NEW BOOK

Entitled "Firm of Nan and Sue, Stenographers," by Harriet C. Cullaton.

The Broadway Publishing company has just published a new book entitled "Nan and Sue, Stenographers." The book is by a former Richmond lady, Harriet C. Cullaton, who is one of the brightest and most popular stenographers in New York city. What a delicious vision this title calls up of a pair of bewitching blondes—or brunettes, if you please!—bending with bewildering grace over clicking keys; MS. and letters piled everywhere; an uncomfortable-looking man in the foreground struggling with split infinitives and double negatives as he writes "home" to "Messrs. Smith and Jones"; with the roar of Broadway twenty stories down!

Nan and Sue, two charming New York stenographers—thrown upon their own resources—join forces, open an office, and begin to accumulate money and amusing experiences in the most delightful fashion. Little did the the various "dictators" who patronized their shapely fingers ever dream that "Nan" was "taking" real "notes" which would one day be published in a book. • • •

Mr. Clifton Johnson's forthcoming volume tells the story of "Old-Time Schools and School-Books" in America from the days of the first settlers down to 1850. Especially the narrative concerns itself with picturesque and primitive characteristics. It is an entertaining account of a vital part of the old-time life. The 250 illustrations include reproductions from interesting and typical early school books, picture of school implements and buildings, and attractive and unusual school scenes.

"Hero Tales Told in School," a new volume in the Scribner Series of School Reading, will be published immediately. The author is Jame Baldwin and the illustrations are by Howard Pyle and Reginald Birch.

Among the most popular presentations of the Greek, Teutonic, and Frankish folklore and legends have been "The Story of the Golden Age," "The Story of Siegfried," and "The Story of Roland," by James Baldwin. Owing to the popular demand for a School Reader embodying the most representative of these legends, Mr. Baldwin has selected from the larger works a dozen tales that will serve as a most charming introduction to this field of literature.

ATTENTION, FARMERS!

Why remain in the North and stay indoors six months in the year consuming what you raise during the other six months?

Go South where you can work outdoors every month in the year, and where you are producing something the year round. If you are a stock raiser you know your stock are now "eating their heads off" and, besides have to be protected from the rigor winter by expensive shelter.

Economical stock feeding requires the combination of both flesh-forming and fat-forming foods in certain proportions. Alabama and Florida produce in abundance the velvet bean and cassava, the first a flesh producer, and the latter a fat producer, and they are the cheapest and best fattening materials known to the world.

More money can be made and with less labor, in general farming fruit and berry growing and truck gardening along our road in the South than in any other section of the Union.
