MONDAY, JULY 1, 1901.

St. Louis was the hottest town in the United States yesterday, the mercury reaching 100 in the shade there.

One of the best indications that the Republicans will carry Indiana at the next state election is the fact that Republican candidates for state offices are already plentiful.

General Charles H. Grosvenor will deliver a Fourth of July address at Winfield, Kansas. The enormous wheat crop in that state has entirely wiped out the demand for Populist orators.

Four regiments of United States volunteers were mustered out at San Francisco yesterday. The volunteer army is rapidly being cut down to a peace basis. Only three more volunteer regiments remain to be mustered out.

The plan of naming school buildings after distinguished statesmen, warriors and men of literary fame has become very general in this country. Richmond is unique in having its public school buildings named for local celebrities. There is only one exception and that is in the case of the Garfield building which was named before the general plan of naming the buildings was adopted. To avoid confusion the names of living men were not used except in the case of the Hibberd building on south eighth street. It was named after Dr. James F. Hibberd because of the distinguished position of that gentleman as the local doctor of his profession and the fact that that building owed its construction to him.

On the question as to how long a woman should endure and try to reform a drunken husband Susan B. Anthony remarks:

How far a wife should go, how many years she should spend, how great an effort she should make, to reform a habitual drunkard, possibly each woman must determine for herself. The general statement may be made that in the vast majority of cases it will be a useless sacrifice of time and vitality. One never can feel sure of a reformed inebriate until the daisies are growing above his head. Even when a woman's love or sense of duty is so strong that she is willing to devote her life to this "reforming" process, she should settle with her conscience whether she has a right to bring children into the world under these unfavorable conditions, endowed with an inheritance which may prove a curse for many generations.

As a hot day yesterday was a record breaker. The hot wave extended over the whole country, and there was very little difference in the temperature between points on the northern lakes or Atlantic coast and the gulf of Mexico, as the following official record shows: Atlantic City, 94; Boston, 92; Chicago, 97; Cincinnati, 96; Davenport, Ia., 93; Denver, 94; Des Moines, Ia., 96; Indianapolis, 94; Jacksonville, 94; Kansas City, 98; Little Rock, 90; Marquette, Mich., 96; Memphis, 90; New Orleans, 94; North Platte, Neb., 92; Omaha, 98; Pittsburg, 94; St. Paul, 90; Springfield, Ill., 98; Vicksburg, Miss., 90; Washington, D. C., 98; and St. Louis, 100. These official figures do not show the actual temperature which the people in the cities named had to endure. On the streets it was from five to ten degrees hotter than at the elevated points where the government records are kept. People who were able to get out into the country escaped the heat produced by reflection from sidewalks and brick walls, but there was no escape from the high temperature that prevailed everywhere.

A Grand Old Man.

Amos Stuart, living at 44 south seventeenth street, celebrated his 93rd birthday yesterday. It has been the custom of the Stuart family to hold a family reunion each year and for many years the time has been selected on grandfather's birthday. Saturday was the day for the family dinner. Children, grandchildren and great grandchildren with a few other relatives spent the day in a royal manner. Sunday morning grandfather was up bright and early feeling well and lively. Congratulations and best wishes were received all day. Many telegrams and letters were received from far-away friends. Grandfather attended church in the morning, the afternoon was spent in receiving his friends and driving to the Glenview cemetery.

He is a well preserved old man, cultivates a large garden, which is very fine. He takes great pleasure in showing his friends his vegetables and chickens. His habits are regular. He reads a great deal and is posted on the general topics of the day. His love for his friends is great and he gives each caller a cordial greeting. He is a member of the East Main Street Friends church.

Public Waiting Room.

The meeting of those interested in the public waiting room occurs at North A Street Friends meeting house this evening. All are invited to be present, as there will be important business. The report of the nominating committee will be received, naming all the officers and committees for the year. The association is ready to go right ahead as soon as this is accomplished.

W. M. A. U.

At a meeting of the Westcott Mutual Aid Union held at the Commercial club rooms Saturday night the following officers for the ensuing year were elected:

President—John H. Pierce.
Secretary—L. M. White.
Treasurer—W. E. Russell.
Executive Committee—John May, Harry Brown and Frank Shissler.

There was paid out for relief during the year $306.
The treasury contains a balance of $115.

Hughes-Rost.

Yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the residence of St. Mary's church Father McMahon officiating, E. P. Hughes of Dayton and Miss Mattie Rost, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Rost of 625 Main street, were united in marriage. The witnesses were Leo Zeyen of Dayton and Miss Florence Lichtenfels of this city. The happy couple left for their future home in Dayton at 5:40 last evening. Father Hughes has prepared a handsome furnished home for his bride.

POLICE COURT.

The Only Cases in Police Court This Morning Were From the Sunday Liquor Traffic.

Charles Sighner was up for pro- voking on William Decker. He pleaded guilty to calling Decker bad names. His only excuse being that he was drunk, and was fined a dollar and costs.

