

Live Stock Shows

...AT THE...

PAN-AMERICAN

WHEN Superintendent Converse promised a better series of live stock shows at the Pan-American Exposition than was ever before attempted, the statement was accepted as an ordinary pleasant and pardonable exaggeration.

The complete success of the dog and the swine shows, however, proved to be the first steps toward redeeming his promise.

The cattle show was an agreeable surprise to every stockman who saw it and at once established a new standard of excellence that will not be equaled for years to come and possibly never surpassed as regards quality.

The sheep show, now fully under way and lasting to Oct. 25, is in every way a worthy successor to the dog, the swine and the cattle shows. The best flocks in the United States and Canada are represented, together with their recent additions of imported stock, consisting of about twenty fine animals now shown in this country for the first time.

The sheep show, taken as a whole, is one of the most complete ever brought together. Every important breed has a strong representation, while every breed known has an exhibit of some kind. The Island Black Face, of which there are but three or four flocks in the United States, are well represented, and they are creating a great deal of interest among the exhibitors and visitors.

All classes in the middle wools are particularly strong, among which are noted prizewinners from the east, west, the rich pasture lands and an illustration of what may be produced there without additional feed and without artificial shelter.

The Pan-American Horse Show. Dame Fashion may have withdrawn her smile of approval and the different styles of autos turn their backs in derision, but the horse still holds favor with the great majority of mankind. The horse show at the Exposition which holds the boards for two weeks, from Oct. 7 to Oct. 19, will be no exception. Five hundred horses are coming which are carefully selected to faithfully represent the best of every breed found in the United States and Canada.

Vermont is again courting prominence by sending a fine lot of Morgan horses, a breed that should receive more attention than it does.

Draft horses, especially the Clydesdale and Percheron breeds, are well represented. These are principally from Canada and the western states.

German coach horses attract a great deal of attention. One large importation of these horses will be brought direct to the Exposition.

French-Canadian horses from Quebec are entered more as a special feature of the horse show. They are little known in the United States, but their style and endurance will commend them as superior coach horses and those that will command favor in any market.

Instead of enumerating the different breeds it is only necessary to select any kind of horse wanted, with the assurance that it will be on exhibition. The finest stables on the continent are contributing to the show with sufficient enthusiasm to insure the finest representation possible.

The judging takes place in the Stadium on the 9th and 10th of October, when this immense structure will be none too large to accommodate those who will want to see this crowning climax to such an elaborate series of live stock shows.

Poultry and Pet Stock. From Oct. 21 to the close of the fair the stock pavilions will be once more filled with life, though in a very different form. Poultry of high degree from all parts of the United States and many places in Canada will fraternize without regard to politics or tariffs.

As near neighbors the poultry will have mice, rabbits, cats, canaries, prairie dogs, squirrels, ferrets, rats and Belgian hares, besides a great assortment of pigeons, owls, magpies and a great many cage birds.

Eight thousand animals and birds are being gathered together to form this complete cosmopolitan assemblage of birds and animals.

Wool Exhibit. The Pan-American Exposition is proving a great success. While the enterprise suffered for a few days from the national tragedy, the crowds that have put off going until the fall are rushing to Buffalo in great numbers now.

President Roosevelt said of the Pan-American Exposition, "It is well worth the while of every man, woman and child in the country to visit the Pan-American Exposition."

More than 5,000,000 people have visited the Pan-American Exposition. As Secretary of Agriculture Wilson said on Sept. 11, after a visit, "No one can afford to keep away."

Thomas A. Edison said of the Pan-American Exposition after viewing the illumination, "This is the apotheosis of the incandescent light."

Poultrymen from all over the United States will be meeting at Buffalo and the Pan-American Exposition the last three weeks of October.

The stock shows at the Pan-American Exposition have been most popular. The sheep show began Sept. 23 and lasts until Oct. 25.

Innes' band, one of the best in the country, will give concerts free to all Pan-American Exposition visitors from Oct. 7 to 20.

SHE'S A PRINCESS NOW

An American Woman's Alliance

A Famous Italian Family.

On Aug. 26 at the palace of prince, near Lamporecchio, Italy, Marie Jennings Reid was married to Prince Rospiogliosi. Miss Reid was born in New Orleans, though her father for several years before going and to live was a Philadelphia. She is of an old and aristocratic Italian family.

Her ancestor it was who drew the present American flag. Her grandfather was United States minister to Italy. From her mother's side the blood of Kentucky flows in her veins. Her uncle is General di Cola, director of the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York, with a wide fame as an archaeologist.

The fairy prince is none other than the head of the oldest noble house in Italy—the enormously wealthy Ipe

PRINCESS ROSPIGLIOSI.

Rospiogliosi, whose family has been less than two popes to the Roman Catholic church and whose name has for centuries been on the conjure with in the Latin kingdom. The prince is very wealthy, while Reids are only in comfortable circumstances.

The princess has been married before. Her first husband was Free H. Parkhurst, a young lawyer of Maine, whom she met in Washington while she was a young girl. They were married in 1887 and divorced in 1898. Her income has been her money.

The Presidents and Woman Suffrage. Roosevelt is the first president of the United States since Abraham Lincoln who had expressed himself fully in favor of woman suffrage by attacking the presidency.

He proved himself favorable to it, by actions rather than words, as his bills giving women partial suffrage in New York when he was governor of that state. Hayes favored it, by his quiet way, and helped the senior senator of the Journal to get a man's rights resolution through the national Republican convention in 1872. Garfield recognized its importance. He said, "Laugh as we may, put it aside as a jest if we keep it out of congress or political campaigns, still the woman question rising on our horizon larger than size of a man's hand, and some say are long that question must be more or less friendly to it."

