

Stiff Joints Omega Oil

Omega Oil. The next need is plenty of massage, or rubbing. The rubbing makes the blood flow faster, and the Oil loosens up and softens the hard, stiff places. The first thing to do with a stiff joint in machinery is to oil it, and then work it back and forth until all the stiffness is gone. Now, as a matter of fact, your body is a machine, not of iron, but flesh, muscles and joints, and you want to keep it well oiled with Omega Oil if you expect to have it in good running order. This is common sense, and every one knows it to be the truth.

Omega Oil is good for everything a liniment ought to be good for.

PEOPLE OF THE DAY

President of World's Union.

The Christian Endeavorers have organized a world's union and have incorporated under the laws of Massachusetts. Rev. Francis E. Clark, who has been at the head of the Christian Endeavor society in the United States was elected president of the World's Union. The union starts out with 61,920 societies and an aggregate membership of 3,820,000. As evidencing the extent of the work done by the Endeavorers President Clark calls attention to the fact that there are now 480 societies in the Madras presidency of India alone. He further says: "Japan shows more interest in the work than ever before. China is eagerly awaiting her new secretary."

REV. FRANCIS E. CLARK.

Fame by Chance.

The story of William Allen White's sudden leap into fame through his "What's the matter with Kansas?" editorial is familiar to everybody, but it is not generally known by what a narrow opportunity Mr. White got there. It was in the summer, and Mr. White's wife was at Colorado Springs. He was about to join her there for a rest and had written in advance editorials enough to carry along his paper during his absence. So at least he thought, and he was leaving the office when his foreman came in and asked what provision he had made for the editorial columns during his absence.

"There on that hook," said the editor, pointing to a spike on his desk upon which was impaled a quantity of manuscript. The foreman detained Mr. White while he glanced it over and announced that there wasn't enough copy.

"Give me a little more," he pleaded, "and I'll manage to get along."

"All right," said the editor, dropping into his chair. He thought a few moments, dashed off the vigorous paragraphs, handed them to the foreman and went off for his train.

When he returned, he found his desk heaped two feet deep with letters and himself a national character. It was that last editorial that did it.

Valuable Statistics.

G. Bernard Shaw, the eccentric English novelist, essayist and playwright, who is never so happy as when he is stirring up controversy, has lately taken up the cudgels against vaccination. In a speech in London he ridiculed the statistical claims advanced by the vaccinationists, saying they reminded him of the report made upon an investigation into the prevalence of the drink habit in a British regiment in India. "The investigator," said Mr. Shaw, "was informed that 50 per cent of the teetotalers had been invalided home, while the remaining 50 per cent were dead. Further investigation revealed the fact that the total number of teetotalers in the regiment had been two. One man had been eaten by a tiger, and the other had been injured by a pulley block falling on his head."

The New Postmaster General.
The first break in the cabinet which was carried over from the McKinley administration by President Roosevelt came through the resignation of Charles Emory Smith as postmaster general. Mr. Smith announced as the cause of his resignation his desire to return to the active management of his paper, the Philadelphia Press.

Henry C. Payne of Wisconsin succeeds Mr. Smith in the postmaster generalship. Mr. Payne is vice chairman

TAR AND FEATHERS.

How It Feels to Wear a Coat of This Fearful Mixture.

People who read of tarring and feathering know that the punishment is a very unpleasant one, but few imagine how terribly painful and dangerous it is. In Wyoming I once saw a man who had been tarred and feathered, and, although he fully deserved the discipline, I could not help pitying him. Hardened the man is very hard to remove from the skin, and when feathers are added it forms a kind of cement that sticks closer than a brother. As soon as the tar sets the victim's suffering begins. It contracts as it cools, and every one of the little veins on the body is pulled, causing the most exquisite agony. The perspiration is entirely stopped, and unless the tar is removed death is certain to ensue.

But the removal is no easy task and requires several days. The tar cannot be softened by the application of heat and must be peeled off bit by bit, sweet oil being used to make the process less painful. The irritation to the skin is very great, as the hairs cannot be disengaged, but must be pulled out or cut off. No man can be cleaned of tar in a single day, as the pain of the operation would be too excruciating for endurance, and until this is done he must suffer from a pain like that of ten thousand pin pricks. Numbers of men have died under the torture, and none who have gone through it regard tar and feathering as anything but a most fearful infliction.—Exchange.

Lifting by Magnets.

The most important employment of the magnet in the mechanical industries is in lifting and handling such masses of metal as ship plates, boiler plates and parts of machines which it would otherwise be difficult to get hold of. It effects an average economy in time and cost of handling, stacking loading and unloading of from 50 to 75 per cent.

To meet the possible danger that from any cause the current from the dynamo might be cut off, causing the magnet to drop its load, it is usual in well appointed plants to install a storage battery, which effectually guards against such accident. In handling billets and material of convenient shape a number of pieces may be picked up at one time. The same is true of thin plates.

The type of magnets used in most American works has a lifting capacity of five tons. It makes a stranger nervous to see them at work, and he generally does not need to be reminded that unless his life is insured at its full value he would do well to stand from under. But slings and chains break under loads quite as often as magnets drop their loads by accident and in wrong places.—New York Times.

Indian Homes.

The young Indian wife of today is clean, a fairly good cook and tidy with her house, says an exchange. She is not yet well versed in the art of decoration, and red and green are predominating colors in all of her rooms, whether in harmony or not. The house has good furniture, but it is strangely arranged. The lounge is a favorite piece of furniture, and one sees it in every Indian household, always in the parlor. If the Indians have a piano or organ, it goes into the bedroom. The young buck's best saddle also goes into the parlor, and in many houses it is hung upon the wall. Red ribbons are tied to everything, even the tail of the cat, for no Indian household is complete without a cat and a dog.

Made His Declaration Good.

Helena, Mont., Jan. 7.—Alonzo Kilby and Roy Hamilton, prisoners who escaped in Yellowstone county and eluded arrest for 24 hours, were surrounded yesterday near Chandler's ranch on the Musselshell. Kilby said he would never be taken alive and returned the fire of the posse. He was killed. The other, who is only a boy, was taken to Billings jail.

Mr. W. W. Rogers, 305 south fourteenth street, says: "For many years I followed brick-laying as a trade, and it is to the exposure and stooping position when working at it that I attribute my kidney trouble. I had for ten years attacks of severe pain through the small of my back and in the kidneys, so severe at times that the least movement up or down caused twinges of pain. I used nearly everything I heard about, but could get no relief. When I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills being so highly recommended, I got them at A. G. Luken's drug store. I took two or three boxes and my health was better than for a long time."

Pain in Head, Side and Back.

For years I suffered with pain in the head, pain in the side, and in the small of the back. I was nervous and constipated and could not sleep. The pills and other medicines I tried only made a bad matter worse. Then I tried Celery King and it cured me at once and made a new woman of me.—Mrs. Th. Klemm, Croton-on-Hudson, N. Y.