William Decker, for assault and battery, said that Sighner called him names and he struck him. He was fined a dollar and costs. This affair occurred at 6 o'clock last night on south sixth street.

Pat Quinn for a Sunday drunk was fined $10 and costs, and went down. It was his third offense.

Building Permits.

The record of building permits issued during June at the city clerk's office shows the following comparisons:

June, 1899, brick, $1,500; frame, $2,400.
June, 1900, brick, $300; frame, $3,100.
June, 1901, brick, $7,100; frame, $7,925.

This shows that in the past June we did as much building as during the two former months. In fact twice as much as both years, and the class of buildings was much the best this year.

A building permit was issued to J. R. Elliott for a double frame house, 409 and 411 north nineteenth street, to cost $2,500.

By Wednesday.

Mr. Gunn, who has charge of the extensions of the street car lines, says: "If nothing happens we will have the line on the west side completed to the Country Club house in time for the cars to run there by the 4th of July. This will take hard work, but we mean to have it done if possible, and nothing will stop it except very bad weather. Work started today."

Beware of Ointments for Catarrh That Contain Mercury.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is too great for the good you can possibly derive from them.

Cincinnati Ready To Take Care of Twenty-Five Thousand Young People.

INTERESTING PROGRAM

Has Been Prepared for the Coming Convention of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor.

A Feature of the Affair Will Be a Grand Chorus of Twelve Hundred Voices.

Cincinnati, July 1.—Next Saturday the 20th international Christian Endeavor convention begins in Cincinnati. Preparations have been made for 25,000 registered delegates and many visitors.

The meetings will be held in Music Hall and the two exposition buildings adjoining it. Music hall in the same square will be used for conferences and section meetings. Music hall has one of the finest pipe-organs in the country. The two exposition buildings have been fitted up with large platforms for the choirs, the Christian Endeavor colors of red and white being most prominent in the decorations.

Saturday evening the welcoming addresses will be delivered by Governor Nash and local representatives. Responses will be made by delegates from the states, Canada and foreign countries. President Francis E. Clark will deliver his annual address, and Secretary John W. Baer will present his annual report. Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday sessions will be held morning, afternoon and evening in the three auditoriums. More than 150 speakers will take part in the programs of the several days, among them a number of representatives from foreign countries, a large number of foreign missionaries and prominent ministers. The laymen will be represented by General O. C. Howard, Hon. R. B. Capen of Boston, William Phillips of New York city, and others.

The music of the convention will be one of the special features, a chorus of 1,200 voices having been drilled for many weeks. This chorus will be divided among three halls and will be led by three of the best known leaders of choirs in this country.

Complete arrangements have been made for the reception of visitors, and a committee of 600 members of Christian Endeavor societies will attend to this work.

In addition to the programs for the three large halls, where seating accommodations will be arranged for 13,000 people, there will be daily meetings at 8 o'clock in the morning in three of the largest churches in the city. At noon there will also be evangelistic services held in the market places, factories, shops and public buildings, so that the entire day from 8 a. m. until 10 o'clock at night will be crowded with meetings and visitors will pick up meetings in which they are most interested. Among the prominent speakers who will deliver addresses are: Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman of New York, Dr. Cornelius Woolfink, Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, who has recently come from England to take the place so long occupied by D. L. Moody; Dr. George E. Purves of New York, Dr. R. A. Torrey of Chicago, Will R. Moody, Dr. Charles M. Sheldon and Dr. T. Hamlin of Washington, D. C., Dr. Wayland Hoyt, and Dr. Milton Merle Smith of New York.

A THING OF THE PAST

The Volunteer Army Today Faces Its History.

San Francisco, July 1.—Two important military events occurred at the Presidio Sunday, the retirement of Major General W. H. Shafter and the mustering out of four volunteer regiments. General Shafter went on the retired list at noon, when he formally left the service. He was accompanied by his family to the depot for the departure of California to Major General S. M. R. Young. In the afternoon the four volunteer regiments were mustered out. The mustering out of the four regiments required the services of eight paymasters. Over $1,000,000 was disbursed. The money was taken from the treasury to the Presidio in eight Dolberry wagons, each under the charge of a paymaster and his clerk. Forty-five artillerymen, mounted and armed, escorted the treasure and pay corps to the reservation.

In order to protect the soldiers on the grounds from gruffers with their swindling devices, 100 men of Troop E, 15th cavalry, were stationed around the reservation. The 44th and 49th, were colored, and the men had between three and four months' pay due them. As soon as the volunteers had been mustered out they rushed to the railroad ticket offices for transportation to their eastern homes. Nearly 4,000 tickets were issued. There yet remain three volunteer regiments to be discharged, the 43d, 47th and 41st. They are being paid off today. The volunteer army will then have passed into history.

THE LOSS OF THE HUAFU

By M. Quad.

Copyright, 1901, by C. B. Lewis.

