Amusements

"Human Hearts."

In "Human Hearts" the story told is one of much interest, in which the sympathies of the audience are thoroughly enlisted. Tom Logan, an honest blacksmith, living in the hills of Arkansas, is entrapped by an adventuress whom he marries without discovering her character. After a time, and while poor Tom thinks his happiness is secure, her former lover appears on the scene. A murder is committed and through the plottings of this infamous man and woman, the crime is fastened on Tom. He discovers the truth, but through love for the woman, and rather than betray her, he bears the stigma, stands trial, is convicted and sentenced to State's Prison for life, where he would have remained, had it not been for the intervention of faithful friends, who bring his case to the notice of the Governor of Arkansas. In the end of course, all ends happily and Tom is restored to his former standing in the community. The play is one in which pathos is combined with comedy.

The organization presenting "Human Hearts" is under the management of W. E. Nankeville, who has directed its tour most successfully for a number of years. Mr. Nankeville is said to have provided ample scenic display for the production and to have engaged a splendid company for the portrayal of the various characters. Gennett next Monday.

"At The Races."

"A treat coming" Lyman Twins to appear here. A treat seldom ever offered the theatre going public is in store for them when the famous comedians "The Lyman Twin Brothers" are seen here in their wonderful musical comedy success "At the Races" which they are appearing in this season and which is said to be one of the funniest and most elaborate productions of this class yet produced, comprising a large company, a dainty chorus of pretty girls, a host of funny comedians, singers and dancers together with numerous novelties entirely new and original with this attraction. The pretty scenery, magnificent costumes, intermingled with catchy music, sweet singing and a dazzling display of electrical effects transforming the graceful dances into a blaze of wondrous splendor carried along by side splitting situations and a funny story to make up one of the greatest comedy productions of the day. The wonderful success with which this attraction has met with in the East by press and public has placed these clever young stars on the top round of popularity as comedians and producers. Gennett next Tuesday.

When Johnny Comes Marching Home

The Whitney opera company has scored a most remarkable success in "When Johnny Comes Marching Home." All critics declare this to be the best American opera since "Robin Hood." It is a great novelty in every respect and drew immense audiences, such imminent men as Senator Depew and ex-Governor Black highly commending it. The latter has seen it several times. Many of the musical numbers have attained a great vogue and are being widely sung and whistled and played by orchestras. An especially attractive number is a song and chorus "Katie, My Southern Rose," sung by Union officers and introducing a promenade of officers and Southern belles arrayed in the greatest crinoline and hoop skirts worn during the civil war period. Another big feature of the opera is a waltz scene in which forty officers and Confederate young women are disclosed in an old-fashioned dance with all its extravagance of movement. The effect is novel and is repeatedly encored. Gennett next Wednesday.

"Florodora," the greatest success in musical comedy that has ever been known in America, is coming here shortly and with it will be Fisher & Ryley's number one company, by far the largest and best organization that has ever appeared in the play since it was produced. Furthermore it will be mounted with greater elaboration than before, every costume being built from the new this season, the scenery newly painted and the entire massive production as spick and span as it was the night of its premier at the Casino Theatre, New York.

Local playgoers will be especially interested in the cast which the "Florodora" managers are to bring here this time. Adelaide Manola has scored the success of her career as the blase English widow. Next is Robert E. Graham, who was the first to play Gilfain in this country and has continued to do so ever since, having already appeared as the bogus millionaire over 1,200 times.

Then there is Philip A. Ryley, who has been Tweed Lepunch for three years and who gives an original and highly humorous portrayal of the fakir who tries to promote happy marriages by the employment of phrenology. The Dolores will be Gretna Risley, for two years the queen in "King Dodo," and an artist who has scored a bit of huge proportions as the love-lorn maid of the Philippines, on whom the chief thread in the story of "Florodora" centers.

Others of importance who will appear in the principal characters are Niel McCay, who is playing Capt. Donegal, and to whom is allotted that very catchy solo, "I Want to be a Military Man," Jos. Phillips, accounted the best exponent the role of Abereod has yet had and whose singing of the delightful love ballad "The Shade of the Palms," is a distinct feature of the performance, Thos. A. Kiernan, as Leandro, Harriett Merritt, as Angela and Lillian Spencer, Valleda, have all been with "Florodora" since the opening night three years ago.
