The ladies of the M. E. church of Whitewater will give a Chinese supper at the church on Saturday evening to which the people of Richmond are cordially invited. A number of fancy quilts and pillows made by the ladies will be offered for sale.

The local coal dealers are going to have competition in the supplying of coal to the city buildings, it appears. Several coal dealers from out of town, notably Dayton, have written the city clerk for information with regard to the matter, that they may put in bids.

In circuit court this morning the Manley case came up but was continued indefinitely on account of the absence of the main witness, Mrs. Julia Manley. This lady has never been heard from since the trial. The process of law, so that contempt of court will not lie against her, but the judge at noon, that Manley, who is her husband, shall stay in jail until the case is tried.

Charles U. Jordan, trustee of Franklin township, living at Whitewater, met with quite a loss Saturday night. He was driving a team of age who wanted a bonfire and had a most successful one. Among other things which contributed to the success of the bonfire was Mr. Jordan's barn and contents, with a fine survey and a lot of feed. The loss was about $600.

The ordinance requiring the street car people to put fenders on their cars, gave them 90 days to do it. The 90 days expired last week and city clerk notified the council and the mayor. Now that the road has changed hands it will not be the policy of the council to be conservative until the new owners get their hand in but the ordinance will be required to be respected at the proper time.

Muncie Times: The Rev. A. W. Lampson, pastor of the High Street M. E. church, is in Muncie today and will preach at the church Sunday. He will move to Muncie next week. His family and family will occupy the Methodist parsonage adjoining the church. The minister will be given a reception by the members of the church and the Epworth League as soon as his family arrives.

The work at the Paper Mill bridge is not yet opened for three months, probably. The chords of the old bridge were found not to be in so bad condition as was feared and those which were unsafe have been removed and replaced by new ones. The bridge is now raised and the foundations will be in by tomorrow night so that it can be lowered to place. It will then be four feet above the street at one end and so travel there will be impossible until the street is brought up to the grade, and that will be a matter of three months at the best, from the look of things down there.

One would think the elevator at the court house would be used a good deal now that taxes are being paid and a large per cent. of the people are required to go to the second story to pay their taxes, but about the only use the elevator has seems to be for the attorneys going to court. The man in charge says that the reason is that people, especially those from the country, object to riding in it, and the heavier the person the more strenuous the objection. Why they should be afraid to ride in it does not appear, as the elevator is the best it is possible to build, and while it costs two-thirds of a cent each trip, it was put there for the accommodation of the public.

An instance of how a fortune can be lost is given at Eggemeier's egg packing establishment. It used to be that eggs bought in the country had to be packed in bran and brought in, and the manner of packing for shipment was not much better, so that the breakage was considerable of a loss. A man who is still buying for them through the country invented a way of packing by which strips of cardboard are cut so that while the expense of the board is very small each egg is in a little pasteboard box by itself, in the crate, and breakage is impossible unless the crate is smashed; and the breakage is very slight. Not understanding that there was value in the idea the inventor never patented it, now everybody is using it. If patented it would have made a millionaire of him.

When D. K. Zeller died he left a will in which he placed $5,000 of his estate in the hands of his son and daughter as trustees for benevolent uses in such a way that the money was to be loaned at 6 per cent. and the interest for ten years to go to the Presbyterian church of which he was a member; and after that time the $5,000 to go in other benevolences. The will was made several years ago when it was easy to get 6 per cent. out of money on loan. Now the tax rate is such as to amount to nearly 34 per cent., which would cut the net amount to go to the church considerably. Mr. Compton, the assessor, gives the opinion that it is taxable and will be listed for taxation. If left direct to the church it would have been exempt, but so long as it is in the hands of trustees it must pay taxes.