It is now 20 years since the marine tragedy at Valdivia, a port in Chile, and the mystery surrounding the affair is not much clearer than it was the day after it occurred. At midnight one dark and rainy night a Spanish man-of-war named the Huafu and carrying a crew of 400 men entered the bay at slow speed, intending to anchor within half a mile of the wharfs. Of a sudden she was almost lifted out of the waters and cut over her beam ends, and something was felt to scrape along her whole side and keel. There was instant alarm throughout the whole ship, but before a single man of the watch below could reach the deck the Huafu turned turtle and went down in 90 feet of water. The suction carried down all who were on deck, and of that who crew only 14 men escaped with their lives, and among them was not one single officer. They were all agreed that the bows of the ship had suddenly lifted to an angle of 45 degrees and that after a few seconds she was twisted to port, and they heard the snapping and crashing of wood and iron.

It was at first believed that the Huafu had struck and run upon a submerged wreck, but after a vain search for

ONE OF HER BOATS WAS FOUND FLOATING, such an obstruction the idea was abandoned. Had no one been left alive it would have been difficult to a bolder explosion, but the testimony of the 14 survivors was against such an accident. All were agreed that there was no explosion of any sort and that the Huafu was still revolving as she settled down. As the unfortunate craft had cost about $3,000,000 and this was the first trip, the Spanish government went in for the most thorough investigation. The depth of water was not beyond the divers, and a buoy was set to mark the spot as near as might be until men could go down. It was two weeks later before the divers were ready, and then a second mystery was at hand. The Huafu was not to be found under or in the neighborhood of the buoy. For the first time in the history of the port it was learned that there was a stiff current running along the bottom of the bay, entering from the north and going clear around it to the south, and the current without disturbing the surface of the water was only disturbed by wind and tide, and even as far down as 40 feet no current could be felt, but the last 10 feet of water before touching bottom, especially at the mill race, when this fact was made clear to the searchers, they extended the field of their operations. The current ran strongest as the tide flowed in and directly in opposition. The Huafu had come in on almost a full tide, and the current would therefore drift her along the north side of the bay, or so it was reasoned. As a matter of fact, however, the north shore was searched without finding any trace of her. Then a search of the south shore followed, and then they hoped to find the sunken craft in some eddy near the center. It was five months before the divers declared that the bottom was clear of wreck of any sort.

Now came the question of what had become of the man-of-war, it did not seem possible that such a mass of wood and iron, with the weight of her guns and stores and unfortunate crew added, could be drifted any distance along the bottom, especially as the bottom was plentifully sprinkled with great rocks. There was no other way to account for her disappearance, however. The current had bumped her along the bottom for a distance of three miles, and then she took her exit to sea. Just off the entrance of the port the water deepens to 200 feet, and it was concluded that she had been carried into this basin to be buried under the coast. The conclusion of inquiry closed its labors much more befogged at the finish than at the start, and it was not believed that anything further would ever be heard of the craft. Nothing ever lay directly, but many things have come to light to still further tangle the mystery surrounding her. A year and a half later and as the coast of the mouth of the Gulf of Concovaco one of her boats was found floating. Its grips had rotted from the davits and drifted to this place. The boat was found in a state of decay, but it was clear that it had been carried down by the current. The mystery of the Huafu remains unsolved.

did not prove the position of the lost Huafu, but it satisfied many minds that she must be drifting southward. Three months later some of her boxes drifted ashore on the islands, 400 miles to the south, and six weeks after this find and still to the south some of her cabin furniture was picked up by a whaler. This discovery was without barnacles, proving that her boat had not long been adrift. It was concluded from this that the Huafu was still creeping along the bottom, the playing thing of the current, and the last find made almost settled the question. A second boat and more wreckage were washed ashore almost as far down as Cape Horn, and in the bottom of the boat were six inches of liquid mud. This must have accumulated as she floated or crept along the bottom of the sea, and the chances are that the boat did not drift about 20 miles after rising to the surface.

As to the accident in the bay, it is generally believed that the vessel struck a large whale which had entered out of curiosity and that in his pain and fright the giant fish had hoisted her up and then flung her on her side, but as no whale had ever been seen in the bay there is room for doubt. Wreck or whale or whatever it may have been, it was the cause of one of the gloomiest tragedies of the sea, and no one can imagine that ill-fated craft slowly creeping down around the God forsaken point of land which men call Cape Horn without a sigh of pity for the skeleton crew that mans its iron decks.

Gobelin Tapestry.
So important are their artistic merit and historic value that no history of tapestry is complete that does not include a description of their design and execution. For more than 200 years the existence of the papal manufacture of tapestries was unknown to the modern world. Documents relating to its origin and productions were lost and forgotten in the mass of manuscript in the famous Barberian library until a very recent date, when they were unearthed by Eugene Muniz, director of the National Ecole des Beaux Arts at Paris. In the popular mind all tapestries are associated with the Gobelin factories of France.
