ORATORY.

Remarks by Dean Kelley on the Subject This Morning.

Dean Kelley's remarks to the students of Earlham this morning were of unusual interest. For his theme he discussed the subject of oratory with relation to its development in the colleges and universities. He said that there has never been a time in the history of education that the art of oratory has not held an important place, and the indications are that in the future it will continue to occupy a prominent place in the world's events.

The tendency of the age is toward journalism, but the newspaper nor the magazine can not displace the public speaker. A man of deep thought is handicapped if he lacks the faculty of expression. The effect of oratorical and debating contests is broadening, as it brings into close relationship the educational institutions of the country. Earlham's work along these lines has been of the very highest standard. She now holds a prominent position in this field among the colleges of Indiana, and judging from the prospects for the oratorical contest next Monday night, she will make a strong candidate for honors this year.

A Neat Invitation.

The Halloween parties are going to be numerous and some pretty invitations are being issued. One of the neatest is from Earlham. A piece of pink paper is folded and the edges set at right angles and then put out. When unfolded the sheet is of irregular shape, pink, with a black edge where burned. In the center is written the verse:

Halloween comes but once a year With wraiths and ghosts, and all good cheer. At Lindley hall we want you all Good gentlemen, both great and small: At stroke of 8 or just before For fear the ghost may lock the door.

Saturday evening, Oct. 26.

The paper is refolded, wrapped in a piece of light manila paper, the ends twisted up, the address written on the side, and mailed.

Waiting For Bids

The plans and specifications for the new Panhandle passenger depot have been here for some time. Engineer Maintenance Of Way Worthington has asked three Richmond contractors to put in bids but they have declined to do so.

It seems unfortunate that this large job will have to go outside of Richmond, and that the enterprise must be delayed for lack of bids.

A very fine lot of fresh fish, white fish, pickerel, trout and bass, No. 929 Main street. J. E. Hoos.