Roosevelt and Lincoln have been only ones to put themselves conspicuously on record.

The Empress Frederick Monument. Professor Uphues has finished sketch of the empress' monument and showed it to the emperor. The top of the empress is placed on a slender pedestal, representing her at about age of forty. The head is adorned with a crown, and the right hand holds the regalia together over the left. Below is the inscription, surmounted with a wreath, "Victoria, Bess Frederick." On the steps lies the interwoven with roses, to which accordance with the wish of the emperor, passion flowers have been added as a symbol of suffering. For the sketch pleased the emperor exultingly, and he found the head veiled and lifelike. The bust, twice natural size, will be wrought in marble. The pedestal will be of red granite, while the wreath and the palm be cast in bronze.—London Telegram.

A Novel Idea. At a children's party given last summer every boy and girl presented some character in a historical. It was more amusing than a party and quite as pretty as a dress ball, as every one wore a historical costume. Dorothy Manner and Richard Carvel led the process. She in a dress of old brocade that the way, had seen service in the days when Richard Carvel was alive. If her was.

Following them came characters from "To Have and to Hold," "The Helmet of Navarre" and all others the land is now so familiar.

Even General Washington was in the scene, so he could dawdle with Janice Meredith, and daughter of Paul Jones led the Virginia reel in the lovely English girl from "Have and to Hold."

The Major. To Mrs. McKinley, dead chief magistrate of the nation, all the world honors and mo. is still "the major"—not the companion, not the weakens the body and degrades the mind. It seizes the nervous strength that is the source of all health, and perverts the functions of every organ. Because of its stubborn nature, it is often called incurable. This is not true. There is one medicine that never fails to check the nervous spasms and give new strength to the entire system.

"Our baby boy had epileptic spasms and the physicians were unable to do anything to help him. We heard of Dr. Miles' Nervine, and from the time he took the first dose he never had another attack." Miss J. F. Brown, 459 N. Meridian Ave., Anderson, Ind.

governor, not even the president (most simple but most potential of titles), but only "the major."

"I want to see the major!" is her constant plaintive and most pathetic cry.

It was Major McKinley, the young hero of the war, returning home with the modest commission bestowed upon him by President Lincoln "for gallantry in battle," who won her admiration, affection and love. It was Major McKinley with whom she began the married life destined to be in turn so happy, so sorrowful, so pitiful and so tragical in its termination.

It was "the major" who made the most devoted and tender and chivalric of husbands, watching and guarding and sustaining her "for better, for worse, in sickness and in health," under trials that the world knows not of, with unflinching constancy and unreckoning self sacrifice.

And now "the major" is gone, and there is no one left—neither parent nor child, brother nor sister. The president is dead; long live the president! But "the major" is dead, and his widow sits forever desolate and alone, with Grief as her abiding guest and Memory and Hope her only comforters.

"Oh, the pity of it!"—New York World.

Mrs. John G. Milburn.

While the name of Milburn has since the attack on President McKinley become almost a household word, and though John G. Milburn was well known even before, very few have heard of Mrs. John G. Milburn. In reality Mrs. Milburn is a potent factor in home and society in Buffalo, but club life knows her not.

She is a woman of splendid character and strong physique and would be of inestimable value in the larger affairs of life, but Mr. Milburn is still sufficiently English to prefer women in private and deprecates their being prominent in a public way.

In fact, he has stated that he does not believe in women's clubs and thinks the home a sufficient outlet for her energies; hence Mrs. Milburn's membership in the colony of unknown wives of well known men.—New York Times.

Wearing Mourning for the President.

Members of the New York city chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution are wearing mourning for a period of thirty days for President McKinley. This was done at the suggestion of the chapter regent, Mrs. Donald McLean, who sent notices to each member, requesting them to wear a small badge of mourning upon the left breast for a period of thirty days, beginning with the date of the president's death, Sept. 14. This badge consists of a small piece of crape or other dark material, about the size of a coin, and will send specimens of their work. The centennial anniversary of Dorcas Dix's birth falls in 1902, and it is hoped to have the birthplace free from all incumbrance by that time.

A New Arm Scarf.

A new method of covering the arm with a low cut gown and yet dispensing with the sleeve is to make use of the tulle scarf. A good deal of tulle is required, as the tulle scarf follows the lines of the décolletage and softens the sharpness of outline. The shoulder is covered with a small puff or butterfly

DO NOT WEAR, AND YOUR SHOULDERS WILL start two ends of a short tulle scarf, which are tied just above or at the elbow in a neat bowknot with short ends. This aerial sheath is an excellent apology for the sleeve. It is called the arm scarf.

A very young woman of Syracuse is paying her way through college by a domestic occupation on a large scale. Even as a child her spare time was spent in fruit canning and jelly making, and this work she has found more lucrative than undergraduate teaching in order to secure money for her university expenses.

Many cloth and wool costumes have their edges cut in square tabs, which are about an inch apart. The tabs are stitched down on an under band of contrasting color in silk, often dotted in black, steel or silver. The effect is easily obtained by an ordinary dressmaker, yet is decidedly modish.

Mrs. Eames and Miss Sayre of Mont Clare, Ill., have been made captain and assistant marshal of the fire department. The places are not sinecures, and it is no new thing for women to fight fires in Mont Clare, as most of the male population is in Chicago all day.

Nellie Brown, granddaughter of John Brown, the Kansas abolitionist, is a Salvation Army lass at Astoria, Or. Her father, Solomon Brown, one of the famous border fighter's sons, went to California after the civil war and subsequently located in Oregon.
