One of the most exciting of those mysterious events that was ultimately cleared up satisfactorily was related yesterday by a friend of the writer.

Johnny's overcoat must be hung out and aired and dusted before he could start into school with it again. The broom had been whispering of heavier clothes.

"There is a mouse in there!" she shouted.

Another lady was present, and a round of applause followed. The mouse pounced and poked and shaken, but no mouse emerged. A stick was thrust into the pocket, while both ladies gathered their skirts tightly about their ankles and looked nervous.

But no mouse ran out.

At last the coat was turned up-side-down, and out dropped the bugaboo—a rabbit's foot the boy had carried last year for luck!

AN ANTARCTIC EXPEDITION.

Henry Moss, the electrician of the Light, Heat & Power company, is envious of the honor conferred upon Nansen, the Arctic explorer. Henry has had some success in making pole-arm conditions. He recently headed an exploring party to the "south pole"—the one at thirtieth and south 4—and perhaps no explorer who fooled around the ends of the earth had such a hot reception as did Henry. He needed no furs or whale blubber to keep up his circulation. For further particulars see Henry.

SOME VILE JOKES.

George Goodwin, at the postoffice, was watching the opening and distribution of the mail yesterday morning, when suddenly he gave an Indian yell that sent a dozen people scurrying for safety.

"Somebody's trying to blow up the postoffice department," yelled George. Stooping he picked up a piece of mail that Lott had dropped in his flight. It was a bicycle pump, carelessly wrapped, and the nozzle end was sticking out of the wrapper.

A local wag who is sufficiently amateur to get off some terribly bad things does not seem to be interested in the recent discovery of a cat's paw in the Indianapolis sewage gas sold at Fountain City. He said:

"Well, where else would they expect to find the foot of a cat except in below-knee sausage?"

And some one threw something real hard and heavy at his head.

Two local physicians were talking about the speech of Mr. Bailey, of Texas, in the national congress, in which Mr. Bailey announced that his speech was a "toosin." One physician who had some trouble with a new remedy for diphtheria said:

"If Mr. Bailey doesn't want to get it in the neck, he had better exchange it for an anti-toosin."

UNCLE JOHNNY POWERS.

Diagram accompanying the death of the old gentleman known as "Uncle Johnny" Powers, who lived near Brownsville, in Union county, where so many of the Richmond camping and fishing parties had spent happy days in summer. "Uncle Joimmy" was the patron saint of the camp life down the Whitewater, and it is with genuine heart-felt regret that the boys heard of his death. They will be greatly comforted by the guidance and help of "Uncle Johnny," together with his kind hospitality and his friendly presence will be less pleasant than it formerly was, being thus robbed of its very enjoyable elements. The entire boys and a great many others who know the camp grounds and all the accessories will feel a sense of personal loss in the death of the good old gentleman.

A Narrow Escape.

Thankful words written by Mrs. Ada E. Hart, of Gorton, S. D., "Was taken by a bad cold which settled on my lungs, cough set in and was terminating in consumption. Four doctors gave me to understand I could live but a short time. I gave myself up to my Saviour, determined if I could not stay with my friends on earth, I would meet my absent ones above. My husband was ad to get Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, took cold in all eight bottles. I gave it a trial, took in all eight bottles. It has cured me, and thank God I am saved and now a well and healthy woman. TRUST nothing free at A. G. Lukens & Co. Drug Store."

Stranded.

"For Liberty and Love," the Cuban war, plays partly owned by W. L. Kettell, a prominent young man of New Albany, has met with a sorrowful fate on the road. After playing a week's stand at Chicago, W. J. Fitzpatrick, the acting manager, skipped with the company's funds, leaving the members penniless. The company played here a few days ago.
