Girls in this state cannot escape the provisions of the truancy law by getting married. That has been settled by the decision in a case at Hartford City. Ruth Bowles of that town would not go to school. Ruth was only 14 years old and within the school age. Her mother asked for her commitment to the Industrial School for Girls, the grounds of the complaint being the violation of the compulsory education law. To escape this penalty she eloped with her half uncle and married him. When they returned she was arrested under the former complaint and sent to the industrial school to remain until she is 21.

Billy Blodgett, of the Indianapolis News, has been over at Muncie delving into the record of Neely in that city. Among other things he says:

It is asserted that in seven weeks after Neely took his place in Cuba, he sent to a bank in Muncie $47,000. This money was deposited in the name of an officer of the bank and gradually worked over until it got to Neely's account. The printing that Neely had done in this city for his Cuban work will also be shown up. It will be shown, so the government witnesses say, that the printing establishment here was owned by Neely, that he ordered the work done and added at least 50 per cent. onto the price, which was already about double what an American in this country would be charged.

This is St. Jackson day—the anniversary of the battle of New Orleans. It is being observed by Democratic organizations throughout the United States. In honoring Old Hickory these organizations honor themselves, but it is doubtful whether the hero of New Orleans, if living, would recognize them as his followers. Ever since the days of the civil war the Democratic party has been diametrically at variance with Jacksonian ideas and teachings. The bitterest pill the Democrats of New Orleans had to swallow during the civil war was the act of Gen. Butler in having Jackson's celebrated utterance carved on his equestrian statue in that city, "The Union, it must and shall be preserved."

An ordinance has been introduced in the Indianapolis council requiring natural gas to be sold by meter, providing that the companies shall furnish the meters and make the connections without cost to the consumer, and fixing the price at 10 cents a thousand cubic feet. It is not probable that the gas company will accept the rate of 10 cents fixed by this ordinance, and it is no doubt too low considering the difficulties of getting a supply of gas now. On the other hand it is not probable that the company will object to the provision that it must furnish and set the meters free. This is a just provision and it ought to have been incorporated in the charter granted to the natural gas company in this city. There is certainly nothing unreasonable in the proposition that all corporations to which practically exclusive privileges are granted to furnish utilities to the public should furnish their own meters free of cost to the consumer. This is the rule in private business and it should obtain in public business as well.

According to a state supreme court decision yesterday it is a difficult matter to define the "business" or the "residence" portion of a city. In deciding the case of Daniel B. Rowland against the city of Greenfield the supreme court held that a city has no authority under the Moore Law, in addition to forbidding the sale of intoxicating liquor outside of the "business portion," to arbitrarily define by ordinance what are the limits of that "portion" or in what part of the city the sale of liquor would be illegal on account of residence portion. The city council of Greenfield passed an ordinance defining the business district so as not to include Rowland's saloon. It then forbade the sale of liquor in any other part of the city. The supreme court held the ordinance valid, but said that Rowland had a right to prove that his place was in the business district. This decision calls to mind that of a justice of the peace in Posey county in a suit for a debt that was outlawed by the statute of limitations. The justice held that the debt was plainly outlawed by the statute of limitations, but that if the creditor "craved" the debt he had a right to try to collect it.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE TELEPHONE GIRL.

That fascinating maiden, "The Telephone Girl," is announced for the Gennett next Saturday. She has been the vogue for the past four seasons and has made so deep an impression and won so many hearts that she is out again for a fifth tour. It is the brightest piece, by all odds, that has been sent out by the New York Casino to cheer sorrowing hearts all over the country. "The Telephone Girl" left a wonderfully pleasant memory wherever it was seen and its welcome here will no doubt be as enthusiastic as its manager could wish. It will be most elaborately presented.

QUO VADIS COMING.

It is promised by the management that there has never been seen on the stage of the Gennett such beautiful and complete pictures as those to be presented by F. C. Whitney and Edwin Krooks in their mammoth production of "Quo Vadis." The well known international success is divided into six acts and there are eight scenes in all distributed as follows: Petronius' house, the grounds surrounding Aulus Plautius' home, Nero's garden and palace at Rome, an antechamber in Nero's palace, interior of the Circus Maximus from a point overlooking the arena where the famous scene with Ursus rescuing Lygia from the wild bull occurs. These scenes are of course familiar to those who have read "Quo Vadis," and there are doubtless but few who have not done so, to these few it can be said there is a rare treat in store for them. "Quo Vadis" is correctly termed an international success after its long and profitable run in New York as well as in London, and in its last tour of this country people filled the theaters to overflowing wherever there was an opportunity of seeing it. There are thirty-two speaking parts in the version as dramatized by Stanislaus Stage which will be seen for the first time here, and it takes a large number of supernumeraries to make the necessary filling and background for the gorgeous stage pictures to be presented.

