HISTORY IN THE SCHOOLS.

While good may be done by Rockefellian donations pouring into the treasury of the University of Chicago, certainly harm, and much harm, is being done by the outcome of some doctrines laid down within the walls of the institution. The latest of many instances of the frothiness of the teachings of Chicago is furnished by Prof. Edwin Sparks, who says that: "One year's teaching of American history in the schools will undo the work of a dozen peace tribunals. If we want to have permanent Hague Tribunals, we will have to leave out our histories."

Supplementing the wild statement of the Chicago professor, the Philadelphia Record remarking that "the children of this country are being taught to be National bullies," adds:

The school children are taught to regard war as the one field within which patriotism can manifest itself. The Revolution, the naval victories of the war of 1812, and the battle of New Orleans, the conquest of Mexico, the great encounters of the Civil War, the defeat of Spain and the conquest of the Philippines—these constitute the history of the United States as taught to children, and the great contributions made by this country to the advancement of the world are ignored.—Commercial Tribune.

This is the kind of teaching we have in many of our higher institutions. The learned professors are filled with theories worked out from their own standpoint and then colored by their own narrow views. They desire that those who sit at their feet shall live in the present and ignore the past. The Peace Tribunal is the culmination of history—it is the net result of all the battles from Concord to Santiago Bay, that is so far as the United States is a party. But the history of the nation is not made up wholly of battles. Very few of the one hundred and twenty-five years have been years of war. They have been years of national growth in almost every department of human activity. Great men and great women have lived, worked, and accomplished things, and the pupils in the public schools have not been kept in ignorance of these facts. They know Mrs. Stowe and Frances E. Willard, they know Alexander Hamilton and John Quincy Adams apart from war. They know Benjamin Franklin and Horace Greeley. They know Wendell Phillips and Charles Sumner; they know the great Tilden and the splendid Blaine; they know Andrew Carnegie and Clara Barton. The pupils in the up-to-date public school are not living wholly in the present like the Chicago professor. They look into the past for inspiration and into the future with hope. In concluding, the Tribune says:

"There is much improvement to be desired in educational methods employed, and in text books employed, but it is absolutely misstating the situation to insist that knowledge of American history—for knowledge is involved in teaching—would undo the work of a dozen, or of one, peace tribunal. It is gliding close to the ridiculous to insist that school children are taught that war is the one field on which patriotism can display itself, and it is false that the children of today are being taught to be National bullies. The American is not a bully, but sometimes and in some instances he allows froth to take the place of substance, Philadelphia and Chicago illustrating the fact."

These same professors will teach that free trade is just the thing for this country. They say that we ought to abolish competition because it is wrong in theory—they tell our boys and girls that it is a relic of the Feudal Ages. They do this, too, in the light of recent experiments that have utterly failed.

The people, no doubt, appreciate Mr. Rockefell's splendid gifts, and the fact that Chicago University is doing a great work, but would it not be well to look after some of its history teachers who have great learning but lack in good practical, common sense.

Judge Hord of Columbus, recommends severe punishment in the case of leaders in college class scraps. He thinks that students who kidnap ought to be indicted for assault and battery, as well as for kidnapping, and tried in the courts. He advises the liberal use of the gad and thus its use would put an end to college scraps and make college work more efficient. The judge's recommendations may be a little severe, but this very phase of college life will have to have some attention and that before very long. Parents often sacrifice considerable to send their son to college and are no doubt greatly disappointed as to the function of a college when they read about such pranks by the students. Their son comes home at the end of the first year with the cigarette habit fixed, a little slang and a rattan cane, and they are still more disappointed as to the functions of an educational institution. Dr. Jordan once said: "You can't give a thousand-dollar education to a fifty-cent boy." True, but you can discipline him and make him conduct himself decently or send him home.

"Turn the rascals out" has been a kind of war cry from the party, on the outside, for many years. The Republicans have not only turned some rascals out but these rascals will be turned into a place where they will have ample time for contemplation. There will be no whitewashing in the postal fraud cases.

Nothing Equals Chamberlain's Colic Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Dr. P. B. Spears, of Pinchard, Ala., has become acquainted with the good qualities of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy and uses it in his own family and in his practice. He says: "It beats any preparation I have ever seen for all bowel complaints. I do not think of recommending any other, and also use it with my own children." This remedy is for sale by A. G. Lukens & Co. and W. H. Sudhoff, corner fifth and Main streets.

GRIP CONVALESCENCE

There's nothing better than Scott's Emulsion after the grip. When the fever is gone the body is left weak and exhausted; the nervous system is completely run down and vitality is low.

Two things to do: give strength to the whole body and new force to the nerves. Scott's Emulsion will do it; contains just what the worn-out system needs.

Rich blood, healthy flesh, resistive force, more and better nourishment are what Scott's Emulsion supplies to the convalescent.

Scott's Emulsion is the original and has been the standard emulsion of cod liver oil for nearly thirty years. Why buy the new, untried, cheap emulsions or so called wines, cordials and extracts of cod liver oil, when you can buy what is sure to help you?

We'll send you a sample free upon request.

Indianapolis	66	27	39	.409

A good game of polo was witnessed at the Coliseum Saturday night between Richmond and Elwood. It was attended by a large number of people and thoroughly enjoyed. The game was one of those busy ones, when everybody is playing for all there is in it. The game was no body's for a while, and the first period closed with Elwood in the lead. Bone and Cunningham played good polo and were well supported by Doherty and Mansfield, while Jessup made a good many stops, having 38 to his credit, Sutherland having but 25. "Saxy" Lyons was in the game to a finish and was in evidence everywhere.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local application as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous services.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

DRUGGISTS SEE
PROSPERITY

WORLD'S STRONGEST

Proprietary Medicine Houses, Wells & Richardson Co., Uses Its Mighty Business Power in the Retailer's Favor—Make Sweeping Concessions for Retail Druggist's Profits.

The retail druggists of this city, members of the N. A. R. D., in the fight against price cutting methods, have now the strong support of one of the oldest and most conservative proprietary houses in the world, Wells & Richardson Co., who own, manufacture and advertise, Paine's Celery Compound, Dr. Pettingill's Kidney-Wort Tablets, Laeted Food, Cereal Milk, Diamond Dyes and many other noted proprietary articles.

The strongest bulwark for the retailers' interests in the past has been the co-operation of this old and famous firm, which now, under new management, has taken its stand more strongly than ever in favor of the retail druggists.

Incorporated in their contracts for their great and costly advertising campaign of 1904, is a clause by which they immediately cancel advertising in any paper that prints an advertisement that offers any of the Wells & Richardson company's goods at a cut price.

They hold that the practice of price cutting is unfair, and is only a cloak for attempts to sell worthless substitutes, and that it disappoints more people than it benefits. The price cutting druggist who has only six bottles to sell at a cut price, may draw attention to himself by crying "cut price" loudly. He may draw a hundred people to his store, thus ninety-four people when told that the goods are "all sold" are disappointed and inconvenienced. The honest, conservative retailer never gives such an answer, and always has the medicine when called for. He does not sell at a cut price, because if he did not have a fair profit on his sale he could not serve the comfort and convenience of his neighborhood. His prosperity is enjoyed by the whole neighborhood. It is to these honest, conservative retail dr
