COUNCIL TONIGHT

Will be a Scene of Much Business.

City council will be a very busy place tonight. Several important matters are to come up for consideration. The pavilion in Glen Miller park will be one of the most prominent matters to come before that body. It is hoped council will give the matter the attention it deserves.

When the City Fathers meet this evening the business to be done will be greater than at any other meeting thus far this year, and the council rooms will be busier than they have been for a long time. There are several important matters that will come up this evening for the consideration of council. Fred Von Pein will come before the council with a plat of a new addition on both sides of south eighth street, between south J and the corporation line. This has been opened up voluntarily by Mr. Von Pein and other gentlemen, and they desire council to accept the plat, and then it will be recorded and become a regular residence section of Richmond. The addition will be known, if accepted, as Von Pein's addition to the city of Richmond. Mr. Von Pein will also make the streets and alleys instead of leaving this task to the city, as most investors do.

It is probable, also, that the franchise of the C. G. & R. Traction company will be again presented to council, asking for certain streets, as the residents on south fifteenth street have made a general kick against that street being used. It is practically assured that council will sustain the protests of the residents on south fifteenth street. People living on south twelfth street will also kick on the laying of tracks on that street.

The matter of the crossing at west second street and the west side sewer will also be brought up and the residents of the west side await the meeting of council tonight with much interest.

It is not known as yet whether the petition against the saloon in the sixth ward will be given to council this evening or not.

A large number of the most influential men in the ward have signed the petition, and it should be granted.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

By local application as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear.

There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube.

When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever.

Nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous services. Ralph Tague was here from Bradford, where he has a position as telephone operator, Saturday.

Miss Louise Ebert was here from Earlham over Sunday.

Mrs. Douglas Hollowell returned Saturday morning from a few days' visit with friends in New Castle.

Miss Hazel Fisher is the guest of relatives in Richmond this week.

Mr. and Mrs. George Doll and daughter, Miss Retta, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Doll, in Germantown, Sunday.

Russell Dennis, of Richmond, was visiting friends here Sunday.

Frank Williams, of Knightstown, was the guest of friends here Sunday.

Gus Garrett has resigned his position with the interurban station.

E. E. Beeson returned from a trip in the northern part of the state Saturday.

George Doll was the guest of Ross Freeman in Indianapolis over Sunday.

Jerry Fisher was here from Richmond Sunday, visiting his brother, S. B. Fisher.

John Weber, of Connersville, visited his wife over Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Beck, who have been spending the winter in Indianapolis, returned to their home in Germantown Saturday.

Miss Mabel Kepler entertained a number of friends from here at her beautiful home in Germantown yesterday afternoon.

D. Z. Creitz sold his farm, known as the Zehner farm, located about one and one-half miles south of Hiser's Station, to his son, William Creitz.

Mr. Tom Butler and little daughter, of Richmond, were the guests of friends here Sunday.

Mr. Butler has a fine driving mare catalogued in the Laekey sale.

Mrs. Byron Strickland delightedly entertained the members of the E. G. C. club, which existed a number of years ago at an elegant supper Friday evening. Those present were: Mrs. Byram Boyd, Mrs. Ed. Drischel, Mrs. Carl Boyd, Misses Bessie Van Meter, Helen Garvin and Mabel Drischel. In the evening their husbands and friends were present.

Thirty million flowering and bedding plants are used in the embellishment of the world's fair grounds at St. Louis.

A greater force is now employed at the world's fair grounds than at any time since the great enterprise was launched. The installation of exhibits alone requires the services of an army of men.

Edmund Clarence Stedman has written a hymn embodying the spirit of the Louisiana Purchase exposition and the progress of the west. John K. Paine, dean of the American composers of Harvard university, has written the music for Mr. Stedman's hymn.

A notice has been issued to all passenger trainmen of the Missouri Pacific to secure new uniforms for the opening of the world's fair, April 30. Besides the new uniforms the men must have their shoes polished so that they will present a neat appearance.

The Pennsylvania state building at the world's fair will contain 40 portraits of distinguished Pennsylvanians by Albert Rosenthal, of Philadelphia. In the rotunda of the building there will be displayed large photographs showing the public squares, park principal cities of the state.

Handsome engraved in its cover has been sent to the executive commissioners of each state and territory participating in the world's fair, asking them to attend a meeting in the administration building at the Louisiana Purchase exposition on April 16 for the purpose of organizing the Executive Commissioners' association for the world's fair. The call was issued by J. A. Yerington, executive commissioner from Nevada. Mr. Yerington was president of a similar organization at Buffalo.

MELORIAL SERVICES

For Frances E. Willard and Neal Dow.

A. Frances E. Willard and Neal Dow memorial services were observed by the Frances E. Willard union at the W. C. T. U. temple yesterday afternoon. A paper was read by Mrs. Rachel Hodgin giving a sketch of Miss Willard's life.