Seats go on sale Friday morning and despite the large expense involved there will be no advance in prices.

LIQUID AIR.

Some of the peculiar things which will be demonstrated at the liquid air experiments, at the Gennett on Friday, will be: Freezing strawberries and melting steel pens in the same liquid; an icicle of solid alcohol frozen almost instantaneously; a kettle filled with this substance boiling when set on a cake of ice. These and many other experiments with a liquid which is now in about the same state that electricity was a scientific toy—twenty years ago, can not but be worth seeing.

In dealing with liquid air we are in a new realm, as our fathers were with electricity. Who can afford to miss this, our first opportunity to see this wonderful new agent, which when it is under control will be even more useful to us than electricity has been. Fifty years ago no one dreamed that we would be able to harness up lightning until it is as harmless under control as water, yet we do it. The Biblical saying that "all things are possible with God" is now written, "all things are possible with man."

Liquid air is here to stay, all that is needed is to be able to handle it. See it when this coming science is still in its infancy.

By Bribing the Nerves

With opium a cough may be stopped temporarily, but the inflammation of which the cough is a symptom goes from bad to worse. Do not waste time and money on delusive "cough mixtures." Remember that Allen's Lung Balsam does not merely put the nerves to sleep. It gets right down to the root of the trouble and so cures even deep-seated affections of the throat and lungs.

GREENSFORK

Bev Samples' health is a little improved. He now sits up part of the time.

Mrs. Cheeseman can walk about the house.

Mrs. Charles Smith was taken suddenly ill last Sunday night at church but she is now improving.

The Odd Fellows officers for the present term are: Oliver Albertson, N. G.; Stephen Thompson, V. G.; Frank Boyd, secretary. Two applicants for membership.

The Maccabees have instituted a lodge of their order here of a strong membership.

Dances occur quite often.

The Friend's are on the second week of a series of meetings conducted by Frank Stanley. As yet there have been no conversions nor accessions.

John Martindale and his brother, Eden, went to Pittsburg with poultry. The firm is doing a big business in the poultry line.

The health of Mrs. Rhetts is very poor. Her friends have fears she will never be any better.

Almost everybody got a Xmas gift this year.

Frank Underhill has his annual attack of grip. It is using him very rough.

Herschel Rathfon of Red Key spent the holidays with his grand parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Baldwin, and other relatives.

We feel very much in hope that the electric railroad will come this way.

Will Coffin is again the occupant of the Harris farm.

Horace Dean and Milo Gentry are buying all the swine they can get, and so do Dan Harris and George Nicolson.

HAGERSTOWN.

Professor Torrence, principal of the school at Greensfork, paid this place a visit last Saturday.

The Coffin Plate company is now ready for business and Mr. A. Eyrar will go on the road as salesman.

George Goodfried, living three miles west of here, is not expected to live. He has enlargement of the liver.

Mr. Geo. W. Mast, of Nebraska, is visiting relatives here.

Mrs. Lydia Rowe paid an extended visit to relatives in Ohio.

Grant Parsons is on the sick list. Clyde Reynolds is at home on a visit.

Newton Abrell and wife spent part of last week visiting friends at New Castle.

Ed. Parter is running a grocery wagon through the country.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surface of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Address, F. J. CHENY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by druggists, 75c.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Public Sale.

Notice to Bidders.

Proposals for supplies for the use of the Eastern Indiana Hospital for the Insane for the month of February 1902, will be received by the Board of Trustees at the Hospital before 3 p. m. Monday, January 13, 1902.

Specifications may be seen at the Second National Bank, or at the Hospital.

By order of the Board of Trustees 7-2 S. E. SMITH, Med. Supt.

A Good Recommendation.

"I have noticed that the sale on Chamberlain's Stomach & Liver Tablets is almost invariably to those who have once used them," says Mr. J. H. Weber, a prominent druggist of Cascade, Iowa. What better recommendation could any medicine have than for people to call for it when again in need of such a remedy? Try them when you feel dull after eating, when you have a bad taste in your mouth, feel bilious, have no appetite or when troubled with constipation, and you are certain to be delighted with the prompt relief which they afford. For sale by A. G. Lukens & Co. and W. H. Sudhoff.

A Cure For Lumbago

W. C. Williamson, of Amherst, Va., says: "For more than a year I suffered from lumbago. I finally tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm and it gave me entire relief, which all other remedies had failed to do." Sold by A. G. Lukens & Co. and W. H. Sudhoff.
