Pain in Head, Side and Back.
For years I suffered with pain in the head, pain in the side, and in the waist. I was never satisfied with any treatment and could not sleep at night. Pills and other medicines I tried only made a bad matter worse. Then I tried Celeery King. One package of Mrs. McMillen's Celeery King cure relieved me. Now I am well again.

SATURDAY, JUNE 15, 1901.

"Short in his accounts" is a phrase that appears in the newspapers as regularly as the sun rises. It is a brief but sad story of human weakness, and it would be a good text for a baccalaureate sermon. Many a young man who starts out in the world with good prospects and good intentions is wrecked for lack of correct ideas of business morals. Too many trusted employees seem to think that they have a right to speculate with funds entrusted to them and to take chances with such funds as if they were their own. Sometimes their ventures are successful and nothing is ever heard of them. But that does not make them right. The essence of theft is in them. Their success does not change the moral nature of the transactions. Those persons who engage in them ignore the divine command, "Thou shalt not steal." The man who will put in jeopardy funds entrusted to him, in order to enrich himself, lacks a proper conception of right and wrong. This lack is responsible for a large proportion of the suicides that are daily reported.

BEAUTIFUL WEDDING.

MISS Elizabeth Wilson and Thomas Raeburn White were wedded on June 15, 1901.

(Newspaper column) Probably the most brilliant church wedding solemnized in New Castle in a decade took place Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock, in the Friends church, in the presence of 300 guests. The contracting parties were Miss Elizabeth Wilson and Thomas Raeburn White of Philadelphia. The platform and front of the church were well tooled with roses, palms and ferns, and the assemblage was one of the good looking sort, which New Castle is celebrated for putting out on public occasions.

The bride and groom marched down the aisle to the sweet tones of the wedding march, preceded by the ushers, bridesmaids, maid of honor and the best man, and were met at the altar by the solemnized Mr. Weaver, who solemnized the marriage. The bride was lovely in white silk, and carried a wreath of bride's roses. The groom wore the regulation black. The maid carried large bouquets of pink roses.

Rev. Weaver spoke impressively for seven minutes on the sacredness of the marriage relation, after which the handsome pair, who had stood facing the minister, turned to face each other, and clasping their right hands, each repeated the Friends' marriage vow, in these words, the groom first proceeding:

"In the presence of the Lord, and before these our friends, I take thee, Elizabeth Wilson, to be my wife, promising with Divine assistance to be unto thee a loving and faithful husband until death shall separate us."

Then the bride repeated the same words with the necessary variations.

After the ceremony a reception was given at the home of the bride on south twelfth street from 7:30 to 8:30. Mr. and Mrs. White left at 8:30. Mr. and Mrs. Josiah T. White at 9:20 on a extended wedding tour, and will not be home again until at 1:30 Maplewood avenue, Philadelphia.

Relatives from Richmond who attended the above wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Josiah T. White, Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Nicholson, Mr. David T. White and daughter, Mrs. Francis Stephens and Miss Maud Toms.

A LESSON

In Street Car Manners.

Pauline A. Dohn is represented by two strong productions in oil. One of these, "The Seeker," appeared in the exhibit of the society of Western Artists during the past season. It is especially fine in color and texture. The composition, simple, wistful, face of the seeker is deeply impressive. Richmond is highly favored in the privilege of enjoying this masterly work. Miss Dohn's "A Tiger Lily," which was exhibited here last year, was also shown in the Chicago Artist's Exhibit where it won high praise. Her "Allison Bell" was shown in the recent general of the recent Carnegie Institute Exhibit at Pittsburgh and her "Preparing for the Fete" was the prize winner of the recent exhibit of Chicago artists. She stands high as one of the structures of the Art Institute.

Swend Svendsen is represented by two striking oil pictures, one of which is "Portrait of a Woman in Christiana" in 1865. He removed to Chicago in 1883. His standing as an artist is very high. In 1895 he was awarded the Young Fortnightly prize of $100 at Chicago Art Institute. At Nashville exposition in 1897 he received the special award of honorable mention, an honor equal to prize winner. His pictures are shown in all important exhibits and are marked by originality and boldness. His "Peaceful Evening" is full of feeling and the spirit and charm of dying day. Its color is delicate and harmonizes perfectly with the theme. His "Village on the Hill" is a representative creation, marked with glowing sunset tints on the horizon. To many it may seem overdone, but to those observers of nature it is a faithful representation of one of his striking moods. One cannot but hope that his "Peaceful Evening" may remain in our midst to cheer and refresh us.

Among the self taught geniuses of the American art fraternity none stands higher than William Wendt. Born in the village of Germany, he came to America when quite young. Without any set training he worked in a picture factory turning out "by the yard" his daily quota of premium pictures, so called. He gave up this wholesale production of pictures and opened a private studio, since which time his rise in the art world has been most wonderful. At a recent exhibit of his pictures at Chicago Art Institute twenty two out of a total of twenty four exhibited were sold at prices ranging from $150 to $500. To do full justice to an artist's work one must know his aims and be able to measure the success attained in his expression. That Mr. Wendt's work deserves the same high rank that have been passed upon it is undoubtedly true, as may be seen from the following by way of his pictures presented in the exhibit. His "Glimpse of the Moon" is a work which will reward thoughtful study, and "Old Age" carries a pathetic message in its modest color scheme, so suggestive of Cazin in its gentle humanity and its perfectly transparent shading.

Miss Francis Brown is seen in one pleasing theme "Summer Afternoon" with its sunshine and splendid, almost photographic, cloud effect. It is marked by a fine perspective. The harmony is perfect. Miss Brown is editor of Brush and Pencil, one of the best art magazines published. Her is also connected with the Chicago Art Institute. Her work is highly esteemed, and justly so, for its good qualities.

J. H. Vanderpool is a native of the Netherlands, born in 1857. He was a pupil of Boulanges and Le Peintre in Paris, France. He is an instructor in Chicago Art Institute and a writer on art. He is the author of "Art in New York." Water Color class. He is represented by a picture of his wife, a portrait of a young girl, and a picture of a woman in a blue dress.