Prof. Cyrus Hodgin and Prof. Walter Davis gave the biography of Neal Dow's life. Miss Lillian Eves gave a memorial recitation. Livinia Baily gave the free will offering speech and met a generous response. This money goes into the National Organization fund. The meeting was interspersed with hymns.

BASKET BALL

Earlham Defeated by Shortridge

In a rather long and slow game of basket ball Earlham college was defeated Saturday afternoon by Shortridge high school of Indianapolis. The score was 17 to 22.

The first half was entirely in Earlham's favor, the score being 14 to 11 when time was called. A great number of fouls were called on Shortridge for holding and pushing. Only three were called on Earlham. In this half the majority of the goals were made by Captain Russel Wilson, who played a good game.

In the second half O. Bond took O. Brunson's place at half for Earlham, and Patterson, Shortridge's substitute, entered the game. This half was made very unpleasant for the spectators by a number of disputes over the decisions of the referee. The Shortridge boys got very spirited and began to raise their score until at the end of the game they had 22.

Palmer, the center for Indianapolis held the Earlham boys invariably. Thorp, Earlham's star center, entered the game toward the last and did some fine work. It is quite a blow for the Quakers to loose the last game they had to play and to a high school.

The line up of the teams was as follows:

Earlham.
Forwards—Fridd, W. Wilson.
Center—Thorp, R. Wilson.

Backs—O. Brunson, R. Allan, O. Bond.

Shortridge.
Forwards—McKinney, Riddell.
Center—Thorp, Palmer, Sheets.

Backs—Gipe.

Substitute—Patterson.

ATHLETICS

Columbia's Coach Thinks It is Overdone.

(Illustrated Sporting News.) Jasper Goodwin, the recently chosen rowing coach of Columbia, believes that crews have been worked too hard, and that they can be brought to the starting line in better condition for speed and staying power if the hard training season is shortened. He says:

"I do not think that heroic methods do a crew any good. I do not believe in asking the men to train on the water in cold, damp and disagreeable weather. On such days the work will be done indoors. I have long held the opinion that modern crews overtrain. The Columbia men will be asked to do all their hard work in April. The Varsity will then be sent over the four mile course as often as possible. The last few weeks before the race will be devoted to getting up the speed of the crew. I want the men to enter the contest full of ginger and a little overweight."

This sounds a bit soft and ladylike to the coaches and oarsmen who pound away in all weathers for six months to prepare for a race late in June, and who row in the early spring, after the long ordeal of the tank, indifferent to such trifles as sleety spray freezing on bare legs and arms whenever it strikes. Mr. Goodwin has not been actively interested in rowing for fifteen years, and eight-oared shells racing over four mile stretches are new in his coaching experience. He may be all wrong in his notions of training. This will be proved in something like twenty minutes next Summer on the Hudson river. But he may be right. It may be that in football and rowing methods of training not all the unreasonable traditions have yet been eliminated. Nobody knows whether an American college crew can be thoroughly prepared for a four-mile race in less than six months of daily slavery, for no coach has tried it. English University crews get along on half the work, but this is met by the argument that they are good oarsmen to begin with. Certainly West Point has shown that football elevens of championship class can be turned out with a good deal less time for preparation than the colleges think necessary, and without throwing the schedule of recitations overboard for the last days of the season. Mr. Goodwin's plan will therefore be watched with much interest. No class of men is more bound to tradition than your average athletic coach. He may need waking up.

HE PLAYED BAD POLITICS.

Senator Beveridge, author of The Russian Advance, lately published by the Harpers, was being discussed by a group of politicians in one of the committee-rooms at the Capitol the other day.

"Beveridge sometimes plays bad politics," said one of his old friends.

"That isn't what they say out in Indiana," replied a Hoosier politician.

"When I say 'sometimes,' " explained the first speaker, "I mean at times when the interests of any good friend of his are involved. I remember that when Beveridge was running for the senate, Frank Littleton, a close friend of his from the same city, was a candidate for speaker of the house. A delegation called on Beveridge to get him to side-track Littleton. He listened attentively, then replied: 'Gentlemen, Frank Littleton is one of the best friends I have, and he has as much right to run for speaker as I have to be a candidate for the senate. I won't side-track him. I would rather be defeated.' Both Little and Beveridge were elected, and afterwards one of the delegation said to me: 'It was bad politics, but it was great.' That is what I mean when I say that sometimes Beveridge plays bad politics."

HIGH SCHOOL

Levi Peacock Secured to Coach the Track Team This Spring.

Levi Peacock, Earlham's greatest athlete, has been secured to coach the high school track team this spring. This announcement brought great joy to the hearts of the track candidates and all of the pupils of the school in favor of the track team, and it is certain that the local high school will have one of the best track teams of a school of its size in the state. Peacock was very prominent in high school athletics when a member of that institution and when he went to Earlham he carried away all honors. Although he has been away from Earlham for several years, his record for the hammer-throw and the high jump have never been beaten. Last year he attended the University of
